District Gambler 'Big Joe' Scheve Slain

Gunman Hits Man Nearby In Fusillade In Poolroom

Joseph H. (Big Joe) Scheve, 56, convicted gambler, was shot to death at 12:45 a. m. today in a poolroom at 913 9th st. nw.

David Silverman, 42, of 1326 Missouri ave. nw., was wounded in the right thigh after Scheve was killed, police said.

A 35-year-old man was arrested at the scene and taken to police headquarters for questioning.

Scheve, who was out on bail pending his appeal from gun-whipping and gambling convictions earlier this year in connection with a high-stake dice game in Woodley pl., was shot four times with a .38-caliber pistol, Lieut. Richard H. Felber, head of the homicide squad, said.

Felber gave this account:

There was an argument at the pool parlor at 11:45 p. m. One man left and returned about an hour later. Scheve was standing by the pool table when the man pulled out the pistol and fired.

The first four shots hit Scheve in the chest. The man fired wildly twice and one slug hit Silverman, who is unemployed, in the right thigh. He was taken to Emergency Hospital where doctors said the bullet went through the thigh. His condition was not serious.

From one source came a report that Scheve and his assailant had been engaged in a long-standing quarrel. The man arrested in connection with the shooting is reported to have said that Scheve had been abusing him for a long time; and did so again last night. Police were informed that earlier in the evening Scheve had chased his assailant out of a nearby restaurant with a knife.

Aid to Cicero's 'Racket Buster' Slain by Gunman

Chicago, Dec. 9 (AP).—Police said Frank Christensen, 40, a former Cook County (Chicago) Assistant State's Attorney, was slain tonight in front of his home in suburban Cicero.

Christensen was assistant to Former State's Attorneys Thomas J. Courtney and William J. Tuohy, a "racket buster."

Eisler Reprimanded by Communist Party

Berlin (Saturday) Dec. 10 (U.P.).—Gerhard Eisler, propaganda chief of the Russian-sponsored East German government, has been "sharply reprimanded, by the Communist Party for talking out of turn, a British-sponsored newspaper said today.

Eisler resumed his prominent place in the Communist Party after escaping from the United States

The newspaper Die Welt, organ of the British High Commission, said he had been rebuked for making "militarily aggressive" statements about the current French-Polish diplomatic dispute.

De Gasperi Pledges Wide Land Reforms

Rome, Dec. 9 (U.P.).—Sweeping land reforms to satisfy Italy's two million land-hungry peasants was promised tonight by Premier Alcide de Gasperi, who told newsmen land reform was essential to true peace and justice.

Thomas Gets 6 to 18 Months In Penitentiary, $10,000 Fine

By Mary Spargo
Post Reporter

J. Parnell Thomas, private citizen, last night started serving a 6 to 18 months sentence in Federal penitentiary at Danbury, Conn., for defrauding the Government by padding his Congressional payroll. In addition, he is sentenced to pay a $10,000 fine.

He resigned his seat as a member of the House of Representatives, effective January 2, and his wife, Mrs. Amelia Stiles Thomas, attractive 48-year-old brunette, has announced she intends to run for it.

New Jersey Republican leaders, however, give her candidacy short shrift and predict instead that Ewing Convinced by British Of Health Plan Need in U. S.

London, Dec. 9 (AP).—President Truman's welfare chief announced today he is convinced from what he has seen of Britain's health program that "the national health insurance proposal will be good for America."

Federal Security Administrator Oscar Ewing asserted the American Medical Association is "conducting an emotional campaign against national health insurance in the United States." He asserted the AMA is fostering wrong ideas of the British program.

"The group appears to be using part of the $25 levy per member it made for 'educational purposes' to finance the visits of disgruntled British doctors to lecture in the United States on the evils of the British program," Ewing said at a news conference.

Asked whether the American plan would furnish wigs, spectacles, and false teeth, as the British national health program does, he answered:

"Yes, wigs, spectacles, and all. The cost of wigs under your British plan doesn't amount to a hill of beans."

Under the American plan, Ewing said, the United States would not face an influx of visitors seeking

Full Revision Of Zone Plan In County Seen

The nearly completed master zoning plan for Montgomery County will "overhaul" the area's present rules "from A to Z," Blair Lee 3d, vice chairman of the Maryland-National Capital Park and Planning Commission, said last night.

Unveiling some highlights of the proposed zoning ordinance, he said the plan would probably establish in the Bethesda-Chevy Chase area:

1. At least 11, and perhaps 13, zoning classifications in commercial, industrial and residential construction, instead of the present five.

2. An increase from one to three in types of apartment classifications to "control for the first time the exact character of multiple housing" which may be built.

3. Several different categories of detached residential areas, based on sizes of houses and lots.

The plan, similar to the one recently adopted in Prince Georges County is expected to be completed and submitted to the "sympathetic" county council early next year, Lee said.

He was one of four county offi-

Royalty-Doubling Asked for Peace in Hard Coal Field

John L. Lewis yesterday disclosed for the first time his price for peace in the anthracite fields: Doubling of the welfare fund royalties and 95 cents more pay a day.

The terms, which would cover some 80,000 United Mine Workers in the hard coal mines, include five cents more per ton royalties than Lewis has been demanding from the soft coal operators.

Hard coal miners now work seven hours a day and make around $13.50 a day.

Bituminous coal producers who have accepted the new "basic" contract offered by the UMW have agreed to putting up 35 cents per ton mined into the miners' welfare and retirement fund. They had been sending in 20 cents a ton under the old contract which expired July 1.

Yesterday, John L. announced that he had signed the new agreements with a third group of independents, located in Illinois, Indiana, Kentucky, West Virginia, Ohio, and Pennsylvania.

Stab Wounds Fatal To Sarawak Governor

Boykin Cleared Of Keeping Bear Killed Illegally

Mobile, Ala., Dec. 9 (U.P.).—Justice was served when Representative Frank Boykin's bear was given to charity patients rather than used for "a Lucullan feast in Washington," Judge Tisdale J. Touart ruled today.

So deciding, the jurist freed the Alabama Democratic Congressman of charges that he possessed an illegally killed bear in his deep freeze.

A technicality in the complaint filed against Boykin ruled out any law violation on his part anyway, the judge said.

"I am very glad to get this over," said Boykin, who is noted as a Washington banquet thrower.

State game wardens confiscated the bear from Boykin's icebox and turned it over to City Hospital last month after the 300-pound animal was slain by a beekeeper on Boykin's shooting preserve

Judge Touart acquitted the beekeeper last week, holding that he was justified in killing the bear that raided his hives.

Ward and Party Likely to Board U. S. Ship Sunday

Aboard Lakeland Victory in Chihli Gulf, Saturday, Dec. 10 (U.P.). Angus Ward and his party of 19 will be released from Chinese Communist captivity and "probably" board this American Victory ship Sunday morning, the vessel's skipper said today.

A message from the consul general, still in Communist hands at Tientsin on the rim of this Yellow Sea Gulf, said the party wants to be delivered to Kobe, Japan—a three-day sea run from Taku Bar.

From there Ward and his party are expected to fly to Tokyo and thence to the United States

Land Masses May Be Moving Constantly, Dr. Bush Reports

By Marshall Andrews
Post Reporter

Evidence gleaned from a distorted mass of rock in Maryland has raised the question of whether the earths land masses are constantly moving, Dr. Vannevar Bush said yesterday.

In his annual report as president of the Carnegie Institution, made at its annual meeting, Dr. Bush described the results of experiments by its Department of Terrestrial Magnetism under Dr. Merle A. Tuve.

The Maryland formation, at Hancock and Pinto, Dr. Bush said, was particularly useful because it was at least 350 million years old and was folded into its present shape about 250 million years ago.

Experiments showed that magnetic directions, implanted in the rock when it was developed, are just opposite those of the earth today. Previous research had indicated that magnetization in rock did not change after first being induced and it was therefore concluded that the Maryland rock indicated that north was south on the earth 350 million years ago.

The discovery, Dr. Tuve reported, had "opened surprising questions relating to the possibility of great movements of the earth's crust with respect to the core and geographic poles during ancient geological epochs."

Also in Dr. Bush's report was the conclusion that thunderstorms provide the balance which enables the earth to retain a constant negative electric charge despite cur-

Ford Knew Of Threats, Witness Says

By Benjamin Bradlee
Post Reporter

The Government reopened its threat case against Attilio Acalotti yesterday to introduce new evidence the prosecutor said he received only a few hours after he rested his case Thursday night.

Over the strenuous objections of Defense Counsel Charles E. Ford, Assistant United States Attorney William Hitz recalled Mrs. Nola Andrews, waitress who had already testified that she heard Acalotti threaten a Government witness.

On the stand yesterday, Mrs. Andrews testified that she had told Ford more than eight months ago that Acalotti had used her telephone to threaten Bernice Franklin, while the latter was testifying before the special gambling grand jury.

Obstruction Charge

Acalotti is on trial in District Court for obstructing justice by threatening Miss Franklin, his former girl friend, on two occasions, to "bash her face in" on March 4, and to "shut her mouth permanently" on March 25. He faces a possible maximum sentence of five years and a $500 fine.

As a result of Miss Franklin's testimony, the gambling grand jury returned three indictments against Acalotti, alias Till Alcott, the self-styled "Mayor of Thomas Circle," where he is a news dealer.

Hitz led up to the revelation of the conversation between Ford and Mrs. Andrews by asking the witness if she had been "cut off" in her testimony and prevented from "describing some incident."

Ford objected, but Judge Alexander Holtzoff said, "The court has a distinct recollection that the court stopped the witness from making a voluntary statement."

At Ford's Office

She said the incident occurred when she went to Ford's office "at the insistence of Mr. Alcott" in connection with the threatened removal of her telephone.

"Was there any discussion at that time with him in the presence of Acalotti concerning any telephone conversations made by Acalotti from your apartment?"

"I'd received a notice from the telephone company that my telephone was going to be disconnected. I asked Mr. Ford if it would have any bearing on keeping my phone if threats had been made over it," she replied.

"Mr. Ford asked 'What threats?'" she said.

"Then Mr. Alcott interrupted and said 'You know Mr. Ford, Bernice called me and I was very upset and I threatened to bash her face in,' Mrs. Andrews testified.

Same Conversation

"Did Acalotti in his reply to Ford name the same conversation that you called Ford's attention?" Hitz asked.

"Yes," she replied.

As a Government witness Thursday, Mrs. Andrews and her roommate, Ruth Ensor of 1223 12th st. nw., had testified they heard Acalotti threaten the Government witness on March 4.

But under cross examination Thursday, Ford had made Mrs. Andrews admit that she signed an affidavit in connection with her telephone-removal suit, in which

Flag Officers Back Denfeld In Cole's Poll

By Robert C. Albright
Post Reporter

Top ranking officers of the Navy and Marine Corps preponderantly backed up Admiral Louis E. Denfeld's protests against Pentagon policies affecting the Navy in a survey of sentiment completed yesterday by Representative W. Sterling Cole (R., N. Y.).

Cole, a minority member of the House Armed Services Committee, said he sent this telegram to 308 admirals and Marine Corps generals:

"In strict confidence please advise me if you are in accord with views expressed by Admiral Denfeld before Armed Services Committee."

Cole said he received 170 replies, divided as follows: 117 agreed with Denfeld; 26 were "noncommittal" and 27 said Navy regulations prevented a reply.

Committeemen Get Replies

Texts of the replies, with the names of the officers omitted, were mailed to members of the Armed Services Committee, civilian heads of the Defense Department and the officers themselves by Cole yesterday. He called the statements "pertinent" to the report the committee plans to draft in January.

Denfeld was displaced as Chief of Naval Operations after testifying before the House group that Pentagon treatment of the Navy under the unification law is endangering national security. He protested cutbacks in the Navy and undue emphasis on strategic bombing and the B-36.

Since Admiral Forrest P. Sherman succeeded him as Chief of Naval Operations, Denfeld has been on 60 days' leave. He has a choice of accepting Sherman's offer to make him commander of United States naval forces in European waters or retiring.

Cole said he deleted the names of the officers replying to his survey after the Secretary of the Navy issued orders that copies of all replies be sent to his office.

He said it would be "incorrect, unfair, and misleading and playing fast and loose with our national defense" to dismiss Denfeld's views as simply "sniping at unification."

Cole said his survey raised this question among others:

'Hearty' Concurrence

"Is the Congress quietly and supinely to acquiesce in the punishment of a witness for having given frank and honest testimony before a congressional committee that does not happen to coincide with the views of his superiors, military of civilian?"

Most of the naval officers' replies simply registered "hearty" concurrence in Denfeld's testimony, but one reply more strongly worded than the rest called the President's action "vindictive" and said in part:

"Since the President has seen fit to remove him (Denfeld) for such an expression of his honest views, I suggest that the Senate of the United States exercise caution in confirming Admiral Denfeld's relief as Chief of Naval Operations."

Mailed for Library Use

D.C. School Official Confiscates Copies of Soviet Publication

A District school official said yesterday he has confiscated "two or three dozen" copies of the slick-paper Soviet Information Bulletin mailed in recent months to high school libraries here.

Several unsolicited issues of the propaganda organ published by the Soviet Embassy here have been received at various District high schools since October according to Norman J. Nelson, first assistant superintendent of schools.

The principals promptly informed him of receipt of the magazines, Nelson added, and he directed that they be sent to his office and not placed in school libraries.

"There is a list of books and periodicals approved by the Board of Education for use in the libraries," Nelson explained.

"There is nothing on our racks that has not been approved, and the Soviet Bulletin is one of those which have not been approved. There are many others as well."

The magazine, which has the size and appearance of many American periodicals, praises life in the Soviet Union, with copious illustrations.

Nelson's disclosure followed a letter from Representative George H. Mahon (D., Tex.) to the U. S. Office of Education protesting distribution of the journal through

B-36s Evade All Defenses, 'A-Bomb' Cities

Training Program Of Air Force Aimed At Industrial Centers

NYHT News Service

High-flying Air Force B-36 "intercontinental" bombers of the Strategic Air Command, it was learned yesterday, have been "atom-bombing" America's principal industrial cities for months by day and night in a double-simulation training program.

Not only have the cities concerned been blissfully unaware of the unseen bombers' presence above them but Air Force leaders say that attempts to intercept the craft with the best available radar and fighter plane defenses have succeeded in only 1 percent of the raids. These phenomenal results, which the Air Force feels

Meyers Denied Parole, Told to Try Again Later

The application of former Maj. Gen. Bennett E. Meyers for parole from Lorton Reformatory was refused yesterday by the District Parole Board.

The action was taken "without prejudice to his right to resubmit his application after November 1, 1950."

This means the wartime chief of Air Force purchasing must serve at least another year of his 20-month to 5-year sentence for inducing a former business associate to lie to a Senate investigating committee about Meyers' business ventures while in service.

Free Unionists Demand 'Bread, Freedom, Peace'

London, Dec. 9 (U.P.).—The new International Confederation of Free Trade Unions ended its first congress tonight, calling on the world's workers to unite in a struggle for "bread, freedom and peace."

The confederation, formed here this week, is Western labor's answer to the Communist-dominated World Federation of Trade Unions.

U. S. Heedless Of Atom Peril, Groves Warns

Possible Threat of "Annihilation" Being Ignored, He Declares

New York, Dec. 9 (NYHT). Lieut. Gen. Leslie R. Groves (retired) warned the American Congress of Industry today that the Nation's real security is not sound, that the American people refuse to face the possible threat of atomic annihilation, and that the only safe way to regard the Russian atomic explosion is to presume they have an atomic bomb as good as the first one the United States exploded in New Mexico.

The mere threat that an atomic bomb might be used against this country means that a decision will have to be made on the question of decentralizing the Nation's industry, he said, but he added that this could not be accomplished as painlessly as "irresponsible planners" suggest. It would mean total disruption of the industrial economy and a lowered standard of living for the American people, he asserted.

The alternatives, he said, were either to keep industry intact and incur the risk of multiple destruction, or to partially decentralize by

British Warned Demand Exceeds Water Supply

London, Dec. 9 (U.P.).—The medical weekly, The Lancet, today warned Britons the country's supply of water cannot meet increasing demands.

The Lancet quoted reports by engineers that water demand is increasing at such a rate that by 1970 it will be double what it was in 1938.

"The population increases," The Lancet said. "Agriculture and industry working at high pressure need quantities of water. Housing schemes are pressed forward as fast as present conditions permit, new towns are springing up, greater domestic comfort and convenience are expected.

"Villages cry out for piped supplies; indoor sanitation and proper sewerage must follow; progressive municipalities nowadays ask Parliament for powers to furnish hot water to householders. The water is not there."

U. N. Control Voted Over Jerusalem; Strife Seen

By John G. Rogers

New York, Dec. 9 (NYHT). The United Nations General Assembly gave final approval tonight to the formal internationalization of Jerusalem, despite the fact that Israel and Jordan—military occupiers of the city—served notice that such a formula will be resisted and can lead to nothing but strife in the Holy City.

The final ballot was 38 to 14, with 7 abstentions. The victorious margin was built around a solid core of support from the Latin American, Arab and Soviet blocs.

A few minutes after the ballot, Israel Foreign Minister Moshe Sharet told newspapermen, "This is a dark day for the U. N. It has fallen victim to incredible lightheartedness. It has no way of implementing this decision."

In a sense, the fateful decision was taken against the will of the U. N. because, in view of the adamant attitudes of Israel and Jordan, many of the countries which supported internationalization conceded privately that the U. N. probably will fail in imposing a neutral regime over the city.

The opposition to tonight's decision, was led by the United States, Great Britain, Uruguay and Sweden. In debate prior to the voting, these countries demanded to know who was ready to send troops to Jerusalem to enforce the U. N. rule.

These questions, however, went unanswered, and the efforts of the minority to postpone final settlement of the problem another day were defeated by a large margin.

The U.N. resolution approved tonight would designate Jerusalem and the surrounding area, including Bethlehem, as permanent international property, in which Israel and Jordan would have no rights of sovereignty whatsoever.

The U.N. Trusteeship Council is directed to prepare a permanent regime for the city, and to proceed immediately with putting it into effect, regardless of what actions are taken by Israel or Jordan to block the U.N. program.

The U. N. Budget Committee already has approved an estimate that the venture will cost the U. N. more than eight million dollars in 1950. Israel has warned that even if the people of Jerusalem would accept a U. N. regime, the U. N. cost for the first year would be at least 34 million dollars.

British Laborites Win By-Election, Hail It as Omen

Bradford, England, Dec. 9 (U.P.).—The Labor Party today defeated Winston Churchill's Conservatives in the hotly contested by-election here and immediately hailed it as an omen of victory in next year's general election.

Official returns from yesterday's contest for the vacant parliamentary seat in the South Bradford District gave the Labor candidate, George Craddock, 23,335 votes to 19,313 for Conservative John L. Windle.

Conservatives found some comfort in the fact that the Labor Party's majority of 4022 was less than half the 9002 edge won by the Labor candidate in 1945. But it was the thirty-fifth straight time since 1945 that Labor has won a by-election when the seat to be filled had been a Laborite's.

Part of the Conservative gain was explained by the fact that the Liberals, who polled 6707 votes in 1945, had no regular candidate.

Kennan to Leave State Dept.; Serves as Policy Plan Chief

NYHT News Service

George F. Kennan, chief of policy-planning and counselor of the State Department, plans to leave Government service, it was learned yesterday, in order to study, to write and to make some money for his family.

The 45-year-old chief architect of American foreign policy for nearly two years intends to go in June, having been persuaded by Secretary Acheson to stay on until then.

He plans to take a research foundation position and to lead the academic life—in less expensive surroundings than those of Washington officialdom—for at least two years. He himself, according to friends, talks of "sabbatical leave" from the State Department, in which he has worked almost continuously since 1935.

Kennan, who has three children, received $13,500 a year until Congress raised his pay recently to $15,000. He is the latest of a series of key officials who have decided to leave Government posts for financial reasons.

Yale, Harvard and Columbia were reported unofficially to be among institutions which have offered Kennan the kind of post he wants. His research and study will be in the field of Slavic history and letters, and his writings, it was reported, on other than current subjects.

Current or not, anything he might write on the Soviet Union will find a ready market. It was Kennan's reports from Moscow, where he was stationed during the war, which brought him his job of policy planning chief.

Omits 'If Allies Insist'

Adenauer Virtually Demands German Unit in West's Army

Bonn, Germany, Dec. 9 (U.P.).—Chancellor Konrad Adenauer virtually demanded today that German armed forces be included in any Western European army.

The 73-year-old Chancellor pointed to Germany's position as the probable battleground of the Soviet Union and the Western countries if the cold war turns hot.

Mindful of bitter memories of France and other countries invaded twice in 25 years by German armies, Adenauer bluntly posed for the Western countries the question:

"Which is the greater danger—the Russian threat to the Western world or a German military contingent to operate with the forces of the other Western nations?"

Making it clear he did not propose a mere contribution of German troops to be merged with others, Adenauer answered his own question by saying:

"No one can expect the Germans to serve as legionnaires in foreign armies.

"The Germans should be represented in a European striking force with rights similar to those granted to other European nations."

It was the fourth time in a week Adenauer had mentioned, with increasing boldness, the possibility of partial German rearmament.

In his previous statements Adenauer mentioned arming of German troops with the qualifying phrase "if the Allies insist." There was no such qualification today.

Holiday Recess

Bridges Seen At Red Talks, Court Hears

San Francisco, Dec. 9 (U.P.).—Federal Judge George B. Harris, mindful that only 12 shopping days remain before Christmas, today recessed the Harry Bridges trial over the weekend to give its principals and jurors time for gift-buying.

Harris' pre-Christmas "cheer" for the courtroom came in the nineteenth day of the perjury-conspiracy trial as the Government questioned a one-time Communist who was secretary of the American Radio Telegraphers' Association in Portland, Ore., from 1934 to 1937.

Bridges and two fellow union officials, Henry Schmidt and J. R. Robertson, are charged with falsely testifying at Bridges' 1945 naturalization that the hawk-nosed longshore leader never was a Communist party member.

Kermit Charles Krolek, 38, now an electronics engineer and service manufacturer for a radio firm, testified:

1. That Bridges presided as chairman and Schmidt attended a Communist Party "fraction" meeting in Long Beach in May, 1936.

2. That he saw both men confer at length, in 1936, in local Red party headquarters at 121 Haight st., with Schomaker and William Schneidermann, a former party leader.

3. That he attended three Portland Communist meetings where he saw Bridges and Schmidt.

Krolek identified himself as a native of Canada, naturalized in May, 1919. In 1935 he joined the Community Party, held a card under the name of "Conrad" and remained a member about a year and a half.

He said his party membership was solicited by an A. T. Pringle, secretary of the Seattle local of the radio union.

"I had a feeling that failing to join would alienate me from receiving information that might be available to me," he said.

New York, Dec. 9 (A.P.).—Henry Julian Wadleigh testified today it was remotely possible he might have seen and turned over to Whittaker Chambers originals of 17 of the 47 secret State Department documents the Government claims Chambers received from Alger Hiss.

The admission came under cross-examination by the defense in its effort to prove its opening statement that "there was a thief in the trade agreement section (of the State Department) who had been stealing papers for two years and that man is Julian Wadleigh."

Wadleigh, former State Department economist, is a Government witness in the second perjury trial of Hiss. The economist earlier had testified that he had aided a prewar Soviet spy ring.

Cross-examined by Claude B. Cross, counsel for Hiss, Wadleigh identified the 17 documents, which, for the most part, deal with trade agreements or economic matters.

Hiss Denied Giving Papers

The perjury charge is based on a prosecution claim that Hiss lied when he denied to a Federal grand jury that he gave the secret papers to Chambers, admitted ex-courier for a spy ring and chief prosecution witness.

Cross first showed Wadleigh enlargements of microfilm photographs—the famous "pumpkin papers"—and asked the witness whether he remembered being shown those documents on direct examination. Wadleigh said he did remember them.

"And your testimony," Cross said, "is that you may have seen those documents in the State Department and might have given them either to Mr. (David) Carpenter (previously identified as a member of the spy ring) or Mr. Chambers."

"I would say that is remotely possible," Wadleigh said.

Previously Wadleigh picked out nine other documents, from the Baltimore exhibits produced by Chambers at a pretrial examination in a $75,000 libel suit brought against Chambers by Hiss.

Might Have Given Nine

Wadleigh said the nine Documents were ones he "might have seen" and "may have given" to Chambers.

Under redirect examination by Assistant United States Attorney Thomas F. Murphy, Wadleigh said, however, that he had no "independent recollection" of having passed the documents to Chambers.

Cross handed Wadleigh four of the 47 papers Chambers has testified he received from Hiss, and asked the economist if he had seen them before.

"I seem to have seen this one; it's an economic report on Manchukuo," the witness replied. He added hastily, "but whether this is the particular one or another, I don't know."

"So, if you say you may have seen that one—Baltimore exhibit No. 8, you would think you also may have seen Governments exhibits 5, 6 and 7, since they are related subjects," the defense attorney asked.

"Quite likely," said Wadleigh.

Eisler's Former Wife on Stand

Gerhart Eisler's former wife testified today that she and Hiss once argued over who would use Noel Field as a Communist underground tool.

Field, employed in the prewar State Department at the same time as Hiss, mysteriously disappeared in Europe a few weeks ago, presumably behind the iron curtain.

Mrs. Hede Massing, thrice-married former wife of Eisler, who fled from the United States a few months ago, testified at Hiss' second perjury trial after the defense blocked her appearance at the first.

There was no objection to her taking the stand this time.

The bespectacled woman said she met Hiss at Field's home in 1935, a year after she began working as a Communist Party sympathizer. She said she was not a party member.

At that time Mrs. Massing testified:

"I said to Mr. Hiss, 'I understand that you are trying to get Noel Field away from my organization into yours.'"

She said Hiss replied:

"So you are the famous girl that is trying to get Noel Field away from me."

Added Mrs. Massing:

"I said 'Yes.'"

Then, she said, Hiss told her:

"Well, we'll see who is going to win."

Mrs. Massing testified:

"I said, Mr. Hiss, you are competing with a woman."

Then, she testified, either she or Hiss remarked:

"Whoever is going to win, we are working for the same boss."

Court to Rule On 3 Issues For Gubitchev

New York, Dec. 9 (A.P.).—Valentin A. Gubitchev, Russian engineer fighting against going to trial on espionage charges, has been granted Federal court tests on three issues.

United States Judge Sylvester J. Ryan yesterday directed the Government prosecution to show cause:

1. Why Gubitchev's claim of diplomatic immunity from trial, already rejected in several quarters, should not be granted.

2. Why his trial should not be separated from that of his co-defendant, Judith Coplon, 28-year-old former Department of Justice employe.

3. Why the conspiracy count in his indictment should not be killed.

Arguments on these issues were set for Monday.

Gubitchev's counsel, Abraham I. Pomerantz, took note of Miss Coplon's previous conviction in asking the court for a separate trial.

The judge was told in an affidavit that Miss Coplon's conviction was "for an offense which embraces substantially the identical facts and circumstances which will be the issue in this proceeding."

"Defendant Coplon," the affidavit continued, "therefore, will stand before this court and its jury as a person already found guilty of a closely related crime, based on proof involving Gubitchev."

A Seafood Dinner?

Minneapolis, Dec. 9 (U.P.).—Mrs. Margaret Osborn filed suit for divorce here, charging her husband insisted on going out to dinner in his swimming trunks.

Thomas Family at Court . . .

Harris & Ewing

MOTHER AND SON—Mrs. J. Parnell Thomas and her son, Stiles Thomas, arrive at District Court, where the former Congressman from New Jersey was sentenced yesterday. Mrs. Thomas announced she will run for her husband's House seat

Thomas Gets 6-18 Months, $10,000 Fine

Harry C. Harper, New Jersey's liberal Republican commissioner of labor, will be nominated and elected by an overwhelming majority.

Republican Gov. Alfred Driscoll of New Jersey plans to call a special election as soon as the vacancy in the State's Seventh Congressional District is certified.

Driscoll "Surprised"

Reached at the executive offices in Trenton, N. J., Governor Driscoll would comment only "I'm surprised" at Mrs. Thomas' dramatic announcement.

Her possible entry into the race for her husband's vacated seat left New Jersey Republican leaders undismayed.

They are confident of victory for Harper in any event. The personable 6-foot-2 labor commissioner has wide labor as well as organization support.

Only known Democratic candidate for the seat is Salig L. Bendit, secretary to Representative Peter W. Rodino, jr., of New Jersey's Tenth Congressional District.

The district is normally so overwhelmingly Republican that the Democratic organization has little hopes of cracking it at this time. Republican politicians in New Jersey have expressed the belief that Mrs. Thomas can be prevailed upon to withdraw from what they regard as a campaign which would be extraordinarily difficult on her.

Mrs. Thomas Explains Stand

With tears in her eyes, Mrs. Thomas told reporters she was running because.

"I have seen Parnell Thomas maligned and perscuted ever since he became the Chairman of the Committee on Un-American Activities. They have ruined his health and now they have done this to my husband. He has paid the price for vigilance."

She said she would ask the voters of New Jersey's Seventh District to continue his fight "against subversive influences" by electing her. As Thomas' wife, she said, "I can do no less."

Thomas resigned his $15,000-a-year House seat to which he was elected seven times just before sentence was imposed by Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff.

Gets Pay Until January 2

Since the resignation becomes effective on January 2 he will remain on the Government's payroll for the rest of the month, thus receiving nearly $1000 pay during the first three and one half weeks in jail.

It is known that Thomas is seriously embarrassed financially.

Asked if Thomas could pay the Government's $10,000 fine, William H. Collins, his attorney replied, "that's the $64 question."

Thomas could take the pauper's oath and serve an additional 30 days in jail in place of the fine. He must serve six months at least of his sentence, and then may be released only upon decision of the parole board.

The sentencing of the short, bald 54-year-old former lawmaker was short, undramatic and controlled.

Plea for Leniency

Before Federal Judge Alexander Holtzoff started to impose sentence, Thomas' attorney asked for judicial leniency in a low vice and almost routine manner.

He told the court that Thomas was esteemed by people in all walks of life and asked that "penal servitude" not be imposed.

"The man that stands before you is broken in body and spirit," Collins said. Thomas has had several stomach operations.

But Judge Holtzoff, grave-faced, said that Thomas' particular position as chairman of the Un-American Activities Committee imposed upon him an especial responsibility for upright dealing.

'Not Pleasant,' Holtzoff Says

As Thomas, his hands clasped behind him, stood immobile, Judge Holtzoff said:

"The duty the court must perform is not, of course, a pleasant one. . . .

"Counsel for the defendant has presented to the court numerous letters to the effect that in World War I the defendant rendered splendid service in the defense of his country, and further that he served his country well as a member and as chairman of the House Committee on Un-American Activities. There is no doubt that much good work was done by that committee, in which the defendant participated.

"These matters, however, cannot properly be considered as mitigating circumstances so far as the present charge is concerned.

"In fact, as a member of the committee, the defendant owed a duty to his country to show an example of upright dealings and true Americanism . . .

"The court feels that in addition to a term of imprisonment, which will be imposed, the defendant should be fined in an amount which will fairly reimburse the Government for the money that has been extricated from it by means of the illegal scheme charged in the indictment."

Then Judge Holtzoff said the sum illegally taken from the Government appeared to be in excess of $8000.

Solemnly he intoned that it was the judgment of the court that Thomas serve not less than six or more than 18 months in a Federal penitentiary and be fined $10,000.

The court recommended that the penitentiary at Danbury be selected. This, as is customary, was evidently chosen for the convenience of the family in visiting Thomas.

Then Thomas was led through the door of the courtroom by United States marshals, quietly waving goodby to his wife.

Canada to Provide Isotopes To Aid Scientific Research

By Alfred Friendly
Post Reporter

Canada yesterday joined a program previously undertaken by the United States and Great Britain to make available radioactive isotopes for use in scientific research and medical treatment.

The Canadian "tracer" materials will come from the atomic reactor at Chalk River, Ontario.

Dr. Kenneth S. Pitzer, director of the United States Atomic Energy Commission research division, said the availability of the Canadian isotopes "will undoubtedly broaden the use of these valuable materials and stimulate research progress."

He explained that their value, in supplementing the present AEC isotope distribution program, lay in the fact that they are more highly concentrated with radioactive atoms than any distributed heretofore.

The Chalk River pile is such, he declared, that a given amount of stable material, inserted into it and treated, can be "souped up" to a high degree of concentrated radioactivity.

Thus, in certain research, the isotope will be more readily and easily traced as it moves through living organisms or materials.

In addition, he said, the medically and relatively inexpensive substance, radiocobalt, can be built up in Canada to concentrations where it can have something of the effect of rare and costly radium, in the treatment of cancer and other diseases.

In making the offer to distribute the isotopes, Canada is apparently adhering to the same restrictions which the United States has placed on its program.

The isotopes are offered freely to scientists of all countries but with the proviso that they are used in laboratories that are open to the inspection of all qualified scientists, no matter what their nationality, and that the results of their use are made available to the Canadian atomic energy organization.

This is substantially the same condition that is attached to the use of the isotopes distributed from the United States AEC's Oak Ridge, Tenn. pile.

The proviso would operate, if necessary, to prevent the shipment of isotopes to Russia and Iron Curtain countries, since their laboratories would almost certainly not be opened to the eyes of foreign scientists.

Actually, however, the question of shipping isotopes to eastern Europe has never arisen, since none of the Russian-bloc countries have ever requested any.

Truman's Message To Push 'Fair Deal'

By Insurance Man

Tax Boost Asked for U. S. Projects

By the United Press

Robert B. Patrick, vice president of the Bankers Life Co., Des Moines, Iowa, yesterday urged an immediate hike in Federal taxes to pay for any new public programs so the taxpayers can judge if they are worth their cost.

The insurance company executive told a joint congressional economic subcommittee the Government should not finance costly plans, like those now in effect for agriculture and housing, unless they are essential to national economic stability.

He also called for stable Federal budgets and tax rates that would encourage private investors.

Follows Whippel

Patrick testified following the appearance by Oliver M. Whippel, financial vice president of the Mutual Life Insurance Co. of New York.

Whippel said high costs and the element of risk made it "difficult, if not impossible" for insurance companies or other big investing institutions to supply the capital needed for small or new business.

He said this need might best be met by "some type of organization through which the risks involved may be pooled or shared by many investors." To be successful, he said, such a venture probably would require "some benefits from tax legislation" to "provide a reasonable return."

Needs Shown

Committee Chairman Joseph P. O'Mahoney (D., Wyo.) observed, as the subcommittee recessed for the weekend, that the hearings have shown the need for a "definite program to improve methods of access by small business to equity capital," and for "some form of tax reform to provide incentive for investment" in common stocks.

O'Mahoney said Congress could use "practical suggestions" for paring Government expenses, and added that "criticism of Government policies, couched in generalities, adds nothing to the information of Congress."

Key West, Fla., Dec. 9 (AP).—President Truman got the ammunition today for an election year battle with the Congressional "economy bloc" in the form of a budget calling for higher taxes or a fresh supply of Government "red ink."

Budget Director Frank Pace said after a conference with Mr. Truman on the proposed 1951 fiscal year spending program that without additional taxes, he could not see how the budget could be balanced.

Pace wouldn't say—but other Presidential advisers did privately—that Mr. Truman will ask a hike in taxes on corporation profits.

The prospect of this request laid the grounds for a clash with members of both parties who have been demanding tax cuts and sharp curtailment on Government spending instead.

Eisenhower Watched

Meanwhile, some of Mr. Truman's associates disclosed that he is convinced Gen. Dwight D. Eisenhower is actively campaigning for the presidency.

Eisenhower said in New York that a great many Americans have lost respect for the virtues of thrift and independence in seeking the "illusion called security." He added, "we want to wear fine shirts, have caviar and champagne" when "we should be eating hot dogs and beer."

In pursuing the theme that many Americans are chasing after an "illusion called security," Eisenhower said yesterday at Galveston, Tex.:

"If all that Americans want is security, they can go to prison.

"But if an American wants to preserve his dignity and his equality as a human being, he must not bow his neck to any dictatorial government."

Presidential Bid

Mr. Truman, intimates say, has told them he considers Eisenhower's speechmaking a bid for the Republican presidential nomination.

Intimates disagree on whether Mr. Truman will run again himself, but say unanimously he has not disclosed to anybody just what he will do.

Budget Director Pace met with reporters covering Mr. Truman's three-week vacation immediately after an hour's conference with Mr. Truman at the temporary White House.

Pace flew in last night for final decisions by the President on the key items of defense spending, foreign aid and reclamation and power funds.

$45 Billion Top

He said the budget for the year starting next July 1 will not exceed 45 billion dollars, but he said no final figure had been arrived at. Defense and foreign aid comprise half the budget, he indicated.

This year's spending, he said, is estimated at $43,500,000,000 and its prospective deficit at $5,500,000,000.

The President has promised a tight budget, which he said Congress wouldn't be able to cut.

And, he has said he knows no way of wiping out the deficit except by raising taxes.

Pace would give no estimate of prospective revenue for the fiscal year 1951 on the basis of the present tax law which is expected to yield 38 billion dollars this year.

David K. Niles, administrative assistant who handles minority matters for the President, has arrived to help with the drafting of demands for civil rights proposals and the liberalized displaced persons bill. Both will be a part of the January "State of the Union" message.

The President, it was made clear here, will reiterate his demands for a "Fair Deal" program in his message.

The President, it was disclosed, will renew his insistence upon passage of:

1. His civil rights program.
2. A liberalized displaced persons bill.
3. A national health program.
4. Legislation expanding social security benefits.
5. The Brannan farm program.

Darby in Senate, Intends to Labor For Agriculture

By The Associated Press

Harry Darby, Kansas' new Republican Senator, visited the Capitol yesterday and said his chief interest will be in serving agriculture.

"What is good for agriculture is good for Kansas," he told reporters he met in the office of the late Senator Reed (R., Kan.). "What is good for Kansas is good for the Nation."

Darby was appointed last week by Gov. Frank Carlson to take Reed's place.

Darby said he does not expect to be put on the Agriculture Committee because many Senators seek that assignment and he has no chance under seniority rules.

Asked if he expects to seek reelection next year to the Senate, Darby replied:

"I have always said that I wouldn't be a candidate for public office. My appointment to the Senate hasn't changed my plans."

Coffee Price Rise Laid to 'Psychology'

By the United Press

State Department expert Robert B. Elwood said yesterday that "psychology" is largely to blame for the recent increase in retail coffee prices.

He said he has no reason to believe the producing countries have conspired to force up American prices.

Elwood, who was recalled from the United States Embassy at Rio de Janeiro to testify on the coffee situation, made the statement to a Senate Agriculture Subcommittee investigating the "spread" between farm and retail food prices.

In another price development, W. H. Vanderploeg, president of the Kellogg Cereal Co., Battle Creek, Mich., told the Senators that farmers received three times as much for their grain last year as they did in 1940. But his firm's profit per package, he said, is still about the same.

Gillette Quoted

Committee Chairman Guy M. Gillette (D., Iowa) said he has heard nothing to shake his belief that speculators have "practically doubled the price of coffee in recent weeks."

Elwood didn't agree. He said nature began setting the stage for the recent price increase last summer when drought denuded most of the coffee trees in Sao Paulo, most important producing area in Brazil, which supplies half the world's coffee exports.

Then, about the same time, he said, the Brazilian government sold the last of its surplus coffee stocks which once totalled six million bags.

"The final disappearance of this coffee (into the world market) in August of this year had a strong psychological effect on the market," Elwood said.

He said the Brazilian drought was broken in October. Trees that had not been damaged bloomed heavily, he said, but those that had been denuded "set only a light crop of fruit."

No Increase

Elwood said it now appears that Sao Paulo's 1950 crop will not be any larger than this year's small yield. If Brazil continues to ship coffee at present rates, he added, its supplies will be gone before the new crop is harvested next July.

He said there was a "natural tendency" to hold coffee off the market once it became apparent there would be a small crop this year.

"Exporters raised the price by bidding against one another," he said. "In one weekend, the price jumped 50 percent. A sort of panic developed in the coffee trade."

Gillette asked if Elwood knew of any agreement between the big coffee growing countries to "control the market."

"I do not," he replied.

"Do you think these countries are on a complete competitive basis for the American coffee market?" the Senator persisted.

"I do, sir," Elwood responded.

Record Total of D. C. Idle Use Up Benefits

The number of unemployed who have used up their jobless benefits rights will set a record this year, in the District and has spurted in Maryland, Virginia and West Virginia.

Director C. A. Wharton of the District Unemployment Compensation Board said more persons exhausted their rights to weekly benefits checks during 1949 than in any previous year.

He attributed this to the "trimming down of wartime employment staffs in both Government and business here." He said businessmen are "holding on to their higher skilled personnel and are letting out the less productive."

The Labor Department Bureau of Employment Security reported 1497 persons exhausted unemployment benefits in the first quarter of 1949; 2044 in the second and 2148 in the third. Unemployed are eligible in the District for a maximum of $20 a week for a period of 20 weeks, depending on how much they earned previously.

In Virginia, the rise was even sharper, reaching a total of 28,743 for the first nine months of 1949. Maryland's total rose to 21,114 and West Virginia had 12,392.

Fred Z. Hetzel, director of the local office of the United States Employment Service, said unemployment was 4000 higher, as of December 1, this year than last year. He pointed out, however, that holiday periods create large variations in the labor forces and until next year no clear trend may be shown.

Sen. Thomas Still Miffed At Sweden

SENATOR ELMER THOMAS
Went in his own pocket

By The Associated Press

Senator Elmer Thomas (D., Okla) said yesterday that cocktail parties, luncheons and other incidental entertainment for a senatorial party that toured Europe "cost me more than $1500 out of my own pocket."

He said one cocktail party in London for the ambassador and members of the touring party cost him $150.

Thomas told a news conference he was "not complaining" about that but just wanted the American people to "understand there is no profit in these inspections."

The Oklahoma Senator headed a Senate Appropriations Subcommittee which has just completed an on-the-spot check in Europe on how United States foreign aid funds are being spent.

While the group was abroad, Thomas complained about what he called lack of hospitality and cooperation in Sweden.

Still miffed at the Swedes, he told his news conference:

"They did not do a thing discourteous, they just did not do a thing."

Thomas added these new complaints:

1. A Swedish night club, "where champagne bottles were popping like machine guns in a shooting gallery," barred a United States official because he lacked "a white or black tie." He said he did not remember who the official was.

2. News stories and editorials in a Swedish "Communist paper" reflected the "generally suspicious and unfriendly attitude" of Sweden for the Senators.

As for the ruffled feelings resulting from his criticism of Sweden, Thomas said:

"Not being a diplomat, I probably said some things I should not have said but nobody has disputed the truth of what I said."

Romanians Force Pilot To Fly Them to Belgrade

Belgrade, Dec. 9 (NYHT).—A Romanian passenger plane on a flight between two Romanian cities was commandeered today by four passengers who forced the pilot to fly it to Yugoslavia and land at Belgrade.

It arrived at Zemun airport this morning with one dead man aboard, according to reports by Marshal Tito's press office.

The dead man was a Romanian militiaman who was on the flight. Four passengers—there were 15 in all—overpowered him and shot him with his own weapon. They then took control of the aircraft.

The Yugoslavs did not reveal the identity of the passengers, but the press office hinted more than four expressed a wish to remain here rather than return to Romania.

B-36s Evade All Defenses

amply justify its long-criticized plans for the B-36 as an unescorted overseas bomber, have been supplied to the interservice weapons systems evaluation board. The board is scheduled to come up with an official appraisal of the B-36 jet fighter issue by the end of this month.

The "intercontinental" bombardment training program is being conducted under Lieut. Gen. Curtis E. LeMay, head of SAC, who testified earlier this year before the House Armed Services Committee that the B-36 was capable of round-the-clock raids from present American bases on targets anywhere in the world without serious losses from enemy fighters. This view was challenged before the same committee by Navy critics of the B-36. General LeMay's current training program is said to have been launched to establish the soundness of his claims.

[General LeMay told The Washington Post last night by telephone from Offutt Base, Omaha, Nebr., that Washington was not one of the target cities. He declined to comment on possibilities of defense of this city against a similar raid by a foreign power, in the light of experience in the SAC training program.]

Radar Jet Interception

Both Air Force and Navy jet fighters and radar interception equipment have been used in the theoretical effort to shoot down General LeMay's big raiders. In these tests, a successful interception is defined as one in which the fighters, whether by visual means of through radar "vectoring" from the ground, are brought into position where their guns would become effective against the bomber before it passes over its objective.

Each bomber is required to fly a succession of courses equalling the mileage it would have to cover in a real war with an overseas foe. Their accuracy over the targets is said by the Air Force to be "better than we ever claimed before."

cials who spoke at a community forum sponsored by the League of Women Voters of Montgomery County at the Brook Farm restaurant, Brookville rd., and Raymond st., Chevy Chase, Md. More than 200 members and guests turned out for the forum and the organization's annual dinner.

2800 New Jobs

Springboard for the county planning drive, it was made clear, is the new medical center under construction at the United States Public Health Institute at Bethesda.

Albert Siepert, executive officer of the Health Institute, said the center is expected to bring eventual employment of 4500 persons, 2800 more than at present. He set no date for 4500, but did say that employment will be 2700 by July, 1952, the scheduled opening date.

He predicted that in three years, the present county school burden from institute employes' families will be more than double, to 1100, and by 1960, it will increase to 2600 compared with the present 500.

Of the 2600, he estimated, 1600 will be in the Bethesda-Chevy Chase area and 1000 elsewhere in the county.

Siepert also urged that a sizable hotel be constructed in one of the county business district to accommodate visiting scientists.

He said it should charge moderate rates.

Warren Browning, Commissioner of the Washington-Suburban Sanitary Commission, said the new health center will require 3,600,000 gallons of water a day. The added facilities made necessary by this load will cost $500,000, he estimated, for which the Federal Government will pay.

Frederick P. Lee, president of the county council, said "the camel has his nose under our tent. Can we keep Montgomery County to ourselves?" He said that $1,300,000 worth of taxes are lost to the county each year on tax-free Government-owned properties in the county which in private ownership would be on tax rolls.

Mrs. James V. Bennett, league head, presided.

West Europe To Take Steps To Aid Trade

Paris, Dec. 9 (NYHT).—French, Italian and Benelux economic officials agreed tonight on steps to ease the movement of goods and capital within the group.

The agreement, first fruit of talks that were started soon after the demand by Economic Cooperation Administrator Paul G. Hoffman for western European "integration," was hammered out by experts of the five countries in meetings here. Their report will now be submitted to the five governments.

Contents of the report were kept an official secret, but it was learned the agreement covers these principal points:

A proposal to remove currency restrictions on current transactions within the group. This would mean, for example, that a French firm purchasing goods in the Netherlands would be able to obtain the necessary foreign exchange without special formalities.

Flexible Exchange

Flexibility in the exchange rates of the five countries, within the limit of their commitments to the International Monetary Fund. The rates would be modified by common agreement in case of fundamental unbalance, and a deciding factor would be the play of supply and demand.

Recommendation for a stabilization pool as a cushion against temporary fluctuations in reserves of the five countries. It would be created with the resources of the participants, plus unused drawing rights and perhaps some of the 150-million-dollar pool set aside from this year's ECA appropriation.

Movement of capital would be facilitated among the five, although it would not be completely uncontrolled.

More liberal rules would be established for currency movement, including complete freedom on the amount of money that might be imported and a higher limit than at present on the amount that might be taken out.

Less Agreement

Agreement in the trade field was said to be less impressive, with reports that the experts had recommended a 60 percent reduction in restrictions on imports from within the five-nation group. At the same time, the governments would undertake to avoid any great increase in tariffs to make up for the quota reduction.

One major question remained unanswered—the relation of Germany to the five-nation group. Admission of the Germans was proposed at one point by the Dutch, but reported opposition from the French and the Italians resulted in a decision to postpone action now.

Civitans to Meet

The quarterly district council meeting of the Chesapeake District-Civitan International will be held Saturday and Sunday at the Alexander Hotel, Hagerstown, Md. All presidents and secretaries from the 18 Civitan clubs in this district are expected to attend. Navy to Add 2 Cruisers to Pacific Fleet

By The Associated Press

The Navy announced plans yesterday to strengthen its Pacific forces, altering a three-year shift of power to the Atlantic.

Within the next few weeks it plans to transfer the heavy cruiser Rochester and the anti-aircraft cruiser Juneau from the Atlantic to the Pacific Fleet.

The announcement called the transfer a necessary adjustment between the fleets due to laying up of other cruisers recently, and a move to "equalize cruiser division strength."

The transfer was announced only two days after Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, Chief of Naval Operations, had expressed concern over "weakening" of the Pacific Fleet.

The balance of United States Naval strength has been shifted in the last three years from the Pacific to the Atlantic. Whereas three years ago major ships in the Pacific numbered 165 compared with 150 in the Atlantic, today Pacific Fleet strength is about 85 major combat vessels as against 160 in the Atlantic.

The Juneau, based at Norfolk, had been scheduled to be laid up, but Sherman changed the orders.

The Navy said the forthcoming transfer will give both fleets each three cruiser divisions. Two ships now normally make up a division.

As cruiser division five, Juneau and Rochester will be based at Long Beach, Calif. The Juneau is to sail from Norfolk December 29, the Rochester from Newport, R. I., January 5.

The Navy said an Atlantic Fleet cruiser, the Columbus, which recently completed 14 months duty in European waters, is being assigned as permanent flag ship of the commander for the Eastern Atlantic and Mediterranean.

The Columbus is due to arrive by morning in New York, after which it goes to Boston for a major overhaul.

5,000,000 Go to Polls In Australia

Sydney, Australia (Saturday), Dec. 10 (U.P.).Australia's five million voters went to the polls today with world-wide attention focused on their choice between British-type socialism and an opposition pledged to free enterprise.

The polls opened at 8 a. m. (5 p. m. EST Friday) and will close at 8 p. m. (5 a. m. EST Saturday). Tallying of the votes was expected to be completed by midnight Australian time (9 a. m. EST Saturday).

Upward of 95 percent of the nation's voters were expected to cast ballots. Voting is compulsory in this country for everyone over 21, and nonvoting is punishable by fines up to $5.

Manila Puts Controls On Foreign Exchange

Manila (Saturday), Dec. 10 (U.P.). The Philippines Central Bank today announced imposition of foreign exchange controls, effective immediately. All transactions in gold and foreign exchange will be subject to license. The move follows that of last month imposing rigid controls on imports.

Czechs Oust Party Organ's Top Editor

Prague, Dec. 9 (U.P.).—The official Communist newspaper, Rude Pravo, confirming predictions of a December purge, today announced that 49-year-old Vilem Novy has been ousted as editor in chief.

The announcement coincided with reports that several "Anglo-American spies" masquerading as card-carrying party members have been arrested.

Novy was the second top-ranking Communist to be purged this week. The other was Evzen Loebel, former Deputy Vice Minister of Foreign Trade, whose office revealed he was "no longer in the employ of the ministry."

Both Novy and Loebel were members of the so-called "London group"—Communists who spent the war in London. Novy was known to be a close friend of Foreign Minister Vladimir Clementis, only member of the "London group" now in the cabinet.

Reds' Purge Extends To West German Party

Duesseldorf, Germany, Dec. 9 (U.P.).— A ruthless purge of Communist parties that is sweeping Eastern Europe extended to Western Germany today.

The important Ruhr branch of the West German Communist Party anounced suspension of its state chairman and dismissed the deputy editor of its official newspaper. Both were charged with ideological sins.

Berlin Reds Abruptly Oust Tito Mission

Berlin, Dec. 9 (U.P.).—Communist-controlled East German police held members of the Yugoslav Military Mission here under house arrest for 17 hours today and then forced them to evacuate their Soviet-zone homes without personal belongings.

Twenty of Marshal Tito's military and consular officials and their families living in East Germany fled to the British sector of Berlin tonight, leaving behind only one official, who was ill.

They reported they had started moving furniture and other belongings into trucks after the "blockade" was lifted, but were stopped by police who insisted on seeing "proof of ownership" of every item they moved.

"Some of the things we brought from Yugoslavia," a spokesman said, "and naturally we didn't carry around purchase slips. One doesn't usually keep such slips, anyway. We were forced to leave practically everything behind."

The three Western Powers had protested to the Soviets against the East German police action in ordering the Yugoslavs out of East Germany.

The Yugoslav mission was released from house arrest at 1:30 p. m. today (8:30 a. m. EST) and told to get out of the Soviet sector by December 17.

Up to 20 Years

10 Russians Given Terms In Yugoslavia

Belgrade, Dec. 9 (NYHT).—Premier Marshal Tito's government sentenced to prison and hard labor today 10 White Russians—all Soviet citizens—after convicting them on various charges of wartime collaboration with the Nazis and postwar espionage for the Soviet Union in Yugoslavia.

The leading defendant, Father Alexei Krishko, 54, a Russian orthodox priest of Sarajevo, was sentenced to 11 years and 6 months. The sentences were pronounced by the Yugoslav Communist Peoples Court in Sarajevo following a six-day trial.

The significance of the court's decision was seen by observers in the fact that Yugoslavia has taken the bull by the horns and imprisoned the defendants—three of them for 10 years or more—despite earlier blasts by Moscow that Soviet citizens were persecuted in this country by the anti-Kremlin Tito regime.

It was the first conviction in any Communist state of a group of men and women on charges of spying for the Kremlin. The defendants all became Soviet citizens about 1947.

The longest sentence, 20 years, was given to Arsen Boremovic, 55, former deputy state prosecutor in Sarajevo for the Croatian pro-Nazi government during the war. Besides collaboration he was convicted on the charge that he "entered the Soviet intelligence service in 1947 and supplied information of an espionage character."

Anatolij Poliakov, 38, an engineer, received 10 years. He was convicted of collaboration and of furnishing the Russians with data "about the construction of large objects in our country." The other sentences ranged from four to six years.

The four youngest defendants, 23 to 33 years old, for whom the public prosecutor pleaded clemency on grounds that they were "young men" who were victimized by the Soviet Embassy in Belgrade, received terms of four and a half to five and six years.

German Offered Haven in U. S. For Saving GIs

Frankfurt, Germany, Dec. 9 (U.P.). Hans Georg Leist, a former German army courier, sent an air-mail letter tonight to an Angola, N. Y., woman accepting her offer of haven for him and his family.

Mrs. Marc H. Gates of Angola, who lost a son in World War II, offered Leist a home when she read of his search for eight American fliers he saved from execution. Her son, a corporal, died in a plane crash in Idaho.

Leist's appeal to help find the fliers appeared in the Stars and Stripes here. Mrs. Gates read of it in a Buffalo newspaper.

Safeway and Union Still Deadlocked

A fourth mediation session will be held this morning in a Government effort to prevent a threatened shutdown of Safeway stores in this area Monday.

The chain store, negotiating a new contract with the AFL butchers, has demanded a guarantee of two weeks' notice should the meat cutters decide to strike. Otherwise, the management said, it would close down 150 stores in this area, rather than be caught by a quickie strike with thousands of pounds of perishable goods on hand.

The union has turned own a compuany offer to increase pay 6 cents an hour.

Negotiators for the union and management met for the third time in two days yesterday with Federal Conciliation Commissioner James Holden and agreed to meet again this morning with Harry E. Poole, international representative of the union, in attendance.

Groves Warns of U. S. Perils better placement of new plants. He advocated the latter course.

General Groves spoke at the National Association of Manufacturers' fifty-fourth congress at the Waldorf-Astoria. The congress concluded its three-day session tonight with a dinner at which Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, Phillipine Ambassador to the United States and president of the United Nations General Assembly, reviewed the accomplishments of the U. N. session which is about to be ended. Industry speakers and authorities in other fields also addressed the congress.

At the finish of General Groves' speech, he made a cautious reference to the current Congressional committee investigation in Washington, and afterward slightly amplified his remarks for reporters. He said he didn't want a "whitewash" investigation. In his address, he said:

"The fundamental thing that ought to be considered today is that we must have confidence in our Government.

"We must have confidence in the system of government. We must know that things have been conducted properly in the past; that if they were not conducted properly, we must know why they weren't and who was responsible—not for the sake of raking up ghosts from the past, but so that when the future comes, or the present, the people now in power will not make the same mistakes that were made in the past, if any were made; and so that we will continue to be a Nation and not have happen to us what has happened to Germany, Japan, and other nations in recent years."

To the reporters, he said later: "No American citizen can ever want a whitewash. We all want to know, on matters of vital importance to the United States, that the core is sound as well as the surface."

The former head of the Manhattan project spoke before a technical section of the Congress, and prefaced his main message with a review of atomic developments since 1946, and the future peacetime outlook. He predicted that atomic power could not be made feasible for at least another 10 years, and even then it would entail such enormous plants and technical staffs as to make it extremely costly.

Naval vessels probably will be powered by atomic energy some day, he said, but he ruled out the likelihood that such energy could be used practically for powering airplanes unless perhaps, for such ambitious objectives as "going to the moon." Its uses for medical research are a matter of present record, but he expressed doubt that radioactive isotopes would have much value for medical treatment techniques. Their best uses, he predicted, would be in studying the mysteries of plant life. As to whether they will prove useful in industrial chemical processes, he said this was yet unexplored.

The development of primary interest, General Groves continued, was the Russian explosion. Concerning that, he said "the only proper thing to assume is that the Russians now have a bomb—the equivalent of what we had in New Mexico in July of 1945; one that not necessarily can be dropped from the air, but if placed near the ground can be exploded and can give off all of the results of an atomic explosion."

He pictured what the simple threat of a bomb might produce in the way of a panic in New York City if such a threat became actual and immediate news.

Turning to the question of decentralization of industry, he said "it would mean a complete lowering of the standard of living of our people; it would mean not that we scatter our plants throughout the country, but that we actually break down the system that we have."

It would mean, for example, an automobile plant capable of not turning out the number of cars that General Motors or Ford or Chrysler does, but one capable of, say, a thousand cars a year—but turning out everything going into those cars. It could not buy wheels from some other company; it could not buy its fuel pumps, as was testified earlier this year, I believe—that 84 percent are bought from the same company."

Asserting that decentralization would mean the end of big plants and present concentration of industry entails potential targets that can be wiped out numbers at a time by a single bomb, he suggested as a solution that future plants be kept small and at a safe distance from other plants.

50 Families Hungry in Mining Town

Shallmar, Md., Dec. 9 (U.P.).—A grim picture of suffering and near-starvation came to light today in this tiny western Maryland town, blighted by the standstill of its only industry—coal mining.

J. Paul Andrick, principal of a 50-pupil elementary school, reported he had sent one girl home when she appeared faint with hunger. His investigation disclosed her family "has literally been living on apples for two weeks."

Other pupils were forced to stay home for lack of clothing, he said. Virtually the sole means of employment for the 50-odd families of Shallmar was the small Wolf Den coal mine.

"There is no place for the men to turn," said Charles L. Briner of the department of employment security at Oakland, the Garrett County seat. "There has been no work since March and there was very little in 1948."

Jesse Walker, mine superintendent, said a lack of orders caused the company to go on "broken time"—two or three work days a week—in August, 1948. For the same reason, it shut down altogether last March 31. Between 85 and 90 miners were thrown on relief. Unemployment compensation ran out after six months.

Some men have gone to West Virginia mines as far as 90 miles away to get three days work a week. A very few others, Briner said, found jobs on road construction, but this is being curtailed. Generally, the men don't have enough money to go elsewhere, and couldn't get the kind of jobs they would need to support the families left behind.

Meanwhile veterans' and other organizations in nearby communities teamed up to gather relief supplies. The County Commissioners raised funds for school children's lunches. But Andrick, who had made a public appeal for help, pointed out that many families were destitute and that conditions "may get worse before they get better."

Briner said Andrick had made himself personally responsible for the five children of one poverty-stricken family, but Andrick didn't speak about that. The principal said relief efforts now under way may brighten Chritmas for Shallmar's unemployed families, but added: "It won't be like the Christmases they've been used to."

Walker didn't explain why the Wolf Den mine couldn't get orders, but said there are no immediate prospects for reopening. Other western Maryland mines were reported in awkward circumstances also, though most are running on the three-day work week.

Most coal workings in the area are "marginal operations." That means they are either so small, or their coal is of such poor quality, or so hard to get at, that they can't compete effectively with larger-scale mines. They don't get too many orders unless coal is generally short or prices are high.

New Blood Factor May Cut Rh Danger

By N. S. Haseltine
Post Reporter

Boston blood experts are on the trail of a potent factor in women's blood which saves stricken babies born of Rh-incompatible parents, it was reported here yesterday.

When it is finally isolated, said Dr. Louis K. Diamond, of Boston's Children's Hospital, it may prove valuable against still other conditions which develop in infants shortly after birth.

Dr. Diamond spoke at a closing day sectional meeting of the third annual Clinical Session of the American Medical Association, at the National Guard Armory.

He discussed the latest methods of diagnosing erythroblastosis, a blood malady which occasionally affects infants born of ill-mated blood parents. Most successful treatment to date is an almost complete exchange of the baby's blood using whole blood transfusions.

Saved More Babies

Less than a month ago, Dr. Diamond disclosed the statistical suspicion that women's blood probably contained a protective factor because it was saving far more erythroblastotic babies than men's blood in the exchange transfusions.

Yesterday Dr. Diamond told doctors here that a new series of 54 cases, in which female blood was used exclusively in the transfusions, had confirmed the initial suspicion. There were three deaths in the new series, all "exceptionally poor risks," he said.

"We have not isolated the element," he said, "but we hope to soon. It looks now like it may be in a certain plasma component of the blood, but we're not certain yet."

Dr. Diamond told reporters he'd rather not identify "other conditions" of early infant life which might benefit from new treatments once the blood element is found. However, many congenital defects have been blamed by some medical scientists on Rh-blood incompatability.

Found in Monkey

The Rh factor is a blood constituent first shown in rhesus monkeys (hence the name) and then identified in human blood. Those who have it are classed as Rh-postive; the minority 15 percent who don't are Rh-negative. Occasionally, babies born of an Rh-negative woman married to an Rh-positive man have severe blood damage, the condition called erythroblastosis or hemolytic disease.

Until the recently discovery of the new protective element in women's blood, as many as one in five erythroblastotic infants died despite the blood exchange. Now, by using women's blood only, Dr. Diamond said, "we should be able to save all, or almost all of these babies."

Since the initial statistical study last July, which showed up the significant difference in mortality rates of babies completely transfused with women's or men's blood, it has become standard procedure throughout the country to use only women's blood.

Causes Diabetes

Miracle Drug In Arthritis Carries Peril

The case of a 10-year-old New York girl was disclosed yesterday as dramatic proof of one of the drawbacks of the new miracle drugs in arthritis—they may produce diabetes.

The new drugs are cortisone and ACTH and both have accomplished apparent miracles in patients knotted by crippling arthritis. The 10-year-old girl was just such a case, according to a New York University-Bellevue Medical Center scientific team which reported its experiences with the new drugs to the New Jersey Rheumatism Society.

Last August her arthritis was so bad she could not get out of bed and her weight had dropped from 70 to 40 pounds. She could not even close her arthritis-stiffened fists. Then she became one of the lucky few to whom the insignificant supply of cortisone and ACTH has been made available. Her joints returned to normal, her appetite returned, she gained weight.

Arthritis Returns

Her blood sugar—the telltale sign of diabetes—also rose. Cortisone was stopped, the diabetes disappeared but the arthritis returned.

ACTH was started. The arthritis was conquered but the diabetes reappeared. They stopped ACTH. Away went the diabetes, back came the arthritis. Finally, a balance was attained so that she had mild arthritis and mild diabetes.

An endocrinologist yesterday said an increase in blood sugar was noted in the first reports on ACTH a few years ago and has been borne out in subsequent studies on both ACTH and cortisone.

When Pancreas Fails

He said it was not known, of course, whether all the patients had a predisposition to diabetes, usually caused by a failure of the pancreas to secrete insulin, the substance which turns food sugars into energy.

In some cases, he said, an effort had been made to use insulin and the new drugs at the same time, thus controlling the artificially-created diabetes and arthritis at the same time.

However, he added, insulin proved relatively ineffective in the presence of cortisone or ACTH.

Trick Learned In Jail Brings Man Before Court

Clarence R. Day, 37, no fixed address, was held yesterday in Municipal Court under $10,000 bond for grand jury action on a housebreaking charge.

According to the charge Day, who has a criminal record, stole two sets of silver, a suit, camera and $10 from a residence at 2620 13th st. nw. He was arrested, police say, when he attempted to sell the silver to a jeweler here who called police.

Police say Day admitted 10 burglaries here and declared he gained entrance by pushing back doorlocks with a piece of celluloid. When he was asked how he learned this method of operation, according to police, he replied:

"When one is incarcerated one speaks of many things."

Two Deaths in Fires Ruled Accidental

Certificates of accidental death caused by burns were issued yesterday by Dr. A. Magruder MacDonald, District coroner, in the case of a 78-year-old invalid man and a 58-year-old woman. Both died Thursday after separate fires.

William Ruffin, partly paralyzed, died when he vainly tried to escape from a blazing second-floor room at 403 4th st. se. Mrs. Laura Benson died in her burning bed at 916 8th st. se. Police said she apparently fell asleep while smoking.

Don't Spare Oxygen, Baby Doctors Told

Persistence and oxygen, both in copious quantities, will save many babies apparently born dead, family doctors were told here yesterday.

"There are on record two cases of asphyxia (suffocation) in the newborn who did not breathe for five and two hours, respectively," declared Dr. Joseph Kreiselman, Washington pediatrician.

"Those babies are now well and apparently normal after two years, because their doctors didn't give up," he added.

Dr. Kreiselman spoke at a closing day section on pediatrics of the third annual clinical session of the American Medical Association, at the National Guard Armory.

The procedure of using oxygen in inflation of the lungs is so simple and so effective as to constitute "one of the truly live-saving methods used by a physician," Dr. Kreiselman said. Today periods of successful resuscitation of 20 to 40 minutes are not unusual, he pointed out.

On another medical front at the Armory, Dr. Arthur A. Morris, local brain surgeon, showed that operations can eliminate one of the most disabling forms of epilepsy, psychomotor epilepsy.

During seizures of such epilepsy the victim may move about as though in a dream, commit acts of violence, and completely forget his actions.

The operation consists of removal of the tip of a lobe in the front of the brain.

Truman Asks States to Hire Handicapped

President Truman yesterday called on State and city governments to find openings for the physically handicapped.

In a statement read at yesterday's report meeting of the President's Committee on National Employment of the Physically Handicapped Week, the Chief Executive congratulated the group on "truly magnificent labors" during this year's week, October 2 to 8.

He asked committee members to thank State Governors and "tell them that I hope that, with their support, additional openings in State and municipal employment will be made for the handicapped.

"In order to effectively champion the cause of the handicapped, our various officials must point the way by hiring more qualified handicapped workers," the President declared.

Secretary of Labor Maurice J. Tobin, committee secretary, said the campaign had convinced thousands of employers it is "good business to hire the handicapped. The slogan 'ability counts' is no longer just a sentimental gesture."

He said the handicapped were being "more readily accepted as a regular part of the Nation's labor force" and were working side by side with "their nonhandicapped fellows in almost every kind of employment."

October hirings brought the total of handicapped job placements made by the United States Employment Service since September 1, 1945, up to approximately 900,000, Secretary Tobin reported.

N. Y. Transit Slowdown Threatened

Dublin, Ireland, Dec. 9 (U.P.)—Michael Quill, head of New York's Transport Workers Union, said tonight he will set a slowdown date as soon as he returns home unless the worker demands for a 40-hour week are met at once.

Quill said the union would "get around" the State's antistrike law for public workers by a slowdown which would "cause complete stoppage of subway and surface transportation in New York."

Quill, who flew here tonight from London, will leave Shannon Airport Saturday for New York. He will arrive in New York Sunday morning.

Quill, a delegate to the new International Confederation of Free Trade Unions in London, left there shortly before the congress ended after a long telephone conversation with union officials in New York.

Little Protest Seen Locally On AMA Dues

Local doctors are expected to pay the newly levied $25 American Medical Association dues next year without serious opposition.

Dr. Walter Freeman, District Medical Society president, said he anticipated some complaints on the dues, but expected members will pay them. "The AMA means a good deal to many of them," he declared.

He said the dues "are getting to be kind of expensive, but no more so than doing business in other lines." Previously, doctors who desired to be fellows in the association and receive the weekly AMA journal paid $12 a year. This amount will be continued in addition to the dues.

The AMA House of Delegates approved the dues for 1950 at a four-day meeting here which closed yesterday. The dues are to be used principally to finance continued opposition to the Administration health program and also to expand association activities.

Dr. Thomas Mattingly, one of the local doctors who last year opposed the AMA's special $25 levy to fight the Federal medical care program, said he would protest the dues, but would pay them.

"It would be very, very foolish to refuse to pay it," he said. "If we refuse, we lose our standing in the AMA, and reform there must come from the inside."

He predicted most doctors would pay the dues. "Remember, it is deductible as a professional expense from income tax reports," he commented. He has been a member of the AMA for 25 years.

School Heads Protest ABC Permit Issue

Three school principals and an attorney representing a citizens' association appeared yesterday to protest issuance of a beer and light wines license by the Alcoholic Beverage Control Board.

Charles T. Fletcher, 1345 Webster st. nw., had asked for the license at Fletcher's restaurant, one block from Roosevelt High School, about 600 feet from the Burdick Vocational High School, and near MacFarland Junior High School.

Protesting was Mrs. Elva C. Wells, Roosevelt principal, who said some students there are 18 years of age and would be legally entitled to buy beer.

Other protestants were Mrs. May Resh, Burdick principal, and Arthur Storey, MacFarland principal.

John C. White, counsel for the Arkansas Avenue Citizens' Association, said the group had passed a unanimous resolution opposing issuance of the license.

The ABC board continued the case until December 19 at 2 p.m. when Fletcher may present witnesses in his favor.

free medical care, spectacles and false teeth.

"They would not be insured under the program and would therefore pay for what they got," he said.

Ewing estimated the cost of the proposed United States program at $4,500,000,000 a year to be raised through payroll deductions of 3 percent, shared equally between employers and employes. As soon as more dentists are available to provide full dental care, he added, the payroll deductions would be boosted to 4 percent.

Ewing said some organized American doctors interfere in an "unfair and dangerous" way in Britain's health scheme, a hot political issue here. And added:

"I was horrified while here to learn that certain groups in organized American medicine have been contributing financially to the support of propaganda activities of a small group of die-hard British doctors still fighting the program here.

"This is a type of meddling by these American organizations in other people's affairs that is to be condemned. And I speak out publicly because our British friends are too well-mannered to speak up appropriately."

Ewing said he referred to contributions by the American College of Physicians and Surgeons and the Madison County (Ind.) Medical Association to the British Fellowship for Freedom in Medicine, whose main purpose is fighting socialized medicine here.

These, he added, were reported in the British Medical Journal.

He said:

"I can see after this visit that most of the critics of our proposals in the United States have, either deliberately or through negligence, tried to mislead the American people on the facts about the British program."

Ewing Charge Denied By Surgeons' College

Aid for D. C. Needy Continues To Mount, Says Welfare Board

The three-year increase in public assistance to needy families of the District continued last month, the Board of Public Welfare was told yesterday.

Welfare Director John W. Tramburg reported 888 applications for assistance during November as against 768 in October.

Sharpest increase, he said, was in aid to the blind in the past year. In October the board made 258 grants to blind persons as compared to 213 in the same month the previous year.

"This upward swing illustrates what is happening to other handicapped people," and is explained, he said, by the fact that the disabled had greater job opportunities during the war than at present.

Working parents' demands for child day care centers, the board also was told, continued to hold.

As of December 1 four of the city's six-day nurseries had combined waiting list of 47 children.

The board adopted a recommendation by Paul L. Kirby, assistant director of institutions, setting up standards by which attorneys may consult with inmates on the premises of the institutions.

Under the new ruling lawyers may meet with wards if they show officials proof they are in good standing in the District Bar and legally retained as counsel by the inmate's parents or guardian.

Previously the welfare director had to pass on each individual case.

rents found to be flowing in such a direction as to dissipate the charge.

Since 1946, he reported, institution scientists have been making flights over thunderstorms in Air Force aircraft, sometimes to altitudes as great as 48,000 feet. As a result of these flights, Dr. Bush said, it was determined that the currents between earth and air above thunderstorms are just the opposite of those in fair weather areas, and that the average number of storms over the earth at any one time is just enough to counterbalance the fair weather currents.

New Food Source

Another part of Dr. Bush's report dealt with strides which have been made toward increasing the amount of food available for the world's growing populations. Research in this direction Dr. Bush reported, has progressed to the point where the institution is about to cooperate with the Stanford Research Institute of Palo Alto, Calif., toward practical application of what was been learned.

The new food source, said the report, is chlorella, a form of the minute water-borne plant called alga. Under proper conditions, Dr. Bush reported, chlorella will double itself daily.

By altering conditions, he said, large amounts of protein or fats can be derived from the plant. Suitable principally for livestock feed, some researchers have said some forms could be adapted for human consumption.

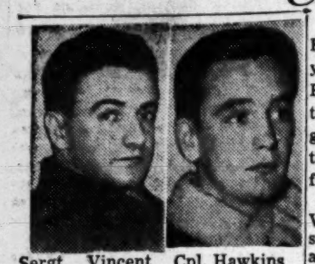
GI Drowns in Fall Off Pentagon Ferry



Sergt. Vincent Cpl. Hawkins

A sergeant-skipper in Bolling Air Force Base's "navy" was drowned yesterday when he fell into the Potomac from a shuttle boat, near the entrance to the Pentagon lagoon. A corporal who dove into the river after him was unsuccessful in a rescue attempt.

The victim was T/Sergt. Omer Vincent, 25, of Warren, R. I., who served as the boat skipper while awaiting orders to an air navigation school. Had he passed this school, Bolling Base officials said, he probably would have been commissioned.

He graduated first in his class last week from an Air Force personnel management course.

The boat, a 40-foot launch, is one of four used to shuttle passengers between Bolling Field and the Pentagon. It left Bolling at 8:15 a. m., with a crew of two and six passengers.

Shortly before passing under the stone bridge which spans the entrance from the Potomac to the Pentagon lagoon, Sergent Vincent turned over the wheel and controls to Corpl. Philip L. Hawkins, 19, of Randolph, Mass., the other crew member.

Hawkins said Vincent started forward along a catwalk on the outside of the boat's cabin, to take over mooring lines for a landing. He apparently lost his footing and fell, Hawkins said. He was clad in uniform and a heavy uniform overcoat.

Vincent started to swim, Hawkins said, and he attempted to reverse the boat's propellors to return toward Vincent, but the engine died. Then Hawkins peeled off a flight jacket he wore and dove after the sergeant. When Hawkins was about 20 yards from Vincent, the former said, and Vincent was about 15 feet from shore, he suddenly disappeared.

Corpl. James D. Bass, 20, of Kissimee, Fla., a passenger, said that he and another passenger, Capt. Lloyd J. Caillavety, flung two ring life preservers toward Vincent, but they did not reach him. They then pulled Corporal Hawkins back aboard, and Captain Caillavety started the engines and landed the boat. Corporal Hawkins was taken to the Pentagon dispensary and treated for shock and exposure. He was released to return to Bolling yesterday afternoon.

Sergeant Vincent was a warrant officer in the Army mine-laying service during the war, and had 31 months overseas. He was discharged, and reenlisted in the Air Force.

He was unmarried and his next-of-kin was listed as his mother, Mrs. Annie M. Vincent of Warren, R. I.

Harbor police began dragging for the body. By nightfall, they were joined by a force of 16 and two boats from Bolling Base, three Navy divers and a company of Navy personnel. The search was kept up under special lights.

Bolling base officials said their boats have handled 60,000 passengers since the service was established last May, and this was the first mishap.

Jury Told Ford Knew of Threat

she denied that Acalotti had used her name to threaten Miss Franklin.

At the start of his cross examination of Miss Andrews yesterday, Ford asked Judge Holtzoff to rule on whether the privilege of immunity between a lawyer and his client still existed between himself and Mrs. Andrews.

Ford argued that in as much as Mrs. Andrews had appeared as a Government witness and bared details of her conversations with him, he felt that the privilege no longer existed.

"But I am asking your honor for a ruling on the subject," he said.

Judge Holtzoff ruled that the privilege had been waived. Then Ford asked Mrs. Andrews:

"Is it not a fact that Mr. Allder (Ford's associate, H. Clifford Allder) asked you if you had ever been convicted of any crime?"

"Yes," she replied.

"What was your answer?" Ford asked.

"Yes," she repeated.

"Isn't it a fact that you have been convicted of violation of the Volstead Act," Ford asked his former client.

"Yes, bootlegging."

"When and where?"

"I cant' remember the exact dates, but it was in Virginia and North Carolina," she replied in a low voice.

"After April how often did the defendant Acalotti visit with either you or Miss Ensor in your apartment, either late in the evening or in the daytime?" he asked

"I have no idea. He was there at both times, in the daytime and the evening.

"Fifty times?"

"No."

"Forty?"

"I'm sorry I can't pin down the exact number of times."

Judge Questions Witness

Judge Holtzoff then asked the witness if Acalotti had been there more than once. She said he had. He then asked, "More than 10 times," and she said he had.

Ford said, "All right, your honor, I'll stop. I was through as soon as she said 10."

Continuing his interrupted defense yesterday Ford put Allder, on the stand.

Allder testified that he had prepared the telephone removal case for Mrs. Andrews. He said, "She told me the threats had not been uttered, and even used some profanity about it."

"Mrs. Andrews said she had been bothered so much that she had had to have her telephone number changed," Allder testified.

Case Recessed

The case was recessed then until Monday. Ford later told a reporter that he would be unable to take the stand to deny Mrs. Andrews' charges, because he said he would thus surrender the opportunity of continuing as Acalotti's lawyer.

He asserted to a reporter that Mrs. Andrews had never told him that Acalotti used her telephone to threaten Bernice Franklin. He also said he planned to produce five policemen as defense witnesses Monday.

Miss Franklin, once a Thomas Circle Restaurant waitress, testified on the first day of the trial that she had seen Acalotti "pay off" three policemen once a month, and that two other policemen were his "associates." She also said that she saw Acalotti settle his gambling debts in the office of Herman Cohen, street sales manager of the Times-Herald.

Inspector George R. Wallrodt, police supervisor, was in court for a second day yesterday, notebook in hand.

Bettor Who Slew Bookie Gets Life

Baltimore, Dec. 9 (AP).—A Baltimore judge ruled today that a convicted murderer was under extreme provocation when he killed a numbers writer for failing to pay off a bet.

The provocation was sufficient, Judge E. Paul Mason said, to justify a life sentence for William Fields Sampson, 23, instead of death by hanging.

Sampson was convicted of slaying John Davis, a numbers writer, last June 11 at Davis' headquarters. Sampson testified he had bet on combinations of the numbers 3-8-4 for two years, and that Davis refused to pay him $350 when the number hit.

Sampson claimed he shot Davis because he thought Davis was going to pull a gun.

Judge Mason told Sampson:

"I want to say this to you frankly: If there ever was a case of murder in the first degree, yours was the case.

"There were, however, some circumstances—not exculpatory because there can be no real excuse for murder—but it is true the provocation was extreme. You are entitled to some consideration and some mercy on account of that provocation. Therefore, instead of capital punishment, the sentence is life imprisonment."

Wild Chase Nets 1, Other Flees Police

After an interstate pursuit in which a dozen police cars took part at high speeds, one man was arrested, another escaped on foot, and a stolen car was recovered near Washington Circle early yesterday.

Though he denied being in the fleeing auto, Carl B. Rigger, 25, a radio service man of Baltimore, was charged by the FBI with interstate transportation of a stolen auto. Arraigned before United States Commissioner C. S. Lawrence, Rigger was held for hearing December 21 under $2000 bond.

In the recovered car, police said, they found a pair of Pennsylvania license plates. This first gave rise to suspicion that the car was connected with the murder of Winston C. Clay, 18-year-old filling station attendant, at Berwyn, Md. A Pennsylvania-licensed car is sought in that case.

However, yesterday afternoon, Lottie Van Bremen, 1123 Duke st., Alexandria, approximately where the chase began, reported her Pennsylvania license plates were stolen early yesterday.

The chase began about 4:30 a. m. in the 1100 block of Duke st., in Alexandria. Pvts. George Thodos and Marshall Reed in a police scout car said they saw the Cadillacs parked side by side. Two men, they said, were tampering with one of the cars.

As they approached, the policemen said, the two jumped into the other Cadillac and "took off" at high speed. They fled through Alexandria streets for some time, careening around corners before starting for Washington. In the meantime, Alexandria Police Sergt. Claude Nixon joined the chase in another car.

As they chased the fleeing sedan, the Alexandria officers notified their dispatcher by radio, and he called Washington police.

The Cadillac breezed across the Highway and 14th st. bridges, to Pennsylvania ave., again, past the White House, to Washington Circle, around the Circle, and back eastward on Pennsylvania.

But District police radio had dispatched 10 cars which converged on the area. At 21st st. and Pennsylvania ave., the Cadillac suddenly stopped and two men jumped out and ran.

Searching the neighborhood, Eighth Precinct Detective Wayne M. Hostetler found Rigger hiding under steps nearby, and arrested him without resistance.

Though he denied being in the chase, he admitted, police said, that he has served two previous terms for interstate transportation of stolen autos between Baltimore and Oklahoma. He declined to waive extradition to Baltimore where the Cadillac was stolen, so police turned the case over to the FBI. The second man escaped.

New Arrivals at D. C. Zoo . . .

The Washington Post

A new iguana (small lizard) curls up with a cage-mate

Three bushmasters, a deadly snake very rare in captivity, arrived at the Zoo yesterday.

They are the Zoo's first of the breed in 10 years.

The reason bushmasters don't live long in captivity, it was explained, is that they have a habit of beating themselves against the cage and breaking their backbone. This is especially true if they're caged when somewhat along in years.

But the new arrivals are less than 24 inches long, so Zoo Director William M. Mann hopes they'll custom themselves before they reach lengths up to 12 feet, as they will if they live 10 years.

The 24-inch length compares with the 4 feet the Zoo's last bushmaster measured on arrival. This one died in captivity—not by breaking his backbone, but just naturally.

Bushmasters are splotched brown and green and inhabit tropical America. They increase the death rate among laborers clearing jungles and tending sugar cane fields in the British, French and Dutch Guianas.

The bushmasters arrived aboard a Pan American World Airways freighter. Aboard also, for the Zoo, was a green iguana lizard, about 2 feet long and from Colombia.

This reminded Dr. Mann, that the iguana lizard is a great eating dish in parts of the Americas. Last time he had some himself, he said, was in Dutch Guiana.

Slayer Found Guilty of Manslaughter

A 4-to-12-year sentence was meted out yesterday in District Court to Ester Freeman, 23, convicted of manslaughter in the fatal shooting of William J. Smith, 25, of 1875 Savannah st. se.

The shooting occurred last June. Freeman had been ejected along with half a dozen others from a party near his home at 427 L st. nw. Freeman, testimony revealed, went home and returned with a pistol with which he shot Smith on the street.

In another sentence, Cecil A. Sogren, 44, of 623 Pennsylvania ave. se., was given two to seven years in prison for falsifying information in getting a prescription for narcotics here.

Earl C. Weldon, 42, address given as 1008 24th st. nw., received two to six years in prison for performing a perverted sexual act on a 14-year-old boy.

George H. Brown, 18, of 1029 30th st. nw., received one to six years for stealing $2000 in a burglary of a men's furnishing store at 3145 M st. nw.

Robertson's Sanity Splits Psychiatrists

Testimony in the Clarence W. Robertson second-degree murder trial concluded yesterday after two Government psychiatrists differed on the defendant's sanity when he killed his wife.

The case will go to the District Court jury on Monday. Remaining are closing arguments and the charge by Judge James R. Kirkland.

Defense Attorney James J. Laughlin, contended that Robertson, 34, was temporarily deranged when he fired the shots that killed his estranged wife and wounded her Marine friend, Pvt. Everett Flagg, at the woman's home, 1125 11th st. nw. last March.

Dr. Joseph L. Gilbert, the District alienist, said that in his opinion, Robertson has always been sane. He said he did not believe that there was such a thing as "temporary insanity" without a deep underlying cause.

On the other hand, Dr. Amino Perretti, also a District psychiatrist, said that Robertson was insane at the time of the shooting and was acting under an irresistable impulse to kill.

Dr. Perretti said Robertson suffered from "reaction depression" dating to a period early in their six-year marriage. Robertson, according to the psychiartrist, was reacting to the feeling that his wife no longer wanted him and preferred the company of other men.

Then, early this year, Dr. Perretti said, Robertson discovered a tell-tale handkerchief that allegedly bore traces of his wife's extra-marital lovemaking.

Plumber Gets Year in Attack On Housewife

A Carmody Hills, Md., plumber was sentenced to a year in prison yesterday in Upper Marlboro Police Court on assault and battery and indecent exposure charges preferred by an attractive 35-year-old mute housewife.

Ermon Henson, 42, 502 76th st., drew a year in the Maryland House of Correction on each of two charges, to which he pleaded innocent, but Judge Alan Bowie ruled the two sentences are to be served concurrently. The defendant also was fined $50 and costs on an additional charge of drunkenness and disorderly conduct, to which he pleaded guilty.

Henson was found guilty of the charges after a dramatic hearing in which the deaf and partially dumb complainant emphasized her written testimony by gestures.

The woman, who lives next door to Henson, testified he entered her kitchen on December 3, exposed himself and then grabbed her, ripping a button from her housecoat. She said she wrenched free and fled into a bedroom, locked the door and remained there until a neighbor informed her Henson was in police custody.

Henson said he had been drinking heavily prior to the alleged attack, and didn't remember anything after leaving a Seat Pleasant tavern until he awoke in the Marlboro jail the next day. He said he was certain he did not enter his neighbor's house, but later conceded he "might have gone in the wrong house" because the two homes are identical.

Henson was arrested on a disorderly conduct complaint filed by another neighbor who reported he was creating a disturbance in his back yard. It was not until several hours later, when the mute woman succeeded in conveying her version of the attack to another neighbor, that police learned of the assault.

Henson first was charged with assault with intent to commit rape, but the warrant was amended yesterday.

Underseas Oil

The States of Texas and Louisiana have employed every dilatory tactic they could contrive to postpone a Supreme Court decision as to dominion over the Gulf of Mexico outside their inland waters. On January 23, 1947, the court ruled that California had no title to the marginal sea off the coast of that State and that the Government of the United States is possessed of "paramount rights in and powers over the lands, minerals and other things of value" underlying the area. It was a reasonable assumption from this ruling, although ignored by Texas and Louisiana, that Federal paramountcy extended similarly to the area off their shores. The Department of Justice sued for a declaration of Federal rights and an accounting, and the Supreme Court has now set February 5 as the date when it will hear arguments on the issue.

It may be that the court will discern special circumstances distinguishing the Texas and Louisiana situations from that of California. Texas, at least, can argue that hers is a special case because she entered the union by compact when she was an independent and sovereign republic. But this is a kind of question that the Supreme Court is uniquely qualified to settle. Texas and Louisiana sought, along with most other States, to have it settled through the quitclaim legislation passed by the Eightieth Congress and vetoed by President Truman. And evidently they have been hoping until now to delay adjudication until some future Congress would pass this legislation over a presidential veto.

Ever since the 1947 decision in the California case, Texas and Louisiana have been collecting rentals and royalties on their submerged lands. In addition, they have proceeded to make new leases and to collect large bonuses for making them. This can hardly be considered action in good faith. If the Federal claim is upheld by the Supreme Court, it may also consider the question of whether all money paid to the States from June, 1947, forward should be recovered. It should be the business of Congress not to upset a judicial determination of the controversy but to provide the orderly means sought by the Justice and Interior Departments for Federal management of what the court grants to the people of the United States.

AMA Campaign Fund

There is nothing strange about the decision of the American Medical Association to collect $25 a year in dues from its members. Some labor unions assess their members several times this amount in dues. The more interesting question is what the AMA proposes to do with the three million dollars annual fund that the new dues will bring in. At least some of the members who have had a hand in shaping the policies adopted by the AMA's house of delegates insist that a substantial portion of the fund will go toward promotion of voluntary health insurance plans that now have full support of the organized medical profession.

Opposition among the doctors to President Truman's compulsory health insurance proposal is as strong as it ever was. But it does not follow that the AMA plans to spend the bulk of its new campaign fund for mere beating of the drums against "socialized medicine." The more progressive elements in the association are said to be convinced that compulsory health insurance has been defeated so far as the present Congress is concerned. With that accomplished, they reason, the association can proceed full steam ahead with promotion of voluntary plans under which families can obtain assurance of medical care in return for routine monthly payments.

The Council on Medical Service reported to the house of delegates that 89 cooperatives for medical care are now operating in rural communities. Voluntary health plans sponsored by laymen have been organized in 43 States and are serving an estimated 1,600,000 persons. The Blue Cross plans, through which participants make prepayments for hospital service, have enrolled 33 million persons. The preponderant thinking in the AMA now appears to be that the voluntary plans have proved their worth and that a strong forward movement to increase their coverage is in order. Meanwhile the association is sending a delegation to Europe to study the medical care programs of several countries in the hope of improving systems in operation here and of strengthening the fight against compulsion.

When it is remembered that only a few years ago organized medicine was fighting voluntary plans for group medical care, the evidence of progress is unmistakable. In our opinion, the AMA still has a long way to go in meeting its responsibility to the American people. But its progress ought to be acknowledged. If the AMA is now really prepared to devote itself to the extension and improvement of voluntary medical care systems with vigor equal to that it has expended in fighting the Truman plan, it may well serve the double purpose of improving the Nation's health and discouraging a dubious venture in compulsory insurance.

Out Of China

Removal of the Chinese Nationalist headquarters to Formosa signalizes the abandonment of China proper to the Communists. They have had virtually free rein anyhow, as the fly-by-night locations of the Nationalist capital and the successive defections of provincial warlords have emphasized. This does not mean that the people have accepted communism or that the Communists will not have difficulties with local organization, but rather that the heart and means for effective resistance have vanished.

Although what is left of the Nationalist government may hold out for a while in Formosa, because an amphibious invasion is a considerable undertaking, undoubtedly the Communists can seize the island when and if they seriously decide to do so. This probability confronts the United States with a hard decision. Formosa in Communist hands, it will be said, would constitute a potential flanking of our defensive strategy in the Far East. That is perfectly true. But now more than ever is a time to predicate American policy not on sentiment but on realistic appraisal of our interests and our capacity.

Such appraisal, in this newspaper's opinion, must rule out the sending of American troops to Formosa. In the first place, the legality of such entry would be highly questionable, and the negation of American principles implicit in such action would afford Moscow a wonderful propaganda weapon. Second, as a practical matter, the United States does not now have the troops to send to Formosa. Third and most compelling, even if an occupation were feasible on other counts, there are five million poverty-stricken and disaffected Formosans who would show no more affection for us than for their Nationalist oppressors. We would be allied with a regime that has no basis of popular support.

Obviously, the probable loss of Formosa means that Okinawa and bases in Japan and the Philippines assume greater importance in American defensive strategy. Preparations for making a bastion of Okinawa are already well advanced. This is the strictly military consideration. But there are other factors which bear on American strategy in the Far East. It is essential to understand what has happened in China. A profound social revolution has been accomplished, with Moscow's backing, to be sure, but it is still predominantly a Chinese movement. It would be tragic for us to miss the real meaning of this movement and attempt anything analogous to the disastrous invasion of Siberia after World War I.

The main target of Russian efforts is still Europe, and there is good reason for thinking that the Politburo would like nothing better than to embroil us in an expensive and negative resistance to change in China. This is sufficient reason for avoiding the sort of commitments that would prevent freedom of action in the Far East. Our primary objective ought to be to encourage every show of independence among the Chinese Communists, and there is solid basis for this objective in the fundamentally nationalist character of the Chinese revolution. As the Communists experience more and more difficulties in swallowing China, the opportunities for exploiting rifts with Moscow's prefabricated formula will increase.

Radar Fence

It is good news that the Air Force is moving ahead with the radar aircraft warning network in Alaska. This screen of radar stations, which will be designed to detect aircraft as far away as 300 miles, is a first essential in the diversion of enemy attack from this continent. Ultimate plans call for it to extend in a semicircle from Alaska through northern Canada, with picket ships providing off-shore protection. It is thus a joint project which envisions connecting construction by Canada.

Canada's cooperation has been excellent, and she has been proceeding as fast as her resources will allow. One difficulty arising in this connection, however, is that of differences in equipment which may complicate the linking of the two systems into a single net. Here is a point on which the closest sort of coordination is necessary, and it may be that Canada will require some sort of assistance.

The fundamental lack as far as the American portion is concerned has not been radar equipment itself but the money to construct installations to house the equipment now on hand. Congress has authorized an 85.5 million dollar program, but has appropriated no funds. Thus the initial 50 million dollars has had to come from other Air Force activities. The Air Force has shown a proper regard for priorities, however, in reprogramming to meet the need.

Obviously a warning net is at best a negative sort of protection. Even when it is completed it will not guarantee that bombs will not fall on American and Canadian cities. What it may do, however, is give time for fighter planes to intercept enemy bombers. In an age when attack can come swiftly over the northern frontier, this is a necessary precaution, and it is especially important as a means of safeguarding the Alaskan air fields, which would be enemy prizes. But a radar screen ought not to lull Americans into the idea of cheap security. The best defense still lies in balanced over-all military-economic strength in the Western World.

Party Merger?

Senator Bricker was catching at a political straw when he suggested a merger of the Republican Party and the old-line Democrats of the South so as to present a solid front against the Fair Deal. It is true, of course, that Republican and Southern Democratic legislators have often found themselves in agreement in fighting President Truman's measures. Undoubtedly they will continue to do so. But it is one thing to team up the GOP elephant and the Dixie donkey for an emergency pull and something else again to make them permanent bedfellows. If a sudden change of metaphor may be tolerated, we suspect that most of the Southern Democrats are likely to view Senator Bricker's suggestion about as favorably as a mouse would look upon a cat's invitation to dinner.

The issues that divide the Democratic and largely agrarian South from the Republican strongholds in the industrial East are still numerous and far-reaching. Foremost among them is the very issue that is driving Southern Democrats away from the Truman Administration—civil rights. Traditionally the GOP has been the chief exponent of measures to counteract racial discrimination. If dislike for the Fair Deal should drive these dissident groups together in successful opposition in 1950 and 1952, they would almost certainly split apart again in attempting to carry out a program of their own.

What the South needs, in our opinion, is not substitution of the Republican Party for the Democratic Party but a restoration of the two-party system. The South has lost most of its political influence because its people blindly adhere to a political tradition that no longer serves their interests. Their votes are still influenced by prejudices inherited from the last century instead of the very real issues confronting the Nation today. As this fact is increasingly demonstrated, we have no doubt that gradual realignments will take place. But these are likely to be reflected in sporadic breakdowns in the one-party system in the South and in the reorientation of individual voters. Certainly this type of realignment ought to be applauded, but it is likely to move slowly—too slowly to answer any political prayers in 1950 and 1952.

Trap In The T-H Act

A real dilemma has been laid in the lap of the National Labor Relations Board by the labor unions and employers' associations in the construction industry. What they ask in effect is exemption from the election provisions of the Taft-Hartley Act. The law says that there must be elections before the NLRB can certify a union as the collective bargaining agent of any group of employes. Also unions can lawfully obtain a union-shop agreement only if such an arrangement has been approved in an NLRB election. But the NLRB has found it impracticable to hold such elections in the building industry, where no substantial group of employes remains on any one job for any length of time.

It is now generally recognized that the provision of the T-H Act requiring elections before union-shop agreements may be lawfully made was a mistake. Such elections are almost invariably won by the unions. They merely consume time and put the Government to expense for no good reason. The urgent need for elimination of this provision was one of the strongest arguments for amendment of the act at the last session of Congress. The appeal of the builders and the construction industry unions indicates that it is still urgent.

As for the representation elections, a different problem is presented. It would be possible to go back to the old Wagner Act provision which the NLRB interpreted as exempting the construction industry from its provisions. That, however, would leave the industry plagued by various unfair labor practices for which there would be no remedy through the NLRB. If that agency does not succeed in devising means by which fair elections can be held in the construction industry, it may be desirable to give it power to certify unions upon investigation, hearings and other means of determining the will of the majority without attempting a formal plebiscite.

But this is a question that Congress must decide. The NLRB has no authority to exempt either unions or employers from provisions of the law, however impractical it may prove to be in actual practice. What the NLRB can do is to send recommendations to Congress. If such recommendations should lead to piecemeal modification of the extreme and impractical portions of the T-H Act, that too would be a notable victory for common sense.

MARSH FIRE

The tenant is burning the marsh today—
It was too rebellious and wild to stay
So near smooth pastures and tamer fields.
Through the good seasons its only yields
Were witch grass, alders and wild grape vines,
Cat tails, willows, and grappling lines
Of wild morning glories . . . Where slow fire
Of autumn burned, now flame leaps higher.
Before the crackling surges fall
The brittle tower, the thorny wall.
The rabbits scurry. When he has fled
From the marsh, the red fox turns his head
In fear to see what follows still,
Then hides in grass on the pasture hill.
The wildest thing the marsh has known
For years is the fire that snarls alone
Over its feast. It will leave behind
Blackened levels to please the mind
Of one who watches with intent
To make the marsh obedient.

Canadian Air Pact

Mr. Drew Pearson, in his column of December 7, gives a distorted picture of the United States-Canadian civil air agreement of June, 1949, and the pact's effect on Colonial Airlines. Assuredly, Colonial was subjected to severe competition on its best route—New York to Montreal—as a result of the agreement. But it is difficult to understand how the United States could have continued Colonial's monopoly on international traffic between the largest Canadian city and the largest American city.

The latter part of Mr. Pearson's statement that "the State Department had given Canada a route parallel to Colonial's from Montreal to New York while simultaneously denying Colonial the right to fly to Washington" is obviously erroneous. Colonial currently flies from Washington to both Ottawa and Montreal. What Mr. Pearson may be thinking of is the Civil Aeronautics Board's refusal to certificate Colonial between New York and Washington—a purely domestic route with which the State Department has no concern. There are already three airlines competing for business between New York and Washington, and CAB feels that's enough.

Mr. Pearson has had a consistently poor accuracy record in reporting on commercial aviation developments. C. L. A.

"Soviet" Illusion

Just what would the world think if the people of this country kept referring to the country in which we live as "the thirteen colonies"? Sounds sort of silly doesn't it? But, is it any more silly or at least unrealistic, than the habit some people have of using the terms "Soviet Russia," "Soviet Union," "Soviet Zone," etc.?

As the world knows only too well, the Polituro and not any Soviet is the policy-making and governing body today in Russia. The Soviets of Russia (councils of workmen and soldiers) did surely function in the overthrow of the Czar and his regime and in the days immediately following, but as a matter of historical fact, they have not functioned as policy-making bodies for some 15 years.

So why do we Americans, editorial writers, radio commentators, and just plain citizens keep up the illusion? Why not begin to call our former ally just plain, simple, Russia, which, after all, is the correct name for that country. ALBERT A. FROST.

Natural Law

The American people should pause occasionally in these troubled days to consider the origin of the freedoms they enjoy as Americans. Their freedoms are based on the Natural Law, which too many Americans, unfortunately, ignore or forget. The Natural Law briefly is the Law of God.

To emphasize the unchanging principles of the Natural Law as the basis of all human rights, the University of Notre Dame this weekend is sponsoring its third annual Natural Law Institute. Participating will be Gen. Carlos P. Romulo, president of the United Nations General Assembly, and hundreds of jurists, judges, lawyers, educators and other thinking persons interested in preserving the best in our democracy. Only by rigid adherence to the Natural Law, they believe, can democracy be spard destruction by secularists, pragmatists, materialists and others who deny God and who, therefore, hold like Hitler and Stalin, that law is merely what the state demands and justice but the power of the strongest.

Discussions also will be held at Notre Dame during the institute reaffirming the principles of the Natural Law as found in ancient times and in the sacred writings of the Jewish people, in the philosophic works of Plato, Aristotle and Cicero, through St. Paul, St. Augustine and the great jurist Emperor Justinian; distinguished English judges like Coke, Bacon, Mansfield and Blackstone, and famous Americans such as Jefferson, Hamilton, Madison, Wilson and Kent.

These discussions will have a particular interest for Americans because they will emphasize again that in the United States the political philosophy of our founding fathers, especially as expressed in the Declaration of Independence, is permeated with the Natural Law.

Christmas Noise

My friends, associates and myself enjoy Christmas music as much as anyone else. However, we are agreed that 30 days of it is something more than a surfeit. When added to the normal din and clatter of F st., the blaring broadcast of recordings, together with other loudspeaker Christmas appeals, this activity is in poor taste, is physically painful, and certainly loses any effect of Christmas coziness which may have attended the conception of the music.

A few days of it, immediately before Christmas—yes, but 30 days of clatter, boom and roar—no. Is there no let-up to the noise to which we must be subjected? M. K. JESSUP.

Transit Privilege

The final argument filed with the Public Utilities Commission by the Capital Transit Co. contains the following statements: "It should never be forgotten that this proceeding involves the private property of Capital Transit and Transit Radio," and "the Government does not enjoy the freedom of an owner." And further: "The fact that Capital Transit property is devoted to a public use does not justify the imposition of restrictions that are not reasonably concerned with the proper conduct of the business." These statements bear unmistakable testimony to the defiant and utterly selfish attitude of the company toward the rights of all others concerned. Washington now has its John L. Lewis, too.

It is very evident that the reasoning ability of the company is warped by the money interest involved, and by its determination to have its own way in the enjoyment of the profit accruing to it from the forcible mental feeding of its patrons. But the terms under which the company is allowed to operate provide that the transportation furnished the public shall be "safe, comfortable and convenient." The company has forgotten that it is the utility that is public, and not the people using the utility.

According to the argument advanced by the company, any home owner in Washington would be at liberty to use his premises in any way he might see fit, regardless of the wishes, rights and liberties of his neighbors. The ownership of private property, under our present regime of relative civilization, does not imply the right to impose upon others activities which infringe upon their rights, among which rights is a basic, inalienable and constitutional one of freedom from intrusion, either physical or mental. On this principle the law acts. The company also forgets that where ownership is abused, the Government has the legal right, and the moral obligation, to step in.

Permanent Maryland Auto Tags

I notice in newspaper articles recently that we in Maryland will not have new license tags this year. The reason given by Mr. Brice, the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, was the steel strike. If this be true, this is one time that strikes helped all of the taxpayers, as the system of permanent tags saves more than $100,000 per year. This amount would build a new wing on a much needed hospital or school or adjust the salary of some still underpaid school teachers or State employes.

I am sure this system, which started during the war in order to save steel, has saved the taxpayers nearly a million dollars since it has been in use.

During 1939, when I first became Commissioner of Motor Vehicles, several newspaper representatives called on me and wanted to know why Maryland could not have permanent automobile tags. I found that the consent of Governor O'Conor was easy to get when I could show him the amount we could save the taxpayers.

Under the present law, I question the right of the Commissioner of Motor Vehicles to change the people's tag numbers if they wanted to keep them, and to spend thousands of dollars just in order to put "Free State" on them. I personally feel that there should not be anything unnecessary on automobile tags, as they are for identification only. The plainer the tag the easier for the officers to identify them.

As for being worn out, these tags are of a very good grade of aluminum and were supposed to last for eight years or more. I personally have been unable to find any tags which are worn out. The State of Connecticut used theirs, which were made of aluminum, for more than eight years. If an officer noticed any bad tags, all that would be necessary would be to stop the car and advise the driver to have them replaced. This would cost the owner one dollar per set and then the State made approximately 68 cents on each pair. It was my intention to put scotch light on all replacements, which would be a very good safety measure. Several States are now using scotch light on their tags. I had scotch light put on the legislative tags in order to see how they would wear.

If the savings on permanent tags were used on inspection stations, we would be saving lots of money on our insurance and repairs and there would be several hundred people living today who have gone on because of no brakes, lights and bad steering gear.

There are lots of good reasons why we should keep permanent tags and no good reason why we should eliminate them. If we don't soon give our people some relief on taxes, we won't need so many tags or good roads, as lots of our people will not be able to own an automobile.

Combating War Fatalism

Grassroots Attack

SOMETIMES you think with despair that the whole country is resignedly, impotently and frivolously waiting for World War III to break. Then suddenly you are jarred into knowledge that American grassroots initiative is still on the job.

Within this week this writer has had contact with two widely different set of grassrooters, both seeking more creative answers to the threat of war than merely bigger bombs or more deadly germs. One was a group of New York playrights and authors with names blazoned on Broadway or recorded on the covers of best sellers. The other was self-designated as "25 average women of normal intelligence"—a modesty in billing belied by the quality of its round-table discussions.

The New York group came up with the answer "world government." Taking over a theater for one night, it gave its answer by drama, speech, music to those who called its world federation project impractical or premature. The "average" women, members of a Washington public-speaking class, came up with several answers—any of which might as likely been given by thoughtful "average" men.

THE WOMEN'S method of discussion was objective. Emotional thinking and hair-trigger talk and judgment were guarded against. Their aim was to create an atmosphere in which the best thinking of the group could be pooled.

There were "activators," "clarifiers," "summarizers." These women, of varying politics and religion, included one experienced club leader, one authority on the United Nations, a psychoanalyst, a journalist, and wives of professional and business men and of several foreign embassy officials.

Tackling the big subject, "Can We Prevent World War III?" the group agreed that: another war is unthinkable; World War II settled very few, if any, of the world's problems; women were generally more opposed to war than men. The group also generally agreed on the economic and political causes of war. But on the psychological causes it split. Most insisted on the complete purity of American motives. A few, including the psychoanalyst, maintained the first job of Americans was to examine themselves, get straightened out in relation to the world.

The $64 question—how to head off another war—brought answers of military preparedness, an international police force, stronger support of the U. N. Many participants thought the most hope lay in the United Nations Food and Agriculture Organization. How this country's great surplus food stores could be used to strengthen peace was emphasized.

OF GREAT interest was the question: How stop the widespread psychological buildup for war? British women were amazed over the psychological war climate in the United States—a country far "safer" geographically than their own. Many of the group deplored the number, size and implications of war headlines in the press, the tone of war comment on the radio. The suggestion of prayer for the Russian people met a strong response. And probably most emphasized was the need for Americans to increase their knowledge and understanding of other peoples, and their patience in working with them. None of these answers was felt to be new, infallible or final. The group realized it had just begun to grope its way toward a solution.

Neither did the New York wise men come up with anything new or startling. What is important in both these meetings is that they set in force eddies of thought that may reach far. Nine hundred writers, editors, radio and theatrical people were guests of the New York group at its presentation The Myth That Threatens the World. They may have learned nothing exciting, but their minds were spurred into action by the impact of a positive idea.

So with the Washington group of "average" women. They had studied, worked, thought for days of their—and the world's—problem. They had talked about it to their families, friends, neighbors—and they are still talking. Who knows what a wide arc of influence they have described in arousing others to think, talk, and perhaps act?

'What Price Gambling?'

In your December 7 editorial, "What Price Gambling?" you say "Because of the known relationship between big gambling and worse crime . . ." What is this relationship? Nothing more than we found to exist between worse crime and the rumrunners of the '20s when prohibition was the law of the land.

With that example and the example of Nevada, where it is legal to gamble in any way, is it not indicated that the way to end this union is to legalize all gambling? We condone the "sport of kings"—horse racing and the gambling that goes with it. Why must we take a stand that is to make more definite the split between the economic classes of this country?

Gambling is gambling whether it is on which horse is the fastest or the number picked from a bolito cage. Some countries have seen fit to have national lotteries. Why not us? It would help to eliminate the numbers racket. H. WARREN FELKEL.

About The Cotton Law

Mr. J. R. Wiggins,
Managing Editor,
The Washington Post,
Washington, D. C.
Dear Mr. Wiggins:

The news story on the front page of The Washington Post for Friday, December 9, a signed story by John W. Ball, with the headline "Cotton Law, Record Crop Arouse South" is hardly up to the standards of The Post, or the usual standards of Mr. Ball.

In it Mr. Ball states that "the new law will result in the acreage of some old-time Southern cotton planters being cut next year as much as 30 percent." I think that he ought to submit to some of us who doubt his statement, a list of cases which have been brought to his attention where old, long-time, well-established cotton farmers in the South will have their acreage cut 80 percent. There will be many farmers in new sections, particularly in my State of New Mexico, and in Arizona, in California, who have no crop history prior to 1949, whose acreage will be cut substantially, sometimes as much as 80 percent but that situation is not likely to arise in the case of farmers in the deep South who have been planting cotton for a long time.

Then he says that it will give neighbors who haven't been planting cotton for a long time acreage allotments. Well, the only way that can happen would be when that neighbor was in position to show that he had diverted cotton acreage to war crops under what we call Public Law 12. If he did that, he is entitled to credit, and the people who fought hardest to see that he got credit were such Representatives as Stephen Pace from Georgia. I can't imagine that any provision which recognizes the obligation of the United States Government and the Department of Agriculture to give credits to farmers who diverted from cotton to war crops is actually under attack by these same farmers now.

Mr. Ball says that the law which I authored is one of the most involved in years. I wonder if he has tried to read the previous cotton legislation with all the gadgets that were in those laws.

He says, "The law provides that next year's cotton plantings be cut from 27,359,000 acres to 21 million acres." There is no such provision in the law. Ask him to find it. He'll admit that he can't. There is a provision that requires that the Secretary of Agriculture shall not cut below 21 million acres in 1950. It was a House provision which was accepted by the Senate conferees. But the Secretary has wide discretion in fixing the acreage.

Mr. Ball quotes Mr. Trigg, administrator of the Production and Marketing Administration, as explaining that department experts protested that the law was inequitable when it was before Congress and then Mr. Ball adds, "however, no department official was called to give his views." That is just too dishonest to pass unnoticed. The cotton acreage bill, Senate 1962, naturally started with Senate hearings. The first was held June 14, 1949. The printed hearings will show that after the bill had been offered for the record, I called upon Frank Woolley to present the report for the Department of Agriculture, which he did. Then if you will examine Page 8 of the report, Mr. Woolley, as deputy administrator of the Production and Marketing Administration, Mr. John H. Dean, assistant director, and Mr. E. D. Bell of the Cotton Branch of the Production and Marketing Administration began their testimony.

The department would have preferred the passage of Senate 1971, the so-called Brannan Plan. Mr. Woolley was asked what would happen if no legislation affecting cotton or quotas was enacted in 1949 and he pointed out (page 16 of the hearings) that under the Agricultural Act of 1938, as amended, the department would have to put out an acreage allotment of some 27 million acres and the department did not believe that an allotment of 27 million acres could be allotted or justified. He also explained that the allotments put out under the Agriculture Act of 1938 would not give sufficient recognition to the new areas, and Mr. Woolley, as the representative of the Department of Agriculture, ended up by saying, "There is no question but that Senate 1962 is an improvement over the Agriculture Act of 1938."

We asked Mr. Woolley for suggestions for improvement. He agreed to and did submit several suggestions. The hearings on page 30 show that Senator Johnston pointed out that "we realize that something must be done to control the cotton" and Mr Woolley said, "Oh yes, definitely, we must modify the Act of 1938 or we will have a rather unworkable law as we visualize it at this time."

On page 120 of the hearings you will see this statement from Mr. Woolley: "We would only be deluding ourselves if we continued to operate under the Agricultural Adjustment Act of 1938 under present conditions."

With the announcement that the 1949 crop, which was planted on some 27 million acres, produced a crop of more than 16 million bales, the question has arisen as to why there were not cotton acreage controls in effect during 1949, particularly when we realize that the demand will probably not exceed 12 million bales. It is not desirable to continue to add four million bales to the present high carryover every year. I think the cold fact is that the department knew it could not effectively control cotton acreage or production under the Act of 1938. It knew that it could not put out a quota of less than 27 million acres and that such a figure was no control at all. Rather than have a wholly ineffectual control, it avoided the establishment of controls for the 1949 crop year.

I claim that if we had not passed Senate 1962, the department would be helpless again in 1950. And I think that instead of throwing up its hands and saying "we told you so," just because the Congress did not pass what the department recommended, it might explain to the country what would have happened if no law had been passed at all. The Department of Agriculture, if testimony and newspaper stories can be believed, is somewhat on the high side as far as price supports are concerned. Farmers say, "Give us stable prices and we will be glad to have controls." We gave them the stable prices for 1950 and beyond at levels higher than I thought wise, and now they object to the controls. It just doesn't work to stabilize prices at high levels unless you do control at the same time. Otherwise the high prices serve as a tremendous spur to increased production and you hardly want that when this year's crop is at least four million bales above our domestic and foreign requirements.

Sincerely yours,
CLINTON P. ANDERSON.

Progress In Germany

Adenauer's Two Agreements

THE CONTRAST between Europe immediately after the end of the war and Europe today goes deeper than the surface of physical recovery. It seems to me to sum up as follows:

Childs

In 1946 and '47 we were agreeably surprised to see that the European invalid was on his feet. After the long and terrible years of the war, the vigor and normality displayed were astonishing. We were quick—too quick—to conclude that the damage had been exaggerated.

An easy and facile optimism was the immediate result. A few years of the Marshall Plan would put everything to rights again.

The observer who tries honestly to see beneath the surface cannot come away now, nearly five years after the end of the European war, with any such optimism. The corrosion and corruption resulting not from one but from two world wars have cut deeply into the fabric of civilization in western Europe.

This means, of course, that far greater patience, skill, understanding and resolution must come from the United States and western Europe working in unison if the values of that civilization are to be conserved and extended. There is a suspicion that in trying to run before he could walk the invalid may actually have done himself harm while deceiving the rest of the world into believing falsely in his recovery.

BUT in my opinion it does not necessarily follow that we should be overcome by pessimism. On a more realistic basis than two or three years ago, it even may be possible to see some small reason for optimism.

In 1949 American policy in Europe—as contrasted to the Far East—has moved cautiously and tentatively forward.

A gain has been recorded in Germany. The ultimate result is not guaranteed. But at least a dangerous drift toward more violent and virulent nationalism in the Nazi pattern has been checked by positive action on which the Western Allies were in general agreed.

That action has even greater significance than has been so far revealed. The agreement ratified by Secretary of State Dean Acheson's visit to Chancellor Konrad Adenauer covers two major points of policy to be implemented in the coming year.

Point No. 1, Adenauer agreed to put into effect a carefully worked out program of decartelization grounded in new laws to be adopted by the West German government. This is in accord with a plan evolved by United States High Commissioner John J. McCloy.

It will be patterned after the system of antitrust laws in this country. But, in addition, special courts would be created to umpire cartel decisions. German businessmen could refer proposed mergers and combines to such courts to determine whether the contemplated steps were in violation of laws forbidding cartels. This, it happens, is more than American businessmen can do, since antitrust laws in this country provide only for punitive action on charges that the laws have been violated.

POINT NO. 2. Adenauer agreed to work for a law or laws that would forbid racial persecution or racial discrimination. This is aimed at the rising anti-Semitism that threatens to develop into a new cult of hate like that on which Hitler rose to power.

The best hopes of this agreement may fail if Adenauer—and, even more important, his rivals for power—are encouraged to believe that a West German army is essential to Western security. Such encouragement is bound to persuade the Germans that they need do nothing to comply with Allied desires.

Unfortunately, such encouragement has come, both publicly and privately, from American and British military men of high rank. One of the unhappiest examples was the public statement of Gen. Lucius D. Clay in favor of arming Western Germany. The former chief of the United States Occupation Forces chose to make that statement at a time when complicated and difficult negotiations were in progress with Adenauer.

Clay should know well enough the handicap of having critics and kibitzers who shout from afar. McCloy must have a chance to try to carry through the German policy that is now advanced to a beginning phase. The integration of Western Germany with western Europe can mean a long advance in stability.

Recognition of Red Regime 'In Fact' Seen by Students

The United States should recognize the Chinese Communist government when "it becomes a government in fact," a representative group of high-school students said yesterday.

The 134 students from 14 high schools in the Greater Washington area reached the decision after lengthy debate at the annual high school discussion conference conducted by George Washington University.

The China motion was introduced by Richard Breurer of Calvin Coolidge High School.

Breurer argued that through recognition of the Communist government the United States would be able to aid its citizens in China, could negotiate favorable trade treaties and keep an eye on Communist activities through consul offices.

The debate was preceded by a discussion on the subject, "What Should Be the Foreign Policy of the United States Toward China?" Participants were Griffin Bancroft, CBS commentator; Philip Potter, Baltimore Sun correspondent; Mrs. Ann Hartwell Johnstone, vice president of the Citizens Committee of the United Nations, and Dr. Edward C. Acheson, associate professor of finance at the university.

The students elected Bill Duke, student at George Washington High School in Alexandria, chairman of the conference. Richard Jewett of Woodrow Wilson was elected vice president and Eleanor Edlow of Western, secretary.

Japan Turns Down Nomura Seeking Loan

Tokyo, Dec. 9 (AP).—An old man came into the small business loan office at City Hall. He wanted a loan for his grinder company.

His name: Naokuni Nomura, Japan's Navy Minister in the last days of Premier Hideki Tojo's wartime cabinet and once a member of the Supreme War Council.

His application was rejected.

GERVASI

Is there any future for Trieste, once thought a starting-point for World War III, now an East-West buffer that can keep alive only because of Marshall Plan aid? Washington Post Correspondent Frank Gervasi has moved to Trieste to bring you an on-the-spot view of that territory's present — and probable future.

—Trieste has been one of Europe's prime problems since the end of the war. Get Gervasi's picture of the current situation, in The Sunday Washington Post.

Howard U. Gets Hillman Gift Again

Howard University is among six educational institutions granted funds by the Sidney Hillman Foundation for Scholarship Aid, it was announced yesterday.

The foundation trustees, meeting at Atlantic City Thursday, voted to repeat a $2000 grant made to Howard this year. The funds will be used to aid needy students specializing in social sciences.

Other grants went to Brandeis University, Waltham, Mass., $2000; New School for Social Research, New York City, $2000; New York State School of Industrial and Labor Relations, Cornell University, Ithaca, N. Y., $2000; Roosevelt College, Chicago, $5000, and the Chaim Weizmann Institute, Rehovoth, Israel, $5000.

Additional sums were set aside for grants-in-aid to the social science department of the University of Chicago, prizes for literary efforts on the "labor struggle," for other purposes.

Red Magazine Confiscated

perintendent of schools at Springfield, Mass., recently ordered destruction of the "propaganda magazine" delivered to his schools. He called it "a clever job of writing and presentation" of life in Russia.

Nelson said he had heared radio broadcasts telling of distribution of the bulletin to California high schools.

Valentin A. Sorokin, Second Secretary of the Soviet Embassy and the official in charge of the bulletin, declined to discuss circulation figures, but said he wondered whether school superintendents were "a kind of judge" of what literature Americans should read.

Nelson said that "every school doesn't seem to get copies of the bulletin every month." They began reaching some of the senior high schools, addressed to the libraries, "in the early part of October," he said.

The assistant superintendent said he does not anticipate any formal action unless the Board of Education asks for a report.

Until then, Nelson added, they will be kept out of the libraries along with other publications not on the board's approved list.

On the question of propaganda publications being distributed in the United States, former Assistant Secretary of State George Allen said in a speech here in 1948:

"If we imposed a censorship, or made difficulties for people who visited certain foreign information centers, we would arouse 10 times more interest in foreign propaganda than exists in the United States today."

The United States publishes for consumption in Russia a more elaborate information magazine than the Soviet Bulletin. It is called "Amerika," and contains articles about life, industry, art and literature in this country. There is no political information in it.

Columbus School Head Seizes Red Magazines

Columbus, Ohio, Dec. 9 (U.P.).—N. G. Fawcett, superintendent of schools, today ordered seizure of Russian magazines sent to Columbus schools for propaganda purposes.

Fawcett said several copies of the USSR Information Bulletin had been found at all six Columbus high schools and that most of them were destroyed.

Tokyo Educator Urges Treaty, 'Neutral' Role

The president of the University of Tokyo last night asked for a "hastening" of a peace treaty with the United States, assuring Japan of a neutral role in the event of another war.

Shigeru Nambara made this plea in a talk before the National Conference of Occupied Countries here.

The conference is sponsored by the Commission on Occupied Areas, of the American Council on Education, in which the State Department is cooperating. Its two-day session at the Hotel Washington ends today.

A penitent Japan still has its patriotism, Nambara said, but "not the same thing as that blind love of the fartherland which once drove us into an unjustifiable war."

"We fervently hope that America and all other Allied powers will unite and cooperate in hastening the conclusion of a peace treaty with Japan," he added.

His country's role, in that event, would be "perfectly clear." It should maintain "strict neutrality and participate in no war whatsoever," Nambara said.

Another message from Japan was sent by Gen. Douglas MacArthur, who said the school program now in effect there "is soundly conceived and based on concepts as democratic as those which prevail in any country in the world."

The situation in Germany was discussed by a number of officials participating in reconstruction of the American zone.

Ralph Nicholson, director of the Office of Public Affairs in the office of the High Commissioner, had a reassuring word for Americans who wonder about the "appearance of former (German) civil servants in the vast bureaucracy of Germany."

"It is better to have these people working under supervision and subject to observation by the German authorities, and by indirection by the Occupation Authorities," he said, "than to allow them to become a disgruntled employed class vulnerable to neo-Nazi schemers."

Yule Shopping Here at Same Pace as in '48

By S. Oliver Goodman

Washington department store dollar sales in the week ended December 3 held at the same pace as in 1948, the Federal Reserve Bank of Richmond reported last night.

Likewise in the four weeks ended December 3, local sales showed no change from the corresponding 1948 period.

On a nationwide basis store sales for the latest week averaged 8 percent lower than last year, while the four-week period showed a 7 percent drop.

In view of lower prices this year, it appeared that unit sales here are increasing. After looking at regional and national sales reports, local merchants were cheerful over volume rate here.

The Fifth Federal Reserve District, which includes Washington, displayed a 3 percent dip for the December 3 week and for the four-week period. In the other 11 reserve districts, sales declines ranged from 3 to 10 percent.

WHO'S WHO TODAY: G. Chandley Whalen, president of the newly organized American Mercury Insurance Co., has been engaged in the fire and casualty insurance business for about 18 years. Prior to the war, he was associated with the American Mutual Liability Insurance Co. in an executive capacity. From 1941 to 1946 he was a major in the Chemical Corps, acting as chief of safety. After the war he started an insurance brokerage business here, specializing in the insurance of private-type aircraft and their owners and pilots. He operated under the name of G. C. Whalen & Co., Inc., reinsuring all risks with Lloyd's of London. His new firm, "Americo" for short, will operate Nation-wide. Whalen, a native of Worcester, Mass., attended Georgetown University and George Washington University.

One on the Aisle—

A Film Captures Africa's Colors

By Richard L. Coe

THE METROPOLITAN has a fascinating Technicolored film in "Savage Splendor," an up-to-date trek touching some highlights of an African expedition headed by Armand Denis.

Also on the bill is a more typical adventure picture, a Western titled "Roughshod," with John Ireland, Robert Sterling and Claude Jarman, jr.

What sets "Savage Splendor" apart from African explorations of the past is its color. The processing is good and you get many memorable shots of that sun-drenched expanse whose shrouded history has given it the unworthy nickname of the Dark Continent.

This Technicolor give these hidden spots far more justice than previous films, for the air and atmosphere of Africa are the very qualities which make those who've once visited the area long to return. In the long African twilight, for instance, there is the beguiling sense that the world is standing still. Hushed, resplendent in soft and savage hues, the evening light holds its own, for a time, against imminent night. And when darkness comes, it, too, has its shades of color, an intensity which brings to the long moments of night the subdued excitement that one is at the heart of the human mystery. Previous pictures have never captured this African atmosphere, though "Black Narcissus" caught it for India's Himalayas.

Don't get the notion, however, that Denis has lingered on atmosphere. From a 22,000-mile trek he's compressed the more vivid human beings and animals into an hour's running time; one wonders about the shots he's not shown us.

There are visits to the pygmies, a hunt to capture a live rhino for zoos depleted during the war, underwater shots of the hippos in motion, a coronation ceremony for the king of the Bakuva, views of fishes and birds. The Denis vehicles are the latest for safari equipment and there's no attempt to be painfully humorous.

The Silence Is Broken

On the unfortunate side is the temptation to be a bit gee-whiz in tone; the natives are always doing the exceptional, which is vastly entertaining in the dance and saturnalia line, but destroys the essential simplicity of these little understood peoples. Granted, this livens up the works a deal, but the overall impression is too creamy.

In one scene Denis, on the soundtrack, is wondering how his expedition will be greeted by some natives, but since we see their backs as they face him, the scene is pointedly staged.

The music, too, allows none of those wracking silences that are part of the African fascination. Until Aldous Huxley's "smellies" come along, we'll probably have to wait for that dank odor of age that permeates the entire continent.

All told, though, Technicolor does a lot for Africa.

"SAVAGE SPLENDOR." An RKO-Radio release. Produced by Armand Denis and Lewis Cotlow. Written by Richard Hanser, photographed by Joseph Braun. At the Metropolitan.
"ROUGHSHOD." An RKO-Radio release, produced by Richard H. Berger and directed by Mark Robson. Screen play by Geoffrey Homes and Hugo Butler. At the Metropolitan.

THE WASHINGTON Film Council yesterday afternoon played host to three quarters of the town's film reviewers and William C. Thomas, of the Paramount-allied Pine & Thomas firm . . . The subject, one guess, was movies, specifically, "What Makes a Good Film?" . . . The answers were numerous . . . Mere theory, however, went down the drain, when Visitor Thomas came up with the after noon's most solid answer: A picture people pay enough to see is a good movie . . . Being blissfully out of trade, this reporter was highly titivated by so logical a notion, which seems to say that a good picture isn't a good picture till it's paid off its investment . . . On which theory it's going to take the Coe family 18 more years to consider it bought a good house . . . Oh, happy day!

PARTNER PINE also is in town, and yesterday at the Statler was host to virtually all the town's movie folk . . . The gentlemen now have three pictures readying for release; first to hit here will be "Captain China," with quite a lineup of folks: John Payne, Gail Russell, Jeffrey Lynn, Lon Chaney, Edgar Bergen and Michael O'Shea. . . . Like all Paramountaineers these days, the boys spoke ecstatically of Dr. DeMille's forthcoming sortie into the private lives of Samson and Delilah.

IN MET'S DOUBLE BILL: Claude Jarman, jr., and Robert Sterling share top roles in "Roughshod," a Western further starring John Ireland. Also on the Metropolitan's new bill is "Savage Splendor," an exploration of Africa in Technicolor by Armand Denis, long famed for his Dark Continent treks

'Public Bosom' Federal Fun, But for 'G' Guys, Gals Only

By Richard L. Coe
Post Reporter

Government gags, gambits and gobbledegook brought laughter at the too-familiar last night in the first performance of "The Public Bosom."

This new manuscript by two former newsmen, George Copeland and George Garrott, was performed as the first offering of the reactivated Agriculture Players in the Department of Agriculture auditorium, where it will be repeated tonight and Monday.

As it stands, "The Public Bosom" is more an outline of a play than the comedy the authors must have had in mind. Although Federal employes will doubtless find much to make them smile, the authors haven't been able to make more than an elongated sketch of what is possibly a fruity idea.

They're telling what might happen should a big business efficiency expert move into, er, activate the Hoover Report. Like other previous "expediters," their hero leaves Government bigger than he found it and only goes home because that looks like the quickest way back to Washington.

Having gotten their idea, Messrs. Copeland and Garrott haven't been able to make a play of it. Their reliance on gags, which Washingtonians will grasp thouugh the rest of the country wouldn't, has been their chief weapon. But the effect is like hearing one joke retold ad infinitum

The leads do well by their manuscript, with Patricia Bennett, as an office executive, and Orel Leonard, as the expediter, efficiently outstanding Pattie Hines, as a Government gal, and Robert Rainsbury, as a college man moored to Government service, also have a lively time.

Zelda Fichandler has directed the large cast, allowing a bit too many lines to be thrown at the audience rather than the cast.

'Quizspiration' Program

Teams representing the Army and Navy will fight for the championship on the weekly "Quizspiration" over Station WWDC at 7 p. m. today. The program is conducted by Evangelist Dale Crowley.

Season's Coldest Day Predicted, Possibly Snow

Forecasters last night predicted the lowest temperatures of the season for early today with the mercury dipping to 25 degrees in the city and 18 degrees in the outlying areas.

Possible snow or rain was predicted for tonight, and slightly milder temperatures and rain for Sunday.

Churches Schedule Musical Services

Musical settings of the story of the birth of Christ are a traditional part of the Christmas celebration. Listed below are some musical services for Sunday:

At Calvary Baptist Church, 8th and Hsts. nw., Christmas portions of Handel's "Messiah" will be performed by the Calvary choir and the choir of First Baptist Church of Rockville, Md., at 8 p. m. The orchestra of the Westminster Choir College, Princeton, N. J., will assist in the performance, which will be carried over Station WOL from 8:30 to 9:30 p. m.

Members of New York Avenue Presbyterian Church, 1301 New York ave. nw., will also hear portions of the "Messiah" at 8 p. m. At the service, the Rev. Dr. Norman V. Hope of Princeton University, will speak on "A Christian's Most Abiding Possession."

Three choral groups will join in performing the "Messiah" at 8 p. m. at Ninth Street Christian Church, 9th and D sts. ne., at 8 p. m. Dr. O. S. Beltz of the Washington Missionary College will conduct the 150-voice group from the Ninth Street Church, the Washington Missionary College and Second Baptist Church.

At Hamline Methodist Church, 16th and Allison sts. nw., the choir will give Joseph W. Clokey's Christmas Cantata "When the Christ Child Came" at 8 p. m.

Bach's "Christmas Oratorio" will be sung by the senior a-cappella choir at First Baptist Church, 16th and P sts. nw., at 8 p. m.

Another cantata, "The Story of Christmas" will be given at Fifteenth Street Christian Church, 526 15th st. se., at 8 p. m.

"The Life Everlasting," an Advent cantata, will be sung by the choir of the Church of the Epiphany, 1317 G st. nw., at 8 p. m. Also on the program will be a chorale recently composed by Adolph Torovsky, church choir director.

The second in a series of musical programs will be given at Mount Vernon Place Methodist Church, 900 Massachusetts ave. nw., at 8 p. m., when four of the church's choirs will sing, and the junior players present a pantomime.

Chevy Chase Junior College's Glee Club will sing a Christmas concert at 8 p. m. in the parish hall of Chevy Chase Methodist Church, 6401 Connecticut ave., Chevy Chase, Md.

A service sponsored by the Interchurch Fellowship of Washington at 4 p. m. at Calvary Methodist Church, 1459 Columbia rd. nw., will feature a Christmas concert by the choir of the School of Religion of Howard University.

Young people of St. John's Episcopal Church, Wisconsin ave. and Bradley la., Chevy Chase, Md., will sponsor a family carol service in the parish hall at 7:30 p. m. Sunday.

Three choirs will join in a carol program at 8 p. m. at Petworth Methodist Church, 32 Grant cir. nw.

Chanukkoh Will Begin On Thursday

Chanukkoh, the Jewish festival of lights, will begin at sundown Thursday, December 15, and continue for eight days.

Unlike other Jewish festivals, Chanukkoh commemorates a specific historical event—the victory of the Jews led by Judah Maccabee over the forces of Antiochus Epiphanes in 165 B. C.

Immediately after the victory, the Jewish leaders of Palestine cleansed and rededicated the temple in Jerusalem, which had been used by Syrian soldiers to worship Greek idols.

They proclaimed a great eight-day celebration to mark the rededication of the temple and the victory over the oppressors.

In the period which followed, the Jews were able to establish for a brief time a new, independent Jewish kingdom in Palestine.

Thus, Chanukkoh stands for two ideals—the achievement of religious liberty, and to many, a revival of the sentiment for a national development by the Jewish people.

A traditional part of the Chanukkoh celebration is the daily lighting of candles in homes and synagogues. One candle is lighted each day until on the final day of the festival eight lights blaze brightly in the menorah or candelabrum.

Because of this custom, Chanukkoh is know as the "festival of lights."

To many, the holiday dramatizes the fact that the forces of light, religion and freedom will overcome the forces of darkness, paganism and tyranny.

During this holiday season gifts are given to children and to the poor. Cheese dishes and a light fluffy pancake are traditional foods of Chanukkoh.

Worse Than Bomb

Adventists Told Peril Of Alcohol

Greater Washington Seventh-day Adventist Churches will stress the need for active church participation in a crusade against liquor at Temperance Day services today.

In proclaiming the day, Elder J. L. McElhany, Takoma Park, Md., president of the world General Conference of Seventh-day Adventists, declared the influence surrounding the consumption of alcoholic beverages are "a greater danger than that of the atomic bomb."

Urging all Adventists to promote total abstinence by pen, voice and vote, he said "no one can stand aloof in this great fight and be clear before God or his fellow men."

Many of the churches have asked leaders in the temperance movement to speak at services. William A. Scharffenberg of Washington, executive director of the American Temperance Society, will speak at 11 a. m. at Capital Memorial Church, 5th and F st. nw.

Funds raised at the services will be used to foster a Nation-wide advertising program to educate youhg people against liquor.

Scholar Gets Franciscans' Award Here

A pioneer scholar of Latin-American history will be honored at the annual academic session of the Academy of American Franciscan History at Catholic University Monday.

He is Dr. Herbert Eugene Bolton, professor of history at the University of California, who will receive the award Monday, 8 p. m., at McMahon Hall.

He will be presented with an illuminated scroll citing his work on the history of Franciscan missions in California and the Southwest, and his contributions to the process of canonization of Fray Junipero Serra.

Father Junipero, who arrived in the New World on December 7, 1749, founded Franciscan missions in California on what are today the sites of some of the State's major cities. Papers on his labors in the Far West will also be read at the academic session.

In connection with the meeting, the Most Rev. Amleto G. Cicognani, Apostolic Delegate to the United States, will be the celebrant of a solemn pontifical mass in honor of Our Lady of Guadaloupe at 10 a. m. Sunday in the Trinity College chapel, Michigan ave. and Franklin st. ne.

Founded in 1944, the Academy of American Franciscan History is composed of friars devoting their time to research on the history of their order in the Americas.

At the academy residence, 29 Cedar la., Bethesda, they have compiled a library of documents and have published several works on the subject. Major project at present is a four-volume edition of the letters of Father Junipero to be published in 1950.

The academy also publishes a quarterly magazine, The Americas, dedicated to the promotion of cultural relations among the countries of the Western Hemisphere. The magazine sponsors the award which will be presented to Dr. Bolton.

Congregation Hears Report

Members of All Souls' Church (Unitarian) this week received a first-hand report on the $2000 they collected at Christmas last year for the Unitarian Service Committee.

The money, along with contributions of several private individuals, was used to launch a summer educational institute for German teachers and social workers at Vohl, Germany.

In reporting to the Washington congregation on the project, Miss Helen Fogg, executive director of the institute, said that "what it achieved may well serve as the spark kindling an understanding of democracy that some day may help preserve peace."

During the nine-week institute more than 60 German youth workers met with nine volunteer American experts on education, social welfare and child guidance, to tackle the problems of the post-war German people.

The Americans and Germans worked out the programs for the three three-week courses cooperatively to meet the needs of the German workers.

These German social workers, who showed a great concern for building a better future for their country, were especially interested in learning more about the emotional needs of both children and adults, Miss Fogg said.

At workshop sessions, and during informal discussions with the Americans, they learned how to lead community activities, how to work in settlement houses and how to direct group recreational programs.

All Souls' Church, 16th and Harvard sts. nw., is again making a Christmas season drive for funds for the USC.

Concert Sunday Opens Lutheran Christmas Series

A Lutheran choral series will begin with a Christmas concert by the National Lutheran Chorus at 4 p. m. Sunday at Constitution Hall.

The chorus, composed of members of Lutheran churches in Greater Washington, and directed by R. E. Snesrud, will sing Chrismas carols of many lands. Also on the program will be a new selection written for the chorus by Dorothy Raddy Emery of Washington.

The second performance will be given at 8:30 p. m. February 14 at Constitution Hall when the Concordia Choir of Moorhead, Minn., presents a concert.

Final concert will be given March 20 at 8:30 p. m. by the Augustana Choir of Rock Island, Ill.

Mr. Kalfoyan to Speak

The Rev. Puzant Kalfoyan of New York, chairman of Armenian Presbyterian Missions in the United States, will speak at 2:30 p. m. Sunday at Washington Heights Presbyterian Church, Kalorama and Columbia rds. nw.

Catholic Veterans' Unit To Hold Yule Party

A Christmas party will be held Sunday by John F. Madigan Post, Catholic War Veterans, at St. Agnes Church, 21st and Randolph st., North Arlington, starting at 4 p. m.

A solemn benediction will open the program after which members and auxiliary will entertain children from parishes in Arlington County.

Old Fashioned Hymn-Sing

An old-fashioned hymn-sing will be held at 7:45 p. m. today at the First Brethren Church, 12th and E sts. se., under the sponsorship of Washington Youth for Christ.

Christmas in Britain To Be Service Theme

Christmas in the British Isles will be the theme of an Advent candle-lighting service at 3 p. m. Sunday at the Washington Federation of Churches, 1751 N st. nw.

The service is the second in a series of three sponsored by the Washington Council of Church Women. Next Sunday the theme will be "Christmas in Germany."

6857 Visit Art Show, Total Now 320,088

A total of 6857 persons yesterday visited the exhibition of Austrian government art treasures at the National Gallery of Art, boosting the total attendance to 320,088.

The exhibit opened November 20 and will continue to January 22. Visiting hours are 10 a. m. to 5 p. m. weekdays and 2 to 10 p. m. Sundays.

Presbyterian Church to Start Dual Services

Dual services will be inaugurated at Chevy Chase Presbyterian Church, Chevy Chase cir. nw., on Sunday.

The Rev. Dr. J. Hillman Hollister, pastor of the church, will preach at both services, at 9:30 and 11 a. m. This week his topic will be "The Law of the Conquest of Evil."

A nursery school will be provided for children one to three years old during the 9.30 a. m. service. Church school will also meet at that hour except for the senior department, which will meet at 11 a. m.

At 8 p. m. Sunday the chancel choir, assisted by the string quartet of the Montgomery County Symphony Orchestra, will present a Christmas program.

'Book of the World' Dr. Etchison's Subject

Universal Bible Sunday will be observed at 11 a. m. Sunday at Ryland Methodist Church, Branch ave. and S st. se., when Dr. Page McK. Etchison preaches on "The Book of the World."

Dr. Etchison is executive secretary of the Washington branch of the American Bible Society.

Hospital Discharges Judge John C. Collet

Judge John Caskie Collet of Kansas City was released from Walter Reed Hospital last night after being there nearly two months and headed home. Accompanied by Mrs. Collet, he had arranged to travel by train to Missouri.

Judge Collet, a Federal Circuit Court of Appeals judge and former Economic Stabilization director, had been confined in the hospital since he sustained a heart attack October 17 while on a visit here. He is a close friend of President Truman.

Dr. Spottswood Opens Sermon Series Sunday

The Rev. Dr. Stephen Gill Spottswood will begin a series of sermons on "The Expectation of the Spirit" at 11 a. m. Sunday at John Wesley A. M. E. Zion Church, 14th and Corcoran sts. nw. His first sermon is "God Is a Spirit."

Msgr. Reilly on Radio

The Right Rev. Msgr. John J. Reilly, director of the Shrine of the Immaculate Conception at Catholic University, will appear on "The Hour of Faith" over WMAL at 11:30 a. m. each Sunday during December.

Methodists Assail U. S. Food Hoard

Buck Hill Falls, Pa., Dec. 9 (AP). A Methodist church body labeled as "indefensible" today what it said was the United States practice of holding "enormous surpluses of unneeded food . . . in the face of widespread hunger of millions in many lands."

In a resolution at the close of the tenth annual meeting of the Board of Missions and Church Extension, Congress was urged to take immediate steps "to make available as much as possible of this food to areas of need overseas."

The board announced receipt of a message from the China Central Conference at Shanghai, a Methodist group. The message said the Methodist Church in China "lives in a period of new opportunities."

It said the church "is under the people's government. At the center of the new democracy is an intense desire to improve the welfare of the masses of the people in China."

The board made no comment.

Sunday CHURCH EVENTS

Coast Guard Saves 21 Off Southern Coast

Charleston, S. C., Dec. 9 (AP).—Eighteen fishermen and three crew members were rescued this afternoon by the Coast Guard from the Francis III off Charleston.

Heavy seas pounded the small sight-seeing and fishing vessel, grounded intentionally when it sprang a leak, but the rescue patrol boat encountered no serious difficulty in removing the men. No one was injured.

Employment Roll Of Government Cut by 50,711

The Government cut 50,711 persons off the payrolls in October, the Byrd committee reported yesterday.

This group, the Senate-House committee on non-essential expenditures headed by Senator Byrd (D., Va.), said there still are 2,006,365 persons working for Uncle Sam. However, this was the lowest mark for the payrolls since 1947.

The committee said the military services accounted for 95 percent of the employment drop by a reduction of 48,366 in nonuniformed personnel. Of these the Navy lopped off 21,329, the Army 17,851 and the Air Force 9,371. Civilian employment in the office of the Secretary of Defense increased by 185.

The Agriculture and Commerce Departments cut payrolls but the committee said that "as usual the Postoffice Department led all the agencies reporting increases." It took on 1776 additional workers during October.

$2 Million Vepco Bonds Planned for Building

Richmond, Va., Dec. 9 (AP).—Virginia Electric & Power Co. has filed application with the State Corporation Commission for authority to sell $2,200,000 in first and refunding mortgage bonds and to use the proceeds for construction.

The application was set by the SEC for informal consideration December 22. VEPCO asked for permission to sell the bonds to insurance companies at 101 and ½ percent of their principal amount plus accured interest from September 1.

Mormons to Dedicate Firehouse as Chapel

A remodeled firehouse will be dedicated as the chapel of the Capitol Ward of the Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints at two services Sunday.

Dedication services will be held at 10 a. m. and 2:30 p. m. at the new chapel, 2715 22d st. ne.. Ezra T. Benson, a member of the Council of the Twelve Apostles, presiding authorities of the Mormon church, will speak at both services.

Organized in 1941 by 285 members of the Washington Ward, the Capitol Ward today has 600 members from Northeast, Southeast and Southwest Washington and from southern Maryland. (A ward is roughly comparable to a parish.)

The fire hall, once used by a horse-drawn fire company, was purchased in July 1946. Immediately afterward, men, women and boys of the ward began transforming the 39-year-old structure into a place of worship. Among their major jobs was that of tearing out wooden partitions and installing brick ones in order to comply with the District fire code.

The wide front doors of the building were bricked in entirely, as was the hole in the ceiling through which the firemen once slid down the pole to the engines. A false ceiling was installed 2 feet below the original one to improve acoustics.

Stalls where horses were once kept have been converted into a soundproof room where mothers with small children can sit and hear the services without the babies being heard by the worshiping congregation.

The chapel itself is in the room where fire engines were once kept, and the old sleeping quarters for firemen has been converted into a recreation hall.

Total cost of the building, including land and improvements, was $84,013.99. Of this sum, half was paid by the general authorities of the church in Salt Lake City. Labor donated by members was valued at $10,705.58, and the remainder was paid in cash by the ward.

Present bishopric of the Capitol Ward is: Joseph Henderson Tippets, bishop; Alan S. Young, first counselor, and June Thayn, second counselor. Donald C. Roden is ward clerk, and Gerald W. Klemm is assistant ward clerk.

Young is a great-grandson of Brigham Young, pioneer Mormon leader, and Bishop Tippets is a grandson of a member of the group of Mormons led across the country to Utah by Young.

Dupont Circle Wire Snare Stalls Trolleys

Streetcar traffic was tied up yesterday for nearly two hours on the Mount Pleasant line by a freak accident which warped a conductor rail.

Capital Transit Co. Vice President E. C. Giddings estimated that about 400 persons had to wait about 20 minutes before the company was able to substitute bus service for the stalled trolleys.

Giddings said the acident happened at 8:55 a. m., just after the peak hour, when a northbound car, going into the Dupont Circle underpass, picked up a piece of wire which had dropped into the rail slot. When the streetcar reached the underground platform, the wire had wrapped itself around the trolley's plow and grounded on the conductor rail.

Giddings said the grounding caused a small fire which did no appreciable damage.

The Capital Transit official estimated that between 25 and 30 streetcars were immobilized by the tie-up, and that an equal number of buses were used as substitutes.

Realty Board In Virginia to Install Officers

Newly elected officers of the Alexandria-Arlington-Fairfax real estate board will be installed at the board's Christmas dinner dance at the Belle Haven Country Club, Alexandria, Saturday evening.

They are Charles L. Hanowell, Falls Church, president; Carroll Wright, Arlington, and Harry Kirk, Alexandria, vice presidents; Joel Broyhill, Arlington, secretary and Joseph W. Seay, Falls Church, treasurer.

Members of the executive committee will be the officers and Clyde L. Eastman, Falls Church; W. S. Hoge, 3d, and J. Wesley Buchanan, Arlington; George C. Keeler, and Frank W. Clarke, Alexandria. Keeler is retiring president.

Israel to Be Topic

Mrs. Alisa Klausner Eskol, lecturer and author, will discuss "Israel Today" at 6:45 p. m. Sunday in the parish house of Luther Place Memorial Church, 1226 Vermont ave. nw. The lecture, open to the public, is being sponsored by the Lutheran Students' Association.

Pepco Customers Won't Get December Rebates, PUC Rules

Customers of Potomac Electric Power Co. will not receive a discount on their December bills this year.

This was assured yesterday by a Public Utilities Commission order amending the plan adopted in February, 1948, to stabilize electricity rates.

The original plan provided that the company was entitled to a 5½ percent return on its capital investment. Profits in excess of this amount were to be divided, the company to keep half and the other half to be divided between customer rebates and a stabilization fund.

When the company earned less than 5½ percent it could dip into the stabilization fund to make up the difference. Rate adjustments would be considered only when this fund became very large or small.

The order issued yesterday amended the plan to specify no customer rebate will be made when the stabilization fund is less than 3 percent of total annual operating revenues. This figure is computed at the end of September and equated to an annual basis.

Because the fund is now well below 3 percent of estimated 1949 revenues, the PUC ordered all excess profits, except the company's 50 percent, placed in the fund.

Calculation of the company's return was complicated by construction and opening of a new power plant in Alexandria.

This plant is owned by Braddock Light & Power Co., a wholly-owned subsidiary of Pepco. Pepco advanced Braddock $21,500,000 for construction of the plant, and claimed this should be included in the rate base on which its rate of return is figured. If it were included, the company estimated its return would be less than 5½ percent.

Pro Football Loops Merge at Last, End Costly War

This Morning

—With Shirley Povich

AND NOW AFTER four years of banging their heads against the steampipes, the pro football people have been smitten by a sudden outburst of common sense, and there is peace. The NFL and the AAC are merging, as the alternative to going broke.

Their tough old craniums were showing no visible damage, but apparently the pain was beginning to register where it truly hurt—in their wallets. Pride wenteth before a fall in their bank balances.

Povich

Peace, it's wonderful, for the club owners and the customers. The only segment of the game still disenchanted is the football players. They will be hardly overwhelmed by what is good news for the rest of the industry. When there was a war on, you know, the players were the profiteers.

There'll be no more frenzied bidding for their talents as when league was aligned against league, and second-string tackles were commanding as much as $800 a game. From here on they'll be swept into the wonderful monopoly of the club owners who can dictate salaries, with no more suicidal bidding for graduating college stars.

PROBABLY THE MAN to feel the first impact of the sudden outbreak of peace is Leon Hart, Notre Dame's All-America end and the most widely sought campus graduate. He's lost his superb bargaining position. Before yesterday he was on the draft lists of the Detroit Lions of the NFL and the Baltimore Colts of the AAC and was demanding "at least $25,000 to sign.

For Hart the picture is changed now. He'll be dealt off to either Detroit or Baltimore by mutual agreement of the new league. They won't have to bid against each other. The team that gets the rights to him can force him to sign at their terms or impose the traditional, if somewhat illegal, boycott of pro football.

Even major league baseball hasn't dared to go as far as football in dealing with college graduates. The graduating college baseball player can sign with the highest bidder, and is not labeled as any particular club's property until he does sign. But pro football gives him no choice except to sign with the club that drafts him or be excluded from playing in the game's big leagues.

THE MERGER IS a life-saver for both leagues. It gets rid of absurd conditions in New York and Chicago where three teams were competing for the patronage, and only two of the six were breaking even. It merges the two Los Angeles clubs, which were also in cut-throat competition, and it gets rid of Buffalo where the weather is always a hazard. And payrolls will be cut.

For the Redskins, it is a particular boon. Here, dwindling attendance had become alarming, what with expenses running high. Now the Redskins are assured at least one game a year, probably two, with the Baltimore Colts, with transportation costs negligible, the intercity rivalry a natural, and Baltimore ranking as one of the better crowd-drawing towns in either league.

And it gives Washington fans a chance to see those super AAC teams, the Cleveland Browns and San Francisco Forty Niners, who for four years were merely legend to Redskin followers. Now Washington will get a glimpse of Otto Graham and Frankie Albert and Buddy Young and Marion Motley and Y. A. Tittle and George Ratterman and their AAC colleagues.

OF COURSE, it could have happened three years ago save for the absurd conceit of superiority by the NFL, which spurned a peace treaty with the new league and failed even to acknowledge the fact that there was an AAC. For the NFL, it was a pleasant fiction until it began to get too expensive to maintain.

The new alignment puts the issue squarely up to the Redskins to come up with a better football team or take an awful whacking in what is going to be a stronger league. George Marshall hasn't distinguished himself either in picking his football players or his coaches, and those half-time productions don't count in the league standings.

It's still an unbalanced league, with 13 teams in it, and the schedules out of kilter, but it's a sight better than the old alignment of two weak circuits. Growth and maturity are wonderful. Stubbornness, pet piques and jealousies kept the two leagues apart for too long. Boys will be boys, of course, but why did so many of them have to own pro football teams?

Colts, 49ers, Cleveland, Join Ten NFL Teams

By Herb Altschull

Philadelphia, Dec. 9 (AP).—Professional football's four-year war was settled across a conference table today. The All-America Conference merged into the National Football League.

Thus ended one of the most costly wars in the history of athletics. Losses to clubowners soared to upwards of two million dollars in the protracted battle for players and attendance.

The new league is to be called the National-American Football League—the NAF. It is to be made up of 13 teams: the complete 10-club NFL and three from the fledgling AAC.

Nobody said so at the hastily summoned press conference at which the report was flashed, but the merger unquestionably is a victory for the older NFL, which fought for four years to drive the AAC out of business.

Bert Bell, the chubby, affable Philadelphia Main Liner, remains at the helm of the new loop as commissioner. He signed for a new 10-year pact at an undisclosed salary. Bell had been commissioner of the NFL.

O. O. Kessing, commissioner of the AAC, resigns at the close of the current season. He tendered his resignation some weeks ago.

Under the new setup, Emil R. Fischer of the Green Bay Packers will become president of the National Division and Daniel Sherby of the Cleveland Browns head of the American Division.

If there is one man responsible for the merger it is Horace Stoneham, ruddy-faced owner of the New York baseball Giants.

Talks Last Week

Stoneham is owner of the Polo Grounds, where two New York NFL teams played in 1949 and lost a considerable amount of money.

Bell and J. Arthur Friedlund, representing the AAC, told newsmen that Stoneham started the merger move by summoning Bell and Friedlund to New York last Friday.

They talked for a while there and then came to Philadelphia two days ago. Round-the-clock conferences came to an end shortly afternoon today and the two men, tired but jubilant, summoned reporters to break the news.

Bell, unshaven but beaming, joined with the dapper Friedlund to announce the new league was conceived "not only in the interest of the public but also to assure the permanency of professional football."

These are the 13 teams in the NAF:

From the NFL: Washington, Philadelphia, New York Giants, New York Bulldogs, Pittsburgh, Chicago Bears, Chicago Cardinals, Detroit, Green Bay and Los Angeles.

From the AAC: San Francisco 49ers, Cleveland Browns, Baltimore Colts.

Player Problem Rough

The league is to be split into the National and American divisions with the winners of the divisions meeting in a world football championship. Makeup of the divisions has not yet been determined.

The complication in the merger is what will happen to the players on the three AAC teams liquidated in the move and to the college players already drafted by clubs in the two circuits for the 1950 seasonn.

The AAC and NFL draft meetings were cancelled.

All of these players will be tossed into a giant pool when the NAF gets together at its first meeting, tentatively arranged for January.

It will take approval of 11 of the 13 teams for any player to be assigned to a new club.

Bell said that the only players who will not be affected by the formation of the new league are the 32 players on each of the rosters of the 13 teams in the new league.

The two New York teams are special cases, however. Dan Topping's New York Yankees of the AAC was purchased outright by Ted Collins, owner of the New York Bulldogs. Collins acquired the right to deal with all but six of the players on the Yankees.

Those six go to the New York Giants. The names of the six players were not disclosed.

In addition to the Yankees, the Buffalo Bills, Los Angeles Dons and Chicago Hornets of the AAC are going out of business. The Hornets are to be broken up completely, while the Dons merge with Los Angeles Rams and the bills with the Cleveland Browns.

James Breuil, owner of the Buffalo club of the AAC, has acquired what Bell and Friedlund said was "a substantial interest" in the Browns and has exclusive rights of that club to present exhibition games at Buffalo.

GEORGE MARSHALL OF REDSKINS SMOKES PIPE OF PEACE

Redskins Aligned With Eagles, Bears Giants, Packers, Pitt

By Bus Ham
Post Sports Editor

George Preston Marshall, who bosses the Washington Redskins, held high court in high glee in his offices yesterday over the merger of the National Football League and the All-America Conference.

With newspapermen almost circling his desk, Marshall answered any and all questions like a man who had just won the world's heavyweight championship.

He said that the Redskins probably will be in the National division of the new National-American Football League, and that the Redskins' playmates next fall will be the Philadelphia Eagles, Chicago Bears, New York Giants, Pittsburgh Steelers and Green Bay Packers.

Marshall wasn't speaking officially. But he "thinks" that is the way the National division will shape up.

In the American division will be Baltimore, Cleveland, Chicago Cardinals, Detroit, San Francisco, Los Angeles and the New York Bulldogs.

The National division, as Marshall sees it, will play a home-and-home round robin schedule. That makes 10 games for each team and will leave the Redskins two dates for meetings with the Cleveland Browns and Baltimore's Colts, probably.

"Both divisions will play under the constitution and by-laws that the National Football League had, and that means a 12-game schedule for each team," Marshall said.

When questions by reporters swung around to Baltimore's part in the new setup, Marshall had ready answers.

What had happened to cause him to withdraw his objections to having Baltimore in the league? (It was reported about a year ago that Marshall blocked merger of the pros at that time because of his objections to Baltimore.)

"Let's get the record straight," Marshall said. "I never have opposed Baltimore. I have said repeatedly that I preferred Baltimore to either San Francisco or Los Angeles for obvious reasons.

Sees Great Rivalry

"Baltimore is close to Washington and a great natural rivalry can be built up between our two towns."

But a little later he admitted that a "consideration" was involved in awarding Baltimore a place in the new lineup. Asked specifically how much money he got for giving up his territorial rights so that Baltimore could be admitted, Marshall said:

"That comes under the heading of my private business. I was paid a nominal sum."

That seemed to sound like a small amount so he amended it: "In the figures we deal in here in Washington, anything under a trillion dollars is a nominal sum.

(Under the National Football League rules, Marshall controlled all territory within 75 miles of Washington, which included Baltimore, of course).

Marshall has it figured out that Baltimore will have to play "sort of a screwball schedule" in the American division.

"With seven teams in that division, it looks to me as if Baltimore will have to play every other team in the league for its 12 games."

All Clubs Stronger

Formally, the announcement of which teams are in the National division and which are in the American, will be made at the league meeting in January.

There is no indication at this time as to how much the merger will strengthen the Redskins for the 1950 season.

"It's bound to make all of the teams better," Marshall said. "Four teams have gone out of existence, and the 128 players on those teams will be scrapping for jobs next fall.

"No, I don't know who we'll get. That all has to be worked out later.

"The only concession or agreement made in regard to players was in New York, where Ted Collins of the Bulldogs bought outright Dan Topping's Yankees of the All-America Conference. Those Bulldogs may have the toughest club in the league next season."

Marshall's parting remark as reporters and cameramen left was: "Don't forget that the 10 original National League teams are still in this thing, and only three from the All-America Conference, if you want to know who won the war."

Lineup for New Pro League

Philadelphia, Dec. 9 (AP).—Here are the teams that will make up the new National-American Football League:

Philadelphia
Cleveland (combined with Buffalo)
Los Angeles (Los Angeles Dons and Los Angeles Rams combined).
New York Giants.
New York Bulldogs (six New York Yankee players go to Giants, remainder to Bulldogs).
Baltimore
San Francisco
Pittsburgh
Chicago Bears
Chicago Cardinals
(Chicago Hornets eliminated)
Green Bay

Villemain Wins Upset Non-Title Decision From Champ LaMotta

Frenchman Hits Sluggish Jake at Will

New York, Dec. 9 (AP).—Tireless Robert Villemain of France fired a constant barrage of blows at Middleweight Champion Jake LaMotta tonight to win an upset 10-round nontitle decision in Madison Square Garden. LaMotta weighed 165, Villemain 162¼.

The spirited little Frenchman, firing away from the opening bell, never let up on the slow, sluggish champion and just about boosted himself into position for a title fight with the fading Bronx Bull.

Both judges, Arthur Susskind and Joe Agnello, voted 7-3 for Villemain with Referee Ruby Goldstein making it unanimous with a 5-3-2 edge for the 25-year-old Frenchman. The AP score card had Villemain ahead, 7-3.

At the weigh-in for the fight early today, Eddie Eagan, chairman of the New York State Athletic Commission, told Villemain that if he won he would deserve a shot at the championship which LaMotta won from the late Marcel Cerdan.

The stocky, 5-foot 6½-inch Parisian gained revenge as well as a possible title chance. Last March he seemed to have won easily over LaMotta in a 12-rounder here but the decision was awarded to the New Yorker instead. Eagan suspended two officials for voting for LaMotta then. A new set of officials worked tonight.

Villemain swarmed all over Jake, jabbing, poking and cuffing him with both hands from close up as the 9599 fans cheered him wildly.

Villemain led from the third round on. He cut Jake over the left eye in the sixth round and had him spewing blood from his mouth from the seventh round to the end.

Colts' Driskill Calls Merger 'Only Sensible Solution' to Problem

Baltimore, Dec. 9 (U.P.).—Walter Driskill, president of the Baltimore Colts, said in commenting on the merger of the warring pro football leagues that his club was "glad to be a part of the new league."

"It's the only sensible solution to pro football's many problems," he said.

Driskill emphasized that the Colts will go through with their plan to sell 50,000 tickets for the first exhibition game next year to raise money for the team.

On the problem of the player draft for next year, Driskill admitted that "he didn't know" what would happen. Both the Colts and the Detroit Lions hold draft rights to Leon Hart, the All-America end from Notre Dame.

East Colleges Curtail Video

New York, Dec. 9 (AP). — The Eastern College Athletic Conference, comprising 86 colleges and universities, recommended today that its members make no commitments to televise any sports events next season.

Terming the new medium a "potential threat to the financial structure of intercollegiate athletics," the Eastern body prepared to make a strenuous fight against it at the Hearing of the Eastern group's decision, a spokesman for one of the leading radio and television chains commented:

"They're just seeing a bogey man. Back in the early thirties the same schools voted to ban radio broadcasts of their games, but they thought better of it after a year or two."

As the Eastern Conference voted unanimously to accept the report of the television committee, it appears certain that no games played in this section will be televised next year.

GW Defeats North Carolina

Chapel Hill, N. C., Dec. 9.—George Washington scored 10 points in the last three minuts of play after being deadlocked 44-44, to take a 54-44 victory over North Carolina here tonight.

Johnny Moffatt led the late Colonial surge with two baskets and two free throws as three Carolina players, John Tsantes, Hugo Kappler, and Nick Nearman fouled out with less than two minutes to play.

The Tar Heels were completely bottled up by the Colonials' sliding zone defense in the first half, and were limited to four field goals and 17 points as GW took a 26-17 lead on nine fields goals and eight foul shots.

Southern Votes to Feed Its Athletes

By Morris Siegel
Post Reporter

Roanoke, Va., Dec. 9. — The Southern Conference tonight set its own house in order, and if the National Collegiate Athletic Association agrees the league will have won most of its battle with the NCAA's purity code bugaboo.

In addition to granting membership to West Virginia and voting to hire an athletic commissioner, the conference voted to permit its 17 members to set up a training table where athletes could eat the year around. It will ask the NCAA to incorporate it into its constitution.

Heretofore, the conference's constitution did not permit a training table. Tonight's action was merely putting into force a recommendation that a special conference committee made last winter in conjunction with the Southeastern and Southwestern Conferences, who have also had their troubles with the NCAA.

Under its present financial-aid-to-athletes code, the NCAA does not permit scholarships to include more than books, tuition and fees. Recipients must work for room and board.

Under the new setup, which the Southern Conference will ask the NCAA to adopt at the January meeting, athletes must work only for their room, which costs approximately $150 a college year.

Caps Meet Fort Wayne

The Caps have a king-sized task at Uline Arena tonight, trying to snap a three-game losing streak against Fort Wayne's powerful Pistons.

Fort Wayne breezes into town fresh from a convincing 87-66 win over Minneapolis. It was registered Thursday, the night after the Caps were trounced soundly by the Lakers, 93-76.

Oddly, two weeks ago here, the Caps turned back Fort Wayne by that score. Tonight, though, they'll be underdogs.

Fred Schaus, sensational rookie from West Virginia, will be the man the Caps have to watch. Against Minneapolis he tallied 26 points and is leading the Pistons with a 15.6 average in 16 games.

In a 7:15 preliminary, the unlimited CYO team meets Fort Belvoir. The CYO team includes Billy Conn, Georgetown's flashy football halfback, and Danny Kraus, former Hoya basketball captain.

Woodruff Quits As Baylor Coach

Waco, Tex., Dec. 9 (AP).—Coach Bob Woodruff resigned tonight as Baylor University football coach. He said he could not accept a compromise settlement by the university athletic committee on differences between himself and Athletic Director Ralph R. Wolf.

Hoyas Win Third in Row

New York, Dec. 9.—Tommy O'Keefe dropped in 20 points to lead Georgetown to a 78-70 win over the New York Athletic Club here tonight.

It was the third in a row for the unbeaten Hoyas.

Griffith Denies Deal With Tribe

Clark Griffith laughed off a report yesterday that he was negotiating a six-player deal with the Cleveland Indians, involving Ray Scarborough, his ace pitcher.

"Nothing to it," said Griffith of the story the Indians had offered him Pitcher Steve Gromek, Catcher Mike Tresh, Infielder Johnny Berardino and Pitcher Lyman Linde for Scarborough and another player.

The Nats' president admitted that he was still dickering "with several clubs, however." These included the Yankees and the Detroit Tigers.

—Players Will Be Pooled—

Cleveland and Frisco Pay 'Modest Sum', Colts $50,000

Commissioner Bert Bell of the National Football League last night explained what will happen to players caught in the merger of the NFL and the All-America Conference yesterday.

"All of the players affected will go into one big pool and become subject to our draft procedure," Bell told The Washington Post from his home in Philadelphia.

"This will include all college players coming up, players left over from All-America Conference teams that are dropping out (except the New York Yankees who become the property of the New York Bulldogs) and all players on reserve lists in both leagues.

Bell said there was no agreement that players of the Los Angeles Dons and Los Angeles Rams would be lumped together under the Rams' management.

"The Dons will go into the big draft pool, including their giant passer, Glenn Dobbs," Bell said.

Bell emphasized there is no possibility this season of a playoff between the National League and All-America Conference winners.

Cleveland and San Francisco were admitted to the National-American Football League for "modest sums," in the merger yesterday, but the Baltimore Colts paid a stiffer price, The Washington Post learned last night.

A condition of the merger was that the three teams from the All-America Conference match the equity of the 10 NFL clubs in the league's treasury. Thus they each had to pay one-tenth of the NFL's treasury balance.

But Commissioner Bert Bell declared "we never carried heavy balances. Usually it was between $50,000 and $100,000."

In addition to a franchise price of from $5000 to $10,000, the Colts were charged an extra sum by the league for invading the Redskins' territory.

League and club officials refused to disclose the figure, which is estimated at no more than $50,000. That sum will be paid to the league by the Colts, and "kicked-back" to the Redskins.

"But the Colts didn't deal with George Marshall," said Bell. "They dealt only with me. I set the price, the Redskins didn't."

Rockfish Are Running At Gooses

By Ralph Murdock

Murdock

SEVERAL WEEKS ago we led with our chin with the prediction that rockfish could be taken with rod and reel in this area up until Christmas. The catches made during the current week are indications that we could be right. Herring Bay and Chesapeake Bay have been the scenes of action for some time. The fish then moved to Sharp's Light and are now located at the Gooses.

To the average angler, who does most of his fishing in midsummer, the Gooses is known only as a hot spot for hardheads. But to the hardy fisherman who prefers trolling in the fall, the Gooses to him is the battleground for the tackle busters. The bigger the bait the better they like it. You now have to fish in reverse English. Instead of fishing on the surface, you now troll on the bottom.

Here are some recent catches. All were made at the Gooses. George Ricker and Capt. Roxie Neiman team up on 66 beauties that weighed from 2½ to 6 pounds. Morris Kisseleff and party boated 33, 10 of which scaled from 6 to 9 pounds. The balance averaged 1½ to 2 pounds. Capt. Harry Manifold was the skipper.

The following day the same guide brought in 30 hefties, the largest weighing 14½ pounds. Dr. Elmer Smith and party comprised the balance of the crew. Practically all of the fish were taken on steel lines with large bucktails and drones. All three parties left from Deale, Md.

CRISFIELD was chosen as headquarters port for the 1950 Chesapeake Bay Fishing Fair at the fourteenth annual Fishing Fair Association meeting at which the choice of Crisfield or Tilghman's Island was submitted. The date for the Fair was set for August 18-20. Officers elected included Thon as R. Bridwell of Crisfield, president; A. Lee Amos of Hyattsville, first vice president; Max Chambers of Preston, secretary-treasurer.

Armstrong Meets Allentown's Central Catholic

Two of the crack high school teams of the East, Armstrong High and Central Catholic of Allentown, Pa., will meet this afternoon at Turner's Arena in one of the season's best games.

Allentown has won the Pennsylvania State title twice in the past three years. Armstrong has won the District title in its section the past six years, taken the South Atlantic Conference cup three years and the North Carolina invitational tournament twice.

Today's game, starting at 2 o'clock, will be televised by WOIC (channel 9) at 1:50 p. m.

Navy Ace, Excitement Place, Show

By Walter Haight
Post Reporter

Charles Town, W. Va., Dec. 9.—Batchfly, son of Heelfly came through with flying colors today in the Brother Sam purse, named for Gen. Samuel Howard of Corregidor fame. Dick Lawless, leading rider at the meeting, brought the black gelding home a length and a quarter in front of the closest opposition.

The trained R. B. Archer entry of Navy Ace and Excitement was second and third in the field of eight operating over the 6½ furlong course, Batchfly was clocked in 1:23 2/5 and returned a $7.20 mutuel.

The victory was the sixth of a busy year involving 27 starts for Batchfly, owned by Mrs. Thomas Helm. In addition to his triumphs, the 5-year-old has been second seven times and third twice.

Hippodrome, Fancy Answer and Navy Ace did the chief running in the early stages, but only Navy Ace was around when the real battle got under way. Excitement moved around on the outside along with Batchfly and the entry was one-two at one stage of the stretch.

However, Lawless roused Batchfly and the gelding responded to dispose of his rivals and win in approved going-away fashion. Mrs. E. G. Hullcoat's Princess Gala trying for the second day in a row to grab a purse, was fourth.

Lawless had a victory earlier on the program. He took command in the opening furlong with L. Waingold's Sobre Todos and stayed in front to produce a $6.40 mutuel.

DEAR FOLKS:

There's a horse here who beat Citation. He didn't finish in front of the Calumet ace but those who saw the race will have to admit that Hefty's presence at Havre de Grace that day allowed Saggy to win. Hefty forced Citation wide coming into the stretch. In today's fourth race, Hefty failed to show speed enough to get in the way. After two years of trying and being on top of some of the best sprinters, Chaffee Dee finally won a race. The colt is owned by C. E. George, of Washington, and is out of the mare Highland Song who was a champion around the minor tracks hereabouts for a number of years. Jockey Buddy Root gave Chaffee Dee the right ride. Root, by the way, will perform at Sunshine Park this winter, giving first call to Wayne Kendrick's stable. See you on the rail—BILL.

Southern Aids Players

would not say so, this, in effect, was the conference's solution to the peculiar situations which confront such schools as VPI, VMI, and The Citadel where the athletes do not have time to work for their room and board.

These three schools, along with non conference Virginia, have either been cited or have admitted their failure to comply with the purity code.

The conference's action in regards to training tables means simply this: The football players wil be permitted to eat at the training tables all year instead of only during the football season. This takes care of their meals.

And what if the NCAA says no to the Conference's recommendation?

"We'll simply have to wait and see what happens," said Geary Eppley of Maryland, outgoing Conference president.

"The athlete can work for his room in his off season, spending the same amount of time on the job that he devotes to his particular sport. We do not believe this request unreasonable and we have high hopes the NCAA will adopt it."

West Virginia became the seventeenth member of the Nation's largest Conference this afternoon, sponsored by the University of Maryland. The Mountaineers' eligibility begins July 1.

Virginia, which had also been considered for readmittance (the Cavaliers withdrew in 1939) asked that no action on its application be taken until after the NCAA meeting.

Landon Booters Beat Priory Again, 2 to 1

Landon beat Priory's soccer team for the second time within a week yesterday, 2-1, on the Priory field.

Lloyd Krimer and Sid Prince booted in the Landon goals.

In Nation-wide Poll

Oklahoma's Bud Wilkinson Named 'Coach of Year'

New York, Dec. 9 (AP).—Charles (Bud) Wilkinson, who led the Oklahoma Sooners through an unbeaten football season, today was named 1949 "coach of the year" by the New York World-Telegram and other Scripps-Howard newspapers.

A Nation-wide poll was conducted with the cooperation of the American Football Coaches Association, and in this fifteenth annual ballot, Wilkinson drew 102 first-place votes.

WILKINSON

Next was Lynn Waldorf of California, with 69 votes, followed by Notre Dame's Frank Leahy with 43.

Wilkinson was named for first, second or third place on 199 of the 382 ballots returned. On a point total, 5-3-1 basis, he scored 735 points to Waldorf's 543.

The Oklahoma mentor last year finished in a tie for seventh when Benny Oosterbaan of Michigan won top honors.

Wilkinson has been a head coach only three years, all at Oklahoma. The Sooners have won 20 straight games since dropping their 1948 opener to Santa Clara.

Wesley Fesler of Ohio State was fourth in the balloting with 27 votes, one above Tuss McLaughry of Dartmouth, Ivan Williamson of Wisconsin polled 24, while Jess Neely of Rice was next with 17.

Tech Beats W-L in Opener, 41-35

McKinley Holds Off Late Rally

McKinley Tech ran up a 29-8 halftime lead and held on to defeat Washington-Lee of Arlington, 41-35, yesterday at Tech in the opening basketball game for both.

Bill Breen and Tony Sgro led the Tech attack with 13 and 11 points. Snookie Kernan, although getting only one point, played a very good floor game and was particularly valuable under the backboards for the Trainers.

George Russell was high point man for the day, leading the W.-L. attack with 15 points. Jim Williams contributed seven and Ken Jones six.

Marines Fight For Title Today

Special to The Washington Post

Quantico, Va., Dec. 9.—Seeking revenge for their only service loss in three seasons, Quantico Marines meet Camp Lejeune (N. C.) Marines in the All-Navy East Coast football playoff at 1 p. m. here tomorrow.

The public is welcome and will be admitted free.

Winner of what promises to be a bitter duel will leave by plane Sunday for the All-Navy championship game in Los Angeles' Memorial Coliseum, December 17. Quantico has won the last two.

Just a month ago, on the Marine Corps birthday, Lejeune stunned Quantico, 23-7, at its Second Marine Division base.

Quantico finds itself in a strange underdog role and in Lejeune meets a service team with a better record. The Carolinians have won 11 of 12 starts, bowing only to Fort Bragg. They haven't yielded a touchdown all season through their powerful line.

The Virginia Marines have lost three of 12 starts. Xavier University snapped their 27-game winning streak, 29-7, and West Virginia beat them, 47-26. Included in their nine victories are conquests of VPI, VMI, Wayne University and Niagara U.

Wilson Teachers Win Again, 57-49

Terps, American and Catholic Are Basketball Hosts Tonight

There's college basketball on three fronts here tonight.

University of Maryland, beaten three times on a tour of the South, makes its home debut against Washington and Lee at 8:15.

American University, rested after its heartbreaking 68-63 loss to Georgetown, entertains Davis and Elkins at 8:45.

And Catholic University, all even after two games, is host to colorful Mount St. Mary's at 8:30.

In other games involving area teams, Navy plays Harvard in Boston; Wilson Teachers visit East Carolina State in Wilson, N. C.; Virginia and Duke clash in Norfolk, and Quantico journeys to William and Mary.

On the road this week the Terrapins lost to Virginia Tech, 63-57; Tennessee, 61-40, and Virginia, 66-56. Their only balm was the sharpshooting of sophomore Lee Brawley of Duncan, Ariz., who scored 55 points.

W. & L. lost to Southern Conference champ North Carolina State, but bounced back to whip Wake Forest this week.

A. U. is not underestimating Davis and Elkins, especially since the West Virginians upset the Eagles last year while using their starting five for the entire game. Those five, Carl Payne, Joe Cervalo, Harold Huey, Ted Chismar and Joe Pukach are back.

C. U. lost its opener to Georgetown, but regained its touch against Gallaudet, and is favored to whip the Mountaineers from Emmitsburg, Md.

Pro Leagues Finally Merge

Connie Mack, owner-manager of the Philadelphia Athletics, organized a team in 1902.

The National Football League was organized in 1921 although it wasn't known by that name until a year later. Its first name was the American Professional Football Association. The league was reorganized in 1927 and six years later the circuit was broken up into Eastern and Western divisions with the winners playing for the world championship.

In 1946, however, eight teams got together and organized themselves as the All America Conference.

It was at that point that the war started.

Last winter it appeared as if the two leagues would get together. Representatives met for three days at Philadelphia, but they couldn't agree on a merger plan.

Hints of a peace between the loops were dropped sporadically ever since then, but it wasn't until Stoneham got Bell and Friedlund together that something concrete was done.

Friedlund is general counsel and secretary of the baseball New York Yankees and the football Yankees. He and Bell and George Weiss, vice president and general manager of the baseball Yankees, conferred briefly in New York at Stoneham's invitation before the confab moved here

Hamilton's 129 Leads Miami Open

Miami, Fla., Dec. 9 (AP).—Bob Hamilton, Landover, Md., holed a spectacular 33-foot uphill putt on the eighteenth green today for a five-under-par 65 and a 36-hole total of 129 to lead the second round of Miami's $10,000 Open Golf Tournament.

The 33-year-old veteran professional fired a two-under-par 33 going out and three under 32 coming in. He was low scorer in the opening round yesterday with a blistering six-under-par 64.

He is now 11 under par at the halfway mark of the four-day 72-hole tournament being played over the 6310-yard Miami Springs golf course.

Meade Is Furman Athletic Director

Roanoke, Va., Dec. 9.—Jim Meade, backfield coach at Maryland last year, has been named athletic director at Furman University.

Meade, All-Southern Conference halfback at Maryland, who also played with the Redskins in 1938 and 1939, was backfield coach at Furman this season. He will continue in the latter capacity.

Head coach at Furman is Bill Young, former Redskins tackle who was a teammate of Meade's with the Washington pros.

UPWA Showdown With CIO Believed Imminent Now

CIO's long-promised showdown with its left-wing United Public Workers of America is imminent.

Behind closed doors here, a three-man committee of key CIO officials soon will begin hearings into these charges:

(1) That UPWA President Abram Flaxer has flaunted the CIO constitution and policies which he swore to uphold; that he has followed the Communist Party line, and that he should be expelled from membership on the CIO executive board, and (2) that the UPWA itself has followed the Communist Party line instead of CIO policies and that it should be expelled from the CIO.

The hearing had been set to start Monday at 10 a. m., but was postponed yesterday after the United Office and Professional Workers, which was to have had its hearing Thursday in a similar case, went into Federal Court at Philadelphia seeking an injunction to prevent the inquiry. The CIO expressed belief it will win a quick dismissal of the injunction petition.

The hearing board will be composed of Emil Rieve, chairman, who is president of the Textile Workers; Joseph Beirne, president of the Communication Workers, and Harry Sayre, president of the Paper Workers. Its recommendations will go to the CIO executive committee for action next month. It's freely predicted in CIO circles that both Flaxer and his union will be ousted.

CIO President Philip Murray has publicly denounced the UPWA as being a "Communist mess" at the past two CIO national conventions. More than a year ago he took steps to clip UPWA's wings by approving the creation of the right-wing Government Workers Union which is slated to get UPWA's jurisdiction over Federal, State, county, and city workers. GWU will get money from the CIO to organize public workers.

UPWA has steadily lost Federal worker members since it was accused of being Communist-dominated. Several years ago it claimed 25,000 members in this city. It's estimated that more than a score of UPWA officials and members have been ousted from Government on loyalty charges. The most recent loyalty firing of a UPWA leader was in Veterans Administration.

The UPWA had been in hot water with CIO officials from the time it was put together in Atlantic City in 1946. The old Federal Workers and the State, County and Municipal Workers were merged with Flaxer in command at that time. At that convention it adopted a foreign policy resolution which went down the Communist Party line.

UPWA has its largest bloc of members now in the sensitive Panama Canal Zone. This fact has been of grave concern to Defense officials who have wondered what would happen there in event of a war with Russia.

Alexandria Hearing Set Dec. 27 on 1950 Budget

Tax of 10 Percent On All Utility Bills Included in Record 4.4 Million Program

By Robert P. Jordan
Post Reporter

Alexandria City Council last night began closed-door study of a record $4,468,112 budget proposed for 1950 by City Manager W. Guy Ancell.

The tentative budget—more than half a million dollars larger than the current $3,396,624 budget—proposes to raise an estimated $500,000 by slapping a 10 percent tax on all public utility bills.

Alexandrians will be given public hearing on the proposed expenditures at 7:30 p. m. December 27 in the council chambers on the second floor of the city hall. The City Council must take action by December 31, since the budget becomes effective January 1.

Despite the record amount, the tentative budget does not call for an increase in property tax rates, which stand at $2.75 for each $100 assessed valuation on real estate and $3 per $100 on personal property, Ancell said yesterday.

Besides the suggested 10 percent tax on gas, water, electric and telephone bills, Ancell reported that the city's real estate and personal property taxes will bring in increased revenue.

$15 Million Increase

As of January 1, he said, the city's assessed valuation will stand at nearly 70 million dollars—roughly 15 million over last year. Revenues will be about $220,000 more in 1950 from this source, according to the proposed budget. Personal property taxes are expected to bring in around $40,000 more than 1949.

Ancell said the 10 percent utility tax, which must be approved by the Virginia General Assembly, is called for in the city charter now being drawn up. Over the State, he said, about nine municipalities, including Richmond, employ such a tax.

More for Schools

Largest increases in the proposed budget are:

Public schools—$1,102,792; current expenditure for schools is $954,494. Higher teachers' salaries and costs of operating new schools and additions to old ones take up most of the $148,000 increase, Ancell said.

Debt service—$581,701; 1949 cost is $448,356.

Under capital improvements, which are listed to cost slightly over $200,000, are construction of a $75,000 swimming pool for Negroes; a $20,000 addition to the swimming pool for whites; $25,000 worth of additions to the municipal stadium; construction of a dog pound at $10,000, and several smaller items.

Police and firemen are slated to receive a blanket 5 percent increase, according to the city manager.

Conners Gets Six Years at Hagerstown

Hagerstown, Md., Dec. 9 (AP).—Four men who broke out of jail here Sunday a week ago received sentences today.

George Watts, jr., and David Conners of Washington, D. C., were sentenced to three years for breaking and entering and three years for the short-lived escape.

Conners was free on $1000 bond pending District of Columbia court action on charges of breaking into and robbing homes there. Washington police said he boasted of 64 housebreakings there.

Robert Turner and James Martin of Hagerstown were sentenced to three years on an unauthorized use conviction and two years for the escape. They were sent to the House of Correction, the other men to the penitentiary.

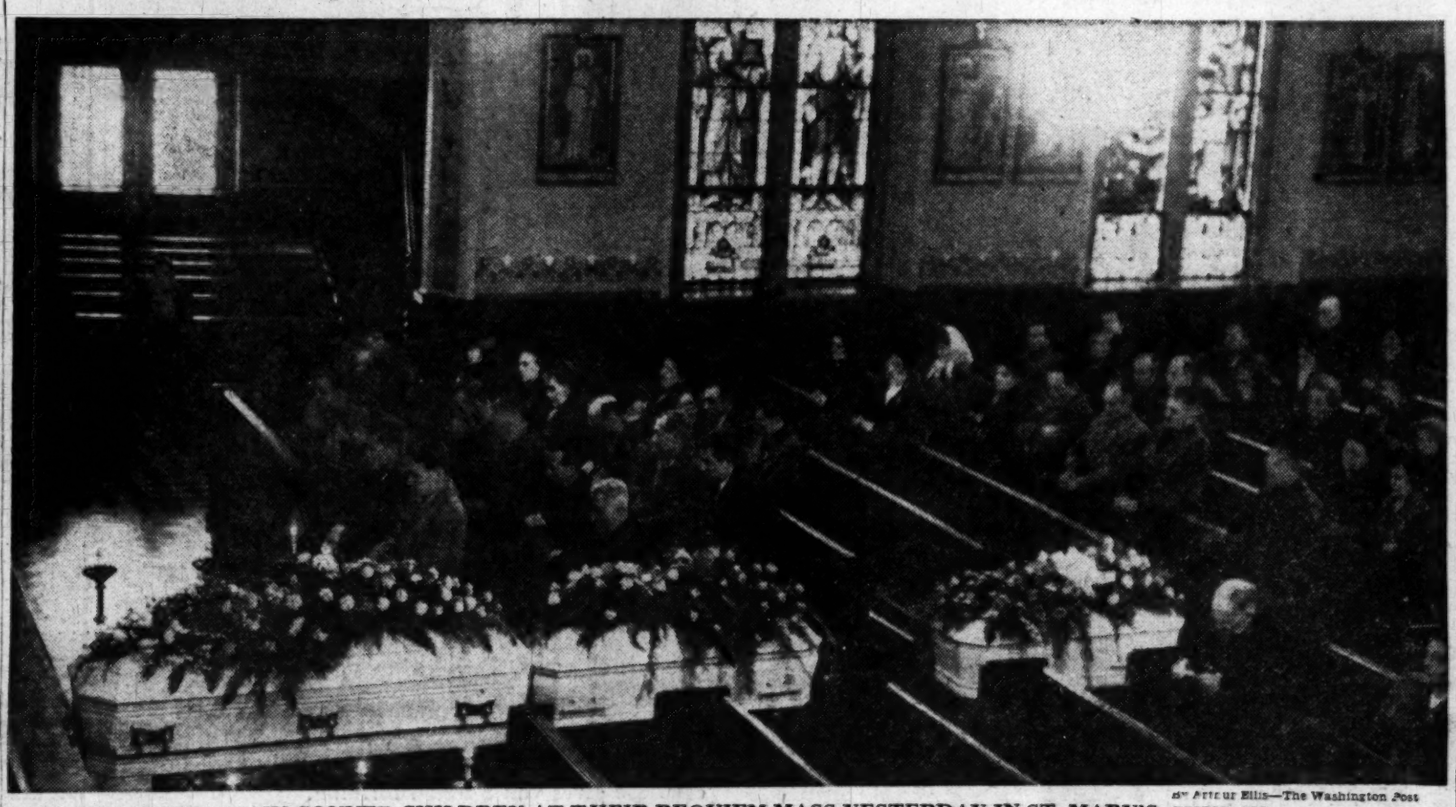
Playmates Pray for Three Slain Children

By Arthur Ellis—The Washington Post

SERIOUS AND SILENT, ST. MARY'S SCHOOL STUDENTS LOOK DOWN ON CASKETS OF STEPHANIE, MICHAEL AND CECELIA CONNER



By Arthur Ellis—The Washington Post

CASKETS OF THE SLAIN CONNER CHILDREN AT THEIR REQUIEM MASS YESTERDAY IN ST. MARY'S CHURCH,

Three white coffins, each a different size, were lowered into graves at Mount Comfort Cemetery in Fairfax County yesterday.

They bore the bodies of the three Conner children, Stephanie, 11; Michael, 9, and Cecilia, 5, who were slain by shotgun blasts fired by their father, John S. Conner, in the kitchen of their Cameron Valley home on Wednesday.

Conner, a 38-year-old construction engineer at Fort Belvoir, said he deliberately killed the children for fear they had inherited his mental condition.

Before the burial there was a solemn high requiem mass, attended by schoolmates of the two older children at St. Mary's Parochial School.

The father was not there. He sat in his jail cell, despondent over the crime to which he confessed, and for which he said he expected authorities "to execute me."

Nor was the mother able to attend. She was "calm," however, and planned to "remain with friends for the present," her brother-in-law said. She is retaining counsel for her husband.

One of those at the funeral service was red-haired, freckle-faced Paul Pierpoint, 10, who sits two desks behind that left vacant by Stephanie's death.

He is also a tenor—one of three boys—in the 40-member St. Mary's school choir.

It was fitting that Paul should sing the solo music, Schubert's "Ave Maria," during the mass.

The Right Rev. Msgr. Edward L. Stephens and three priests officiated at the mass. Present were the children's maternal grandmother, Mrs. Ernest J. Smith of Medford, Oreg.; their paternal grandfather, Guy W. Conner, Portland, Oreg.; a maternal great uncle, David E. De Armond, also of Medford, and the husband of Conner's sister, Ben Day of Gold Hill, Oreg., and Mrs. Conner's sister, Mrs. Robert Marble of Portland, Oreg.

Monsignor Stephens was assisted by the Rev. Michael J. McDermott, the Rev. Joseph Leitch and the Rev. Walter W. Herbert.

In his sermon, the monsignor said that "we may feel that these children are among the saints now . . . that they died like late roses, nipped suddenly by a frost in the beauty and sweetness of their child-like freshness . . ."

Each of the white caskets, decked with pink and white carnations, pink roses and white pompoms, was carried solemnly past the Conner children's classmates to the foot of the altar.

Also present were half a dozen Army officers—lieutenant colonels, colonels and a brigadier general. Some said they were classmates of Conner at West Point, where he graduated fifteenth in the class of 1933.

The crescendo of shrill, melodious voices in the children's choir filled the church. And young Paul Pierpoint, 1016 Colonial ave., who singing "Hail Mary, full of grace, the Lord is with Thee . . ."

Paul had been a schoolmate of Stephanie's in the fourth, fifth and sixth grades. He knew Michael well, too.

"I didn't think he would be able to sing," said his father, John A. Pierpont, 1016 Colonial ave., who has eight children.

In another part of Alexandria meanwhile, the children's father, gaunt and dejected, awaited the beginning of his trial. An automatic plea of not guilty was entered for him, in Civil and Police Court Thursday.

Conner has said he remembered "cracking up" during his last year at West Point. He received a disability discharge on graduation.

Periods of extreme despondency recurred in 1935, 1936, 1940 and 1947.

Then came the tragedy of Wednesday, when he decided at the last moment to spare his wife and himself.

How Ellis Made Funeral Photographs

The "shots" of the St. Mary's School children praying was made with a Speed Graphic camera on Panchro-Press Type B film, at one half second, F4.5. Ellis held the camera in his hands, braced against a railing.

The picture of the caskets was made with the camera on a tripod, same type of film, one second exposure at F5.6.

Both negatives were developed in DK 50 for five minutes.

Chest Drive Lacks $555,000, Board Directors Informed

Chairman Frank J. Luchs of the Community Chest Federation campaign yesterday told directors he hoped another $150,000 to $200,000 would be added to the $3,436,473 thus far pledged in the area drive for 1950 funds.

Luchs, reporting on the progress of the campaign, said he could make no definite predictions on the outcome, but told the directors the volunteer solicitors are keen to continue their efforts. Some $555,000 more is needed to reach the campaign goal.

He expressed appreciation for the aid of the Federation staff and the work of the volunteers. Federation President Chauncey G. Parker, who presided at the regular directors' meeting, congratulated Luchs on the job he has done to date.

The directors ratified actions taken by the executive board during the fall and approved a treasurer's report presented for John A. Reilly by Virgil Shinker, comptroller.

About 35 attended the meeting in the board room of the American Security & Trust Co. building, 15th st. and New York ave. nw.

Dying Felon Fails To Win Freedom

A 52-year-old convict, dying of cancer, yesterday was thwarted in his efforts to spend his six remaining months of life out of prison.

He is Jett P. Mundy, formerly of 923 I st. nw., who was sentenced last year to serve from three to nine years for shooting and wounding a man. Through Attorney Philip E. Shapiro, Mundy petitioned for probation saying he has cancer of the mouth and throat and only from three to six months of life left.

Judge Edward A. Curran of District Court ruled he no longer has jurisdiction in the case. He advised Mundy to seek aid from parole authorities.

Mundy said he wants to spend his remaining days on his brother's farm near Denver, N. C.

District Women On Team Gaining U. S. Bridge Title

Three Washington women and a former resident have tied for the national bridge championship for women's teams of four in the tournament now under way in Philadelphia.

More than 50 teams of women bridge players competed. Winners from Washington were Mrs. Ernest Boschan, 4416 Butterworth pl. nw., Miss Kathleen McNutt, 4130 16th st. nw., and Mrs. Edward P. Cotter, 2480 16th st. nw.

The fourth team member, Mrs. Frederick Eberson, formerly of Washington, now lives in Memphis, Tenn.

Newlyweds Pay

Hot Coffee Being Served Court Drunks

Donations from newlyweds are being used this month to make sure persons charged in Municipal Court with drunkenness get lunchtime coffee.

For the first time in the memory of court attaches the accused will have some nourishment if they must stay in court for the afternoon session.

The plan is administered by Mrs. Virginia Dunnigan, secretary to Judge Milton S. Kronheim, jr., who is now presiding in the District of Columbia Court where the drunks are tried.

The funds for the coffee come from donations given Judge Kronheim from those he marries in the court. The judges have decided not to accept a fee for the marriage ceremonies but have designated charities that may receive gifts.

Kronheim had been turning over his donations to Mrs. Dunnigan for books and periodicals for prisoners in local penal institutions.

This month, however, he noted that although he could go to lunch at 12:30, the prisoners had to fast until he disposed of the remaining cases.

Thursday, Mrs. Dunnigan began the coffee run and it is to continue as long as the funds allow.

Massachusetts Ave. Bridge Favored by Planning Head

Strong arguments against construction of the East Capitol Street bridge and in favor of a Massachusetts Ave. bridge across the Anacostia River were advanced yesterday at a meeting of the Committee of 100 on the Federal City.

The committee, at the suggestion of Chairman C. Melvin Sharpe, decided not to recommend either project until it has heard both sides.

Yesterday it heard John Nolen, jr., planning director for the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, who admitted that the Massachusetts ave. bridge he favors would cut through the grounds of Gallinger Hospital.

However, Nolen said, legislation passed in 1917 has required that the hospital not build any of its permanent structures to encroach on a 160-foot roadway through the grounds for the avenue.

The planning director also stated that the main approach for the proposed East Capitol st. bridge would pass within 50 feet of the crippled children's building recently built on the Gallinger grounds.

Nolen said the East Capitol bridge would deprive the city of the recreational facilities planned for the East Capitol sports center. He pointed out that if the bridge were built now, the Sesquicentennial Commission would be without a home for its "Freedom Fair."

Nolen said construction of the Massachusetts ave. bridge would materially reduce traffic over existing bridges, and predicted greatest need for bridges over the Anacostia in the future would be in the area to the south.

General Gordon R. Young, or members of the District highway department, will present their reasons for selecting the East Capitol st. bridge site at a later meeting of the committee.

Meanwhile, Frederick L. Olmsted, planner and architect, stated that if the proposed bridge placement interferes with the arboretum grounds it could "smash up one important feature of the arboretum in its ultimate development as a scientific unit."

Frederick Lee, chairman of the advisory council of the National Arboretum, said that such interference "would do an irreparable damage which can not be alleviated any way short of an act of God."

The committee voted to urge that the Nevius tract in Arlington County remain in public ownership and not be sold as surplus property. It also voted to urge that part of the site be used as a memorial to the constitutional principles of government.

The committee also indorsed the proposed reorganization of the National Capital Park and Planning Commission, already passed by the Senate, and to be considered by the House in the next session of Congress.

Dead Youth's Kin Offer $500 Reward For Slayer

$1000 Total Sum For Information Leading to Identity Of Berwyn Killer

The reward for the robber-slayer of Winston C. Clay, jr., gas-station attendant in Berwyn, Md., was swelled last night to $1000 as the youth's father, Winston C. Clay, jr., Prince Georges real-estate man, offered an additional $500.

Albert L. Kirwan, the slain man's employer, offered $500 Wednesday for information leading to arrest and conviction of the culprit.

Lieut. Charles N. Thomsen, chief of county detectives, said his force has "turned up nothing new" and now is concentrating on a review of information given by the more than 60 persons who have been quizzed about the mid-day robbery slaying.

He said detectives not only are reexamining written statements furnished by witnesses but have called in several persons for further questioning.

Confronted with numerous records resulting from the investigation to date, police yesterday were given secretarial assistance from the office of State's Attorney A. Gwynn Bowie who helped them transcribe and rearrange statements already taken.

Detectives worked on the records behind closed doors throughout the day.

Persons questioned to date have included associates of the dead youth, residents of the area around the filling station where he was found slain and several tipsters who reported information they thought might be of value. So far, police say, no "real suspects" have been turned up. "All we're doing now is hoping for a break," Lieutenant Thomsen said, but he admitted no immediate solution was "in sight."

Clay, 18-year-old Hyattsville High graduate, was found dead shortly before 1 p. m. last Tuesday in the wash room of a filling station in Berwyn where he was an attendant. He had been shot twice in the chest, apparently with a .22-caliber pistol, according to police.

Robbery was established as the motive when it was learned $120 in gas station receipts had been taken from his pocket although his own wallet containing $78 was untouched.

Two Pinned In Car Freed After Crash

Two men trapped in their car early yesterday after it careened into a house at 701 Florida ave. ne. were rescued by police and firemen of No. 2 Rescue Squad.

William Delaney, 19, of 1128 47th pl. ne., was treated at Gallinger Hospital, then released after he regained consciousness, and James K. Williams, 42, 1060 Westford pl. ne., was treated for face lacerations and then released.

Police said their car hit a streetcar loading platform, knocking down a directional marker, in the 700 block of Florida ave. ne. Then it jumped a curb and rammed the porch of the house, 701 Florida ave. ne.

Alfred Halpin, 61, 1216 New York ave. nw., newspaper printer, was struck down by an auto early yesterday as he was crossing the 1300 block of New York ave. nw.

Martin Ward Burial Rites Set Today

Funeral services for Martin P. Ward, 74, retired publisher who died of a heart attack Thursday, will be held at noon today in Gawler's funeral home, 1756 Pennsylvania ave. nw. Burial will be in Rock Creek Cemetery.

Ward

Two months ago, Mr. Ward retired as president and treasurer of the Army and Navy Register and the United States Government Advertiser. He had owned the publications for 17 years.

A Nevada native, Mr. Ward was educated at the University of Nevada and at the old Columbian Law School here from which he graduated in 1900.

He first joined the Army and Navy Register in 1906. He took over control of the Register and the Advertiser in 1932, when their former owner, John E. Jenks, died.

A member of the National Press Club and of the Benjamin B. French Masonic Lodge No. 15, Mr. Ward was secretary for 10 years of the National Capital Press, Inc., a Washington printing firm. He lived at 1801 16th st. nw.

He leaves his wife, Mrs. Mabel B. Ward; four brothers, Dave Ward, George Ward, Stanley Ward and Harrison Ward, and a sister, Miss Susan Ward, all of California.

Brig. Gen. Beninger

Allentown, Pa., Dec. 9 (AP).—Henry A Beninger, 64, brigadier general in the Pennsylvania National Guard and a former president of the National Safety Council, died at his home here today after a long illness.

He organized and directed the safety department of the Lehigh Portland Cement Co. with which he was associated from 1906 until his retirement in 1947.

One of the leaders in the work of the National Safety Council, he served as its president in 1928 and 1929.

During World War I, he commanded the horse battalion of the 103d Ammunition Train in France. In World War II he served on the staff of the commanding general of the Third Service Command.

Surviving are his wife, the former Marion Wallace, and a daughter, Jane Louise, wife of Stokes F. Burtis, jr., Winston-Salem, N. C. Funeral services will be held here Monday.

Safety Awards Planned In Virginia Industries

Richmond, Va., Dec. 9 (AP).—The Advisory Council on Industrial Safety has set up a schedule of safety awards to be made to Virginia plants, State Labor Commissioner E. M. Boggs said today.

The wards will be decided when the council meets again next June. Four types of certificates will be awarded: To plants with a zero frequency of accidents; to plants with extremely low frequency rates; to plants which reduce frequency rates 40 percent within the year; to plants participating in the Statewide safety program.

John A. Campbell Groner, 82, retired Norfolk, Va., businessman, died yesterday at Garfield Hospital.

Mr. Groner was a brother of D. Lawrenre Groner, retired Chief Justice of the United States Court of Appeals and the father of Powell C. Groner, president of the Kansas City Street Railway Co. and a vice president of the United States Chamber of Commerce.

He was a son of the late General V. D. Groner and a grandson of the late Supreme Court Justice John A. Campbell.

Mr. Groner's wife, the former Miss Elizabeth Powell, died in 1932.

Funeral services and burial will be in Norfolk on Monday.

In addition to his son and brother, he is survived by four daughters, Mrs. John Moreno of the Westchester Apartments; Mrs. Charles Tozer and Mrs. Lyle Pamperin of Coronado, Calif., and Mrs. Katherine Shropshire of New York. He also leaves nine grandchildren.

First Nassau Bishop Dies; Rites Tuesday

Nassau, Bahamas, Dec. 9 (AP).—The Most Rev. Bernard Kevenhoester, Bishop of Nassau, died here tonight. He was 80.

Bishop Bernard was born in Alten-Essen, Germany, November 1, 1869. During the persecution of the Catholic Church by Bismarck, his parents were forced to flee the country and escaped into Holland on horseback when he was 7.

Soon afterward the family emigrated to Minnesota and Bernard was ordained a priest at St. Johns Abbey, Minnesota, in June, 1896.

He was appointed Prefect Apostolic of the Bahamas in May, 1931, and made titular bishop of Camuliana in 1933. He was appointed Vicar Apostolic in 1941. In 1946 Pope Pius made him an assistant at the pontifical throne.

He was the first Catholic bishop in the Bahamas.

Funeral services will be held here Tuesday.

Bertram Hulen Services Set On Wednesday

Funeral services for Bertram D. Hulen, 60, veteran reporter who was killed in an airplane crash at Bombay, India, on July 12, will be held in the Fort Myer Chapel Wednesday at 1 p. m. Private burial will follow in Arlington Cemetery.

Hulen

It is requested that no flowers be sent.

Mr. Hulen joined the Washington staff of the New York Times in 1926, after serving with the Associated Press in Washington and Boston, and with the Springfield Republican.

A native of Cliftonville, Mass., he was graduated Phi Beta Kappa from Tufts College in 1911 and later attended the Harvard Law School.

His only survivor is his wife, Mrs. Katherine Hulen, with whom he lived at 3020 Dumbarton ave. nw.

With 12 other American newspaper, magazine and radio correspondents, Mr. Hulen was killed when the airplane in which they were returning from an inspection of Indonesia at the invitation of the Netherlands government crashed into a hill outside Bombay in a rainstorm. A total of 45 lives were lost in the accident.

Harry D. Harradon

Word was received yesterday from Florida of the unexpected death of Harry D. Harradon, 66, retired Carnegie Institution librarian, of 1234 Hamilton st. nw., of coronary thrombosis on Thursday.

He and his wife were spending the winter in Florida following his retirement from the Department of Terrestrial Magnetism of the Carnegie Institution of Washington where he had served as librarian and translator for over 37 years.

Mr. Harradon had traveled extensively in Europe while attending international scientific meetings, and was a graduate of Bates College, studying also in France and Germany.

A member of the Cosmos Club, he was also associated with other societies including the American Geophysics Union, serving as secretary of its section of meteorology for many years.

Surviving is his wife, Mrs. Amy Harradon, a retired official of the U. S. Civil Service Commission.

Funeral services will be held at Auburn, Me., his birthplace, next week.

Montgomery County FACES ITS SCHOOL PROBLEM

by Agnes E. Meyer

Mrs. Meyer

Take one of America's richest counties, increase its school enrollment 50% within five years, and you have a child population seriously neglected in education, ethical standards and community responsibility.

That's the state of affairs in Maryland's Montgomery County, which a prominent citizen says is now able only to "keep a roof over the children's heads." The facts are set forth for you in two Washington Post articles by Agnes E. Meyer, known for her brilliant and sympathetic analyses of social problems.

How Montgomery County officials are facing school overcrowding and its related problems—aggravated by lack of funds and civic cooperation—is told by Mrs. Meyer tomorrow and the following Sunday. Be sure to read these important reports in The Washington Post.

Hills' Dance Marks Start Of Holiday Festivities

By Marie McNair

MR. AND MRS. ARTHUR MIDDLETON HILL gave their annual dance last evening at the Sulgrave Club, getting a head start on the holiday season.

White flowers and greens decorated the club and made a perfect setting for the scarlet Schiaparelli frock which Mary Hill had had made for her in Paris.

"It has a fin like a new Cadillac at the back," said the hostess, "and another one on the shoulder, and it's made of heavy silk faille." With it she wore her diamonds.

Several Dinner Parties

Of the 200 guests who danced to music by Sidney and his orchestra, dinner parties were given before the dance by Mr. and Mrs. William Herron, Dr. and Mrs. William A. Morgan, who had Mr. and Mrs. Hill as their guests of honor; Mrs. Davies Fitch, who wore a sheer white gown covered with black lace; Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Adams and Mrs. Marlatt Reid.

Florence Harris Downs, who came down from New York for the party, entertained at dinner, so did the Agriculture Attache of the Spanish Embassy and Senora de Echegaray.

Egyptian Couple Are Dinner Guests

THE Egyptian Ambassador and Mme. Abdul Rahim were the guests in whose honor Maj. Gen. and Mrs. Howard C. Davidson entertained at dinner last evening at their home in Georgetown.

The Peruvian Ambassador and Senora de Berckemeyer and Mrs. Davidson's brother and sister-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Jefferson Patterson, were among the guests. Mr. Patterson was until recently charge d'affaires of the United States in Cairo.

Sharman Douglas Feted at Dinner

MISS SHARMAN DOUGLAS, daughter of the American Ambassador to Great Britain and Mrs. Lewis Douglas, who is spending the weekend as the guest of Mr. and Mrs. Chauncey Parker and Miss Sherry Parker, was guest of honor at a young people's dinner given by Mrs. Parker last evening. Also among the guests was Miss Elizabeth Jackson of London, who is here with Miss Douglas.

Brides Are Greeted at Sandwich Supper

BRIDES-ELECT and recent brides were honor guests at a sandwich supper shower given yesterday by Miss Edwiha Pou Wadden. Miss Barbara Nesbitt, who will wed Capt. Kenneth Cooper, USAEC; Miss Betty Arundel, who will wed James Stalling, jr.; Mrs. John Grinnell, the former Miss Betty Kline, and Mrs. Jerre Boggs, the former Miss Adelina Copello, were those honored.

Receiving with the hostess and her honor guests was Miss Peggy Moran, Miss Wadden's cousin, who has just arrived from Henderson, N. C., to spend the winter in Washington.

Friends of long standing, Mrs. Fred Vinson, wife of the Chief Justice, and Mrs. James Webb, wife of the Undersecretary of State, were among those who presided at the tea table. Mrs. Frank Nesbitt, Mrs. Roger Arundel and Mrs. Robert Kline, mothers of the brides, also took a turn at pouring tea, but Senora de Copello was unable to attend.

The party served as a farewell to the young hostess, who is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Antony Wadden. She is leaving tomorrow for New York to take a position in Ambassador Warren Austin's office at the United States Mission to the United Nations, 2 Park ave. Miss Wadden has been transferred to this position from the Office of the Near Eastern and African Affairs of the State Department.

Dean of Law School Is Feted at Luncheon

Rear Admiral Oswald S. Colclough, USN, who began his duties as dean of George Washington University's Law School this week, was honor guest at a luncheon yesterday at the Roger Smith Hotel. Hosts were Dr. Lloyd H. Marvin, president of the university; William C. Van Fleck, dean of the university's law school from 1923 to 1948, and Carville D. Benson, professor of law and acting dean prior to Admiral Colclough's appointment.

Satai to Feature Artist's Menu

FOOD to Rhoda Low, the well known artist, is a hobby. Ten years of collecting has yielded her 1000 recipes and she can tell you what is served and how on the South African veldt, as well as the correct menu for breakfast in Boston's Back Bay.

She can—and has entertained at a "Javanese rice table," so, her guests on January 18 are looking forward with more than casual interest to "A Satai Evening" as observed in the British clubs in Malay.

Satai was not originally a Malay dish, according to Mrs. Grant Watson, Miss Low's cousin who lives in Perak and ought to know. Its origin is Persian or Hindustani although now it's as habitual as curry. Every ingredient is necessary to its flavor.

Food hawkers, either Malay or Chinese, carry the food through the Malay streets in two boxes slung over their shoulders on a bamboo pole. One contains the prepared sticks of Satai and sauce mixtures, the other an iron grill or earthenware stove in which charcoal burns brightly. At a sign from a proepective customer they stop on the sidewalks and grill their Satai sticks, which are then consumed on the spot. Very often in the clubs, says Miss Low, Malays with their stoves and sticks prepare Satai under the eyes of the guests. Fifty or 60 sticks are nothing for a Satai fan to consume. But the best that the average dinner guest can do is around 18.

"Rhoda's Recipes" fit very nicely around Rhoda's sketches on the calendar which she has made up for 1950. It's the Calendar of the Great Republic, largest of the A. A. Low and Brothers clipper fleet which inspired Henry Wadsworth Longfellow to write "The Building of the Ship."

Miss Warren's Engagement Is Announced

Mrs. Pilson Warren announces the engagement of her daughter, Shelley Lee Warren, to Richard Colin Warwick of Surbiton, Surrey, England.

Miss Warren is the granddaughter of Mrs. Raymond H. Polson and Mrs. Bates Warren and the great-granddaughter of the late Mrs. Benjamin F. Pilson of Washington. She attended the Potomac School and was graduated from Holton Arms Junior College. She is a member of the Washington Junior League and the Howard County Hunt.

Mr. Warwick is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. George Harrison Warwick of Surrey. He was educated at the Nautical College, Pangbourne, Berkshire, and served in the Royal Navy from 1940 to 1945 in command of escort vessels at sea. He received the Distinguished Service Cross in the Norwegian Operations in 1940 and a bar to the DSC for antisubmarine operations in the North Atlantic in 1941.

The wedding will take place in January. After a three-month wedding trip the couple will make their home in New York.

Diane Duke, Mr. Amussen Wed in N. Y.

The marriage of Miss Diane Duke, daughter of Mrs. Charles R. Marshall and T.W.D. Duke of New York, to Robert Martin Amussen, son of Mrs. Theodore S. Amussen of Washington and the late Mr. Amussen, took place yesterday in New York.

The ceremony was performed in the Church of the Holy Trinity with the Rev. Dr. James A. Paul officiating. A reception for the immediate families followed at Fairfax Hall.

The bride was graduated from Brearley School and attended Swarthmore College. She is the granddaughter of Mrs. Alice P. Dexter and the late Rene Carillo de Albornoz of New York and of Mrs. T. Wiley Duke and the late Mr. Duke of Richmond, Va.

Mr. Amussen was graduated from Landon School, Washington, and attended Georgetown University. He is an alumnus of Swarthmore College. He served with the Navy in the Pacific during the war and is now with Edison Electric Institute.

Miss Betsch, C. H. Nelson Are Married

The marriage of Miss Lorena V. Betsch to Clifford H. Nelson took place yesterday afternoon in the chapel of the National Presbyterian Church, the Rev. Edward L. R. Elson officiating.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Gottlob Betsch of Streeter, N. Dak., and Mr. Nelson is the son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Fred H. Nelson of Vienna, Va. Costumed in a toast colored dress with a white orchid corsage, the bride was given in marriage by Joseph L. McGroary.

Mr. and Mrs. Rocco E. Terrone were honor attendants for the couple. Following the reception at the Wardman Park Hotel, the couple left for a New York wedding trip. They will return to reside in Washington.

Mr. Nelson is manager of the Hotel Dupont Plaza. His bride is secretary to Senator William Langer. A former employe of the State Department, she was graduated from the Dakota Business College, Fargo, N. Dak.

Luncheon Honors Mississippian

Mrs. Eppa D. Kane entertained at luncheon on Thursday at her home in Alexandria for Mrs. Louise Moseley Heaton of Clarksdale, Miss., past national president of the Children of the American Revolution. Mrs. Heaton has been in Richmond attending the tricentennial celebration of the arrival of the Moseleys in Virginia in 1649.

Other guests at the luncheon were all Moseley descendants, including Mrs. A. T. Thornton, aunt of the hostess from Richmond.

With the State Societies

In Carolina, It's Dance Of the Christmas Belles

By Nicha Souré

DOWN in North Carolina, about 50 years ago, a dance that was tops in popularity was the dance of the Christmas Belles.

Many of us can't drop down to North Carolina right now and none of us can turn back time. But we can see the dance of the Christmas Belles right here in Washington.

Where? At the Tarheel traditional Christmas dance, "The Mistletoe Mingle," in the large ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel, December 17. And, of course, there will be a bit of mistletoe tucked in the coat lapels and curly locks of all the Tarheels.

The Dance of the Christmas Belles will be introduced by the younger set of the society. Heading the list of Christmas Belles will be Miss Courtenay Murphy, daughter of the Assistant to President Truman and Mrs. Charles S. Murphy; and Miss Rose Caudle, daughter of the Assistant Attorney General and Mrs. T. Lamar Caudle.

Dancing will be from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m., with an occasional waltz to add "zest" to the evening.

THE Conference of State Society Officers is getting in an early start. It will meet at 8 p. m., Monday, in Room 154, Senate Office Building, to plan for the State societies' part in the sesquicentennial celebration.

Included in the projects to be discussed at the meeting is the All States Ball on New Year's Eve, which is an annual event at the Shoreham Hotel.

IF IT'S a good time you want, be sure to drop in at the New York State Society dance tonight.

The Empire Staters will pay tribute to the employes of the Interior Department at the dance in the Shoreham Hotel. Dave McWilliams will supply the music for dancing between the hours of 10 p. m. and 1 a. m. There will be a reception from 9:30 p. m. till dancing time.

Miss Dorothy Gollinger, secretary, can give details about the society and dance at Kenmore 3-5004.

IN THE West Ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel, another society will be holding its pre-Christmas dance—the Illinois State Society.

The dance will be from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m. Formal dress to the dance is optional. If by any chance you have neglected to get your membership card to the society, cards may be purchased at the door.

NEW YEAR'S is a traditional time to start something new and it's on that day that the Alabama State Society will open its social season.

The Alabamans will hold an egg-nog party from 4 to 7 p. m. on New Year's Day in the Madison Room of the Wardman Park Hotel. For further information call Mrs. Philip Latimer at Emerson 6946.

PRESIDENT TRUMAN'S home Staters will celebrate their Christmas party on December 17 in the West Ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel.

Clarence McCune, president of the Missouri Society, will receive the guests, assisted by Mrs. Eric Jansson and Mrs. Maxwell Foster. Dancing will begin at 10 p. m. to the tunes of McWilliams' Orchestra and the Christmas touch will be added by an old-fashioned carol sing led by Miss Grace Lovell.

GARDEN STATERS will gather for a Christmas dinner and party at 6:30 p. m., Wednesday, at the Chastleton, 16th and R sts. nw. For further information call the New Jersey State Society chairman at Georgia 8534.

THE PENNSYLVANIANS will hold their December dance on Friday in the West Ballroom of the Shoreham Hotel. Dancing to McWilliams' Orchestra will be from 10 p. m. to 1 a. m.

For further information about the dance or the society, call Mrs. Ray J. Whitney at Glebe 2629 or Mrs. Algia A. Martin at Otis 7455.

THE OHIO STATE SOCIETY will initiate its winter program with a pre-Christmas surprise party and dance on December 17.

What the surprise is going to be, not even the officers know yet. But one thing they do know—all Ohioans with paid-up membership cards will be admitted free of charge.

The dance will be from 9 p. m. to midnight in the Congressional Room of the Willard Hotel. Formal dress is optional. Music will be supplied by Johnny Plant and his orchestra.

The Ohio Society is planning monthly events during the winter and spring season.

Here for Holidays

Mrs. Ralph J. Lyons and her children, Dick, Tom and Betty, have arrived to spend the holidays with Mrs. Lyon's parents, Rear Admiral and Mrs. Paul Mather of Westgate. Major Lyons will join his family for Christmas, coming from Tyndall Air Field, Florida, where he is stationed.

Diplomat to Arrive

The South African Ambassador, G. P. Jooste, with Mrs. Jooste and their two children will arrive in Washington on Monday. The Ambassador presented his credentials earlier this season and returned to New York for the United Nations Assembly. Mrs. Jooste remained in New York with him.

Gen. Marshall To Be Honored By Red Cross

Directors of the District of Columbia Chapter, American Red Cross, will honor Gen. George C. Marshall, new president of the American National Red Cross, with a reception at Corcoran Art Gallery on Monday.

In the receiving line will be J. Clifford Folger, chairman of the District Red Cross Chapter and Mrs. Folger; General and Mrs. Marshall, Daniel W. Bell, general fund chairman for the 1950 metropolitan area Red Cross campaign, and Mrs. Bell; Mrs. David E. Finley, chairman of Volunteer Services for the District Red Cross, and Miss Elisabeth Houghton, chairman of Home Service for the District Red Cross.

Lists of Guests

At the tea table will be Mrs. Edward W. Fay and Mrs. J. L. Houghteling, members of the board; Mrs. Nathaniel C. Wilson, wife of the chapter manager; Mrs. Herbert Dudley, chairman of Nursing Service; Mrs. H. O. McTague, vice chairman of Nutrition Service; Mrs. Helen Kemmerer, chief nurse, Red Cross Blood Center; Mrs. K. Hilding Beij, vice chairman, First Aid Committee; Mrs. James T. Berryman, jr., chairman of Area 101 in the Residential Division in the 1949 Red Cross drive; Mrs. Bruce Roberts, chairman, Arts and Skills Service; Mrs. A. S. J. Atkinson, chairman, Gray Lady Service, and Mrs. John S. Snyder, chairman, knitting committee Laiso; Mrs. Morris Cafritz, 1949 chairman of diplomatic and booths committee for the fund drive.

Ask Anne About Birthday Party Decorations

I am planning on having a birthday party for a 3-year-old. I would like some suggestions for decorating for this festive occasion. It must be inexpensive. I'd like to be a little different. Could you also suggest some games for this age group?
S. R.

Most effective and simple decorations for a 3-year-old's party could consist entirely of colorful balloons. The guests could be greeted as they arrive by a bunch of inflated balloons tied to the front door. Balloons could be hung from the light fixtures and tied to the backs of the chairs. When the guests arrive, give each a balloon to be blown up and toss about.

When the guests have wearied of balloon tossing, seat them on the floor for a story to be told or read by a mother. Or, they might like to listen to one of the very charming recorded stories which are now available.

Refreshments could be ice cream balloons—three small round dips of chocolate, raspberry, and lemon ice cream in a dish. The birthday cake could be decorated with varicolored round candies to represent balloons—or you could serve round cookies, frosted in various colors with each child's name written in frosting on the top.

I have a linen cloth and napkins stamped for embroidery which I do not care to do, but as it is nice linen, I should like to hemstitch it for Christmas. To remove the stamped design I have used household bleach and color remover without success. If you know any way to do this, I should greatly appreciate hearing of it as soon as possible.
F. U. C.

Some transfer marks are very stubborn, but they seldom withstand this treatment: lay the linen on a flat surface and go over the stamped area with a soft brush dipped out of a solution of soapy water and household bleach. Use ½ cup of bleach to a pint of soapy water. When the stains are gone, rinse the fabric three times in clear water to remove every trace of bleach.

I am planning a simple, informal cocktail party during the Christmas holidays for the people in my husband's office—about 30. I have met some of them, but not all. Can you suggest the proper method for issuing the invitations—also appropriate refreshments?
M. S. K.

A written invitation would be nice for this party. You could write the invitation as you would a note, saying something like this, "Won't you drop in for cocktails on Saturday, December 15, anytime between 5 and 7 p. m.?"
JERRY and JOAN DOE.

With cocktails you could serve a variety of colorful open-faced sandwiches and potato chips with a bowl of snappy cream cheese mixture nearby to dip them into. Salted nuts, cheese popcorn are also pleasant accompaniments for cocktails. And, since it is a Christmas party you could have a plate of thin slices of fruit cake.

It seems to me that detergents which are so good for dish washing remove the "seasoning" from heavy aluminum pans, as I find things stick, which never used to. Is this true? F. U. C.

The seasoning in frying pans is, of course, fat which is absorbed into the surface of the metal. When this fat is removed either in washing or normal use of the pan, foods do stick and reseasoning is necessary. You are absolutely right—detergents do remove "seasoning" quickly because they are such excellent fat solvents. So, the best plan in the case of your frying utensils is to only wash them when absolutely necessary. Unless such foods as gravy or stew have been cooked in the utensil, rinsing with very hot water and wiping dry with a paper towel is all the cleaning necessary. When the pan really needs washing do it quickly. Allowing the pan to stand in water to which a detergent has been added will draw out the fat.

What foods are currently scarce in Italy? Are there restrictions on the foods which may be sent there? How long would a food package take to arrive, approximately?
L. W. W.

Almost all foods are available now in Italy, but the high prices of some items such as sweet chocolate, sugar, coffee, and canned meats make them particularly acceptable gifts.

When sent as a Christmas gift parcel, a parcel may weigh up to 20 pounds. Not more than six pounds of coffee or five pounds of sugar may be sent.

In addition to these items of food, used clothes are much appreciated. The clothes must be used to be passed by customs.

It takes from one to two months to send a package by regular parcel post to Italy. The shipping time is somewhat increased at this time of the year when the mails are heavy.

Will you please tell me how to take care of needlepoint? I have six dining room chairs that are constantly used and with children using them there are places of food soil. F. V. R.

I suggest you protect the needlepoint with some sort of moisture-proof cover. It is possible to buy almost transparent plastic dining chair seat covers in department stores where ready-made slip covers are sold. Or, if you are handy at sewing you could easily make covers to tie securely to the chair back and front legs and thus protect the needlepoint seats. These covers could be made of transparent plastic which is sold by the yard in drapery departments. Or, they could be made of chintz or cretonne to match your color scheme.

The soil which is on the seats can probably be removed by dusting the fabric with corn starch moistened with carbon tetrachloride. Rub the corn starch into the fabric well and let stand to absorb soil. Brush out or remove with brush attachment of the vacuum sweeper. Repeat treatment if soil is not all removed the first time.

Postlude

Meyers' Solo High Point Of Season

By Paul Hume

Emerson Meyers' Concertina for piano and orchestra is one of the most interesting and exciting pieces of music I have heard in years.

It was played last night with the composer as soloist at the Library of Congress. A program of American music was given there under the Nicholas Longworth Foundation. Richard Bales, musical director of the National Gallery of Art, conducted.

Meyers' Concertino is in two movements labeled "sonata" and "variant similarities." Within these two classic forms, and in about 20 minutes, is packed a great procession of melodies, each seeming to grow from the other. There is brilliant writing for piano solo and with orchestra-piano writing too hard for many to tackle but played with gusto and immense style last night.

Technical Hazards

The orchestra is handled equally easily and faced with as many technical hazards. It was a tribute to the musicians last night, drawn from the National Symphony and the National Gallery Orchestra, that the piece went with the fire it needed.

Solos were tossed back and forth between instruments and from orchestra to piano. Changing rhythms, particularly in the variations, added fuel to the fire and the closing measures went with a great roar.

Meyers is on the board of directors of the National Symphony. We earnestly hope he will not allow his genuine modesty to keep him from letting us hear this music again in Constitution Hall.

Ives Symphony Played

The other great work on the program was the third symphony of Charles Ives. Ives, 75, is America's most neglected composer and one of its musical geniuses.

Last night's symphony is a uniquely beautiful work. Played by only 21 instruments it has amazing sonorities. Musically it moves from the utmost sophistication to utter simplicity as in Mahler symphonies. Its principal preoccupation is with a familiar gospel hymn.

Judge Defers Sentence of Sex Offender

Judge Stedman Prescott yesterday deferred sentencing an admitted sex offender in Montgomery County Circuit Court until he can obtain additional medical testimony.

The defendant, Charles L. Gordon, jr., 39, a Bureau of Standards chemist who once worked on the Los Alamos atomic energy project, pleaded guilty to two charges of unnatural sex acts with two Bethesda girls, aged 6 and 7, last June.

After the trial, heard behind closed doors, Judge Prescott stated he will bring into court "physicians in whom I have confidence" and will study medical texts himself.

Psychiatric Treatment

"I want to satisfy myself that the ailment with which you are afflicted will not extend to one of these atrocious sex crimes we read of every day," he informed the bespectacled scientist.

Gordon's attorney, Kenneth Lyddane, had asked for probation so his client might continue psychiatric treatment he has been receiving since the offenses. The slightly built defendant's division chief, Dr. Edward Wichers, testified Gordon will not lose his job if put on probation.

Judge Prescott, however, referred to psychiatric reports from Johns Hopkins Hospital and the Montgomery County Mental Hygiene Clinic which agreed no assurance can be given at present that Gordon will not commit similar offenses in the future.

Regrets His Acts

Gordon, married and the father of three children, informed the court he has sold his former home at 4922 Westway dr., Bethesda, and is now living near Potomac. He said he regretted his acts "very much" and plans to continue psychiatric treatment until cured.

Testimony was introduced that his parents separated soon after his birth and that his mother has been confined in a Massachusetts mental institution since 1930.

GOP's Strategy Unit Is Summoned To Chicago Parley

The Republican Party's strategy committee yesterday scheduled a meeting at Chicago December 13 to discuss the 1950 congressional campaign.

The meeting was called by Guy George Gabrielson, chairman of the Republican National Committee, and Arthur E. Summerfield of Michigan, acting chairman of the strategy committee. They said it will be an all-day conference at the Stevens Hotel.

The 21-member strategy committee consists of three Senators, three Congressmen, three Governors, three members of the National Committee's finance committee, six members of the National Committee and three men drawn from Republican State committees.

Citizen Unit Asks Gas Hike Revocation

The Federation of Citizens Associations yesterday asked the Public Utilities Commission to throw out the rate increase it granted the Washington Gas Light Co. last month.

In a petition filed by its attorney, Vernon V. BZaker, the federation claimed the PUC made six errors in reaching its decision. In addition, it said, the new rates discriminate against certain consumers and would permit the company to earn an excessive rate of return.

The increase averaged 6.14 percent.

PUC erred, the petition claimed, in including in the company's rate base unrecovered cost of abandoned property and money spent to convert customers' appliances from manufactured to natural gas.

It also erred, the petition said, in listing as operating expenses the amortization of these costs; in listing as operating expenses accelerated depreciation on property scheduled for abandonment, and in making the new rates retroactive.

Directors Chosen by Central YMCA

Six new members were elected last night to the Central YMCA board of control for two-year terms: Louis F. Colbert, Lieut. Comdr. Clarence Cisin, Willis R. Lansford, David Linden, Knut I. Nilson and Salvind Olson. Dudley F. Holtman was elected for a three-year term.

Laymen's awards of merit for "outstanding services" were awarded to 10 persons: Lee R. Pennington, James H. Fox, Cisin, Dr. Corson B. Conklin, H. E. Mangrum, George T. Heckert, Milton Sterling, Elisabeth Sterling, Inez Marshall and Colbert.

Jennings Randolph, former West Virginia Congressman, main speaker at the board's annual business meeting, urged "active support" of American institutions.

Suspect Charged With Abortion in Death of Woman

A woman was arrested by police yesterday and charged with performing an abortion after another woman died at Gallinger Hospital, allegedly from the effects of the operation.

Mrs. Lillian Williams, 26, of 1314 11th st. se., died following her admission to the hospital the day before. Arrested was Mildred Jeanette Agee, 46, of 1316 5th st. se. She was charged with performing the operation on November 30. Arraigned before United States Commissioner C. S. Lawrence, her case was set for December 14. Bond was set at $2500.

VA Snarled In Veteran Check Mailing

The Veterans' Administration has run into some problems in its plans to pay veterans a $2,800,000,000 insurance dividend in order of their serial numbers.

Some World War II veterans, it develops, never had a serial number. Some had more than one. Of those with more than one serial number, some had more than one insurance policy.

The first two problems have been solved, with only one hitch: the veterans involved can't tell when they will receive their money. Officials are still trying to decide what to do about vets with multiple serial numbers and policies.

For most veterans, the checks will start going out in January, with precedence based on the last three digits of the insured person's serial number. The "000" group will be paid first; the "999" people last.

That won't apply to about 15,000 former Coast Guard officers who got along without serial numbers during the war. They will be assigned numbers arbitrarily from a series never used by an service. But they won't know what the numbers are until they get their checks.

Veterans who had more than one serial number probably will be paid according to the highest number they had.

The complications develop when such veterans had more than one policy. They will be paid according to one of their old serial numbers, but no one yet knows which one.

One other group of veterans may collect its dividends slightly off-schedule. It consists of those whose last names are more than 15 letters long, and wouldn't fit on the special tabulating cards.

For the bulk of the applicants, the first checks will start through the mail around the middle of next month, with the final payments coming in April, or possibly later.

Marshal Asks Court to End 'Enforced Leave'

Donald H. Foster, 560 LeBaum st. se., filed suit yesterday in District Court for a preliminary injunction restraining his superiors from keeping him on "enforced leave" from his post as Deputy United States Marshal.

He was placed on leave without his consent, he declared, after he testified during the William (Snags) Lewis gaming trial here recently. Foster's testimony contradicted that of Assistant United States Attorney John F. Filbelly as to whether a defendant admitted complicity in the numbers lottery racket.

Earlier, Foster sued for damages and a court-declaration that he is entitled to his job and that his civil rights are being violated.

Chief Says 'Farewell'

Overcast Spoils Meteor Show Here

An overcast sky last night fogged up the chances of seing the promised spectacular shower of meteors known as the Geminid shower from the vantage point of Washington.

However, eight observers from the Bureau of Standards dispatched to the Sterling, Va., field station, spotted the first meteor about 6:30 p. m. and glimpsed eight more by 11:30 p. m.

The flashing disintegrated remains of comets should be visible tonight, weather conditions willing, and by Sunday you may be able to see them at the rate of one a minute. The show closes Monday.

No need to fear the meteors may land on your back porch. Ones ordinarily seen in such showers are not much bigger than a grain of sand and disintegrate before they can reach the earth.

But, once in a while one heavy as a pound hits the earth. And once in a 100 years or so a meteor weighing a ton plummets to earth, one of the Bureau of Standards observers said.

FTC Weighs Price-Fixing Case Dismissal

The Federal Trade Commissioners yesterday considered a motion to dismiss a price-fixing complaint against a Washington wholesale liquor firm.

Defense Attorney William R. Lichtenberg admitted that Middle Atlantic Distributors, Inc., sole Washington distributor of Hiram Walker liquor, warned its 388 dealers by letter February 20, 1948, that they would be cut off, and six were, if they didn't maintain suggested prices. However, he said this did not amount to an agreement to control retail prices illegally.

Paul Rand Dixon, FTC trial attorney, said that the wholesale firm shopped among its dealers to check on their prices and otherwise policed them.

If this does not violate the FTC act ban against price-fixing, said Dixon, practically any wholesale firm can fix prices of its dealers with impunity.

Dealers including Maurice Milstone, owner of Acme Liquor Store, 927 Pennsylvania ave. nw., and Martin Goldberg of Giant Liquor Store, 3506 Georgia ave. nw., testified previously before a trial examiner, William L. Pack, that they had been refused orders by Middle Atlantic for price cutting. Pack recommended dismissal, which is not binding on the commissioners.

Boycott Pledged To Liberalize Princeton Clubs

Princeton, N. J., Dec. 9 (AP).—More than three fourths of the sophomore class has pledged a boycott of Princeton University's eating clubs unless membership is liberalized.

A petition circulated by sophomore class officers calls for admission of all juniors and seniors to the clubs, which normally select their members from students entering the junior class. Approximately 11 percent of the present junior class was denied club membership.

J. Covington Parham, jr., of Sumter, S. C., sophomore class president, pointed out that members of his class number more than a hundred less than the senior class that will graduate in June, so there should be room for all his classmates next year.

Mother, 60, Named As 'Other Woman'

New York, Dec. 9 (U.P.).—Dorothy Waring, Broadway playwright and former Dies Committee investigator, filed divorce proceedings today against Stephen Kelen d'Oxylion, who accused her of not understanding his Hungarian temperament.

She named Mrs. Jolie Gabor, 60-year-old mother of Sari Gabor, Miss Hungary of 1936, as the "other woman."

Hayes Named 'Man of Year' By Civic Body

By Sy Fishbein
Post Reporter

The District's 28 civic associations last night honored George E. C. Hayes, former member of the Board of Education, as their "man of the year."

The 55-year-old lawyer, who had strong support for reappointment to the board when his term expired last June, was presented with a plaque reading "a token of esteem from organized citizens in recognition of his outstanding public service."

John B. Duncan, second vice president of the federation who made the award, said "We regret that George Hayes was not reappointed to the Board of Education."

"Regardless of what others think of his services on the board, we can take this opportunity to show our appreciation of the job he did," Duncan added.

A graduate of Howard University Law School and participant in several civil rights court cases, Hayes is married and lives at 1732 S st. nw.

The Erie Civic Association received the Evening Star cup for outstanding civic achievement during the year.

Representatives of organizations with which Hayes is associated, the Washington Bar Association, the YMCA, the National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, Kappa Alpha Psi, Depriest 15, Pigskin Club, Northwest Settlement House, District Schools, District Courts and Howard University, joined in his praise.

C. Girard Davidson, Assistant Secretary of the Interior, the principal speaker, said the vote is needed in the District in order to achieve the real practice of democracy here.

It is his opinion, Davidson said, that "a great many of the ills of which we complain would be cured if residents of the District. . . could hold their elected officials responsible for the administration of community affairs."

In recounting the progress made against discrimination, Davidson cited the Interior Department's transfer of recreational facilities to the District for unsegregated use.

Davidson said the Interior Department hopes to be able to transfer Federally owned swimming pools to the District Government on the same basis.

Woolsey W. Hall, newly elected president of the federation, presided over the dinner.

Brightwood Association

The Brightwood Citizens Association last night protested any proposed questions about income in next year's census.

Meeting at Paul Junior High School, 8th and Oglethorpe sts. nw., the group decided the information given the Treasury Department each year is sufficient.

In another action, the 43 persons present asked the District Commissioners to clear the Emory estate, on Georgia ave. near Madison ave. nw., so it can be used for a playground next summer.

They also asked the Geological Survey, in maps now being prepared, to show the boundaries of the Brightwood area as Underwood st. on the north, 7th st. on the east, Hamilton st. on the south and 13th st. on the west.

The move was in response to a similar request by the Manor Park Citizens Association, which the Brightwood group claimed, would cut the Brightwood area in half.

A special committee was appointed to look into the shortage of buses during rush hours and on Sundays in the community.

Pleasant Plains

Opposition to any increase in telephone rates was voted last night by the Pleasant Plains Civic Association at a meeting at the Monroe School, Columbia rd. and Sherman ave. nw.

The group also voted to authorize a committee to study zoning problems in the area and voted to indorse Attorney Hubert B. Pair, an assistant corporation counsel, for appointment to the Municipal Court bench.

First Case Set On County Dog Quarantine

The first case under Montgomery County's recently imposed dog quarantine in the Eastern Suburban District will be heard December 15 in Silver Spring Police Court.

James W. Sweeney of 734 Thayer ave., Silver Spring, has been charged in a warrant sworn by Police Private Kenneth Watkins with violating the quarantine order.

According to police, a 14-year-old newsboy was bitten by Sweeney's dog on December 1 when he entered the yard to serve a paper. The dog was running loose in the fenced-in yard.

The 90-day quarantine imposed November 15 requires dog owners keep their pets "securely confined or on leash."

This case may provide the answer to an oft-posed question to which up to now police admit they don't know the answer. Many calls have been received, they said, asking if dogs are considered securely confined when untied, but within a fenced inclosure.

Gas Pipeline To Serve D. C. Nearly Ready

Elkins, W. Va., Dec. 9 (AP).—Atlantic Seaboard Corp.'s new 266-mile natural gas line will be tied together Sunday at a point near Buckhannon.

The 26-inch line, 2 inches bigger in diameter than the wartime constructed "Big Inch" line built to serve Eastern markets, has been under construction from Clendenin to Rockville, Md. The contractors have been laying pipe from opposite directions and the two "spreads" will be joined Sunday at Cleveland, Upshur County.

Clay Barnes, manager of Atlantic Seaboard's Elkins office, said the lines are being purged with gas, and presumably the fuel will become available in Baltimore, Washington and other cities at once.

The H. C. Price Co. of Weston has been proceeding from Rockville, while the Ray L. Smith Co. of Buckhannon has been constructing the line from the other end. Contractors agreed "this has been the toughest job" of their experience because of the rugged mountain terrain the line crosses.

The line will provide natural gas for the first time to Baltimore. It also will provide more fuel for Washington, which uses some natural and some artificial gas.

Police to Question Youths in Probe Of Tavern Fire

Prince Georges County police said last night they have learned the identity of two of a group of teen-agers who were seen near the Club Hillbilly only a short time before the tavern was destroyed by fire early Thursday.

Detective John Siddall, assigned to investigate the possibility of arson in the $10,000 blaze, said he planned to question the youths "as soon as they can be located." They were in a party of five in a parked auto seen outside the tavern by a Seat Pleasant policeman around 2 a. m.

At about 2:30 a. m., firemen were called to extinguish a fire in a shed adjacent to the tavern which firemen said "obviously" was the result of arson. Again at 4:40 a. m. firemen were called to the scene, but this time found the frame building consumed by flames. Officials insisted the first fire was completely extinguished, and said the second fire apparently started at the opposite end of the structure.

BROKERS, ATTENTION!

500 acres, located in the zone of the South Capitol st. bridge, about 4 squares beyond the District line in Maryland. This bridge will be finished in about four weeks, and will give bus and automobile service into the business center of Washington in about 15 minutes. 100 acres sold to veterans who will improve same; 95 acres can be used for cemetery. Cemetery lots retail sometimes at $200,000 an acre. Hot Shoppe paid $50,000 recently for a little over an acre. Ground is suitable for commercial, apartment houses, low cost housing, about 25 million dollars worth of apartments already built and occupied adjoining our property.

TERMS: 15% CASH, with a release clause and 4½% interest.

To give you an idea of what this bridge might do for this property: a farmer bought 150 acres in the zone of the Memorial Bridge in Virginia, it is now worth over a million dollars; one of the vice presidents of the Riggs National Bank bought 30 acres for $30,000, sold it for $1,600,000. These are just a few examples of what this investment might do for you.

The Family Scrapbook

By Dr. Ernest G. Osborne

Home-Grown Dramatics

Most children love to give plays. From kindergarten on up, it doesn't take much effort to get them playing fathers and mothers, doctors and nurses, pirates, cops and robbers and a score of other roles. The modern school, indeed, makes use of this interest in dramatics in the day-by-day "studies." Younger children, for instance, get a much better idea of the discovery of America or the landing of the Pilgrims if they can dramatize these incidents.

At home, too, it's not a bad idea to encourage children's play-acting. Putting on simple, spontaneous plays for the rest of the family and for visitors is one good way for youngsters to fit into the family picture.

Parents can encourage home-grown dramatics by helping the young 'uns get together a box of costumes and other "props." One won't have to do too much. As soon as the youngsters know they have the green light, they'll concoct an amazing collection of stage properties. And if a bedspread curtain can be stretched across one corner of the room, some almost-professional productions will be put on.

My Secret Diary

I keep a secret diary . . . Of everything I do . . . The different places where I go . . . And all the faces new . . . My sorrow and my happiness . . . And every little song . . . Of beauty and of ugliness . . . And what is right and wrong . . . The people who befriend me and . . . The ones who pass me by . . . And those who get my letters and . . . Who promise to reply . . . I keep a secret diary . . . Of each and every debt . . . So I will not be negligent . . . And I will not forget . . . And it is really secret and . . . I hold it far apart . . . Because the only words I write . . . Are written in my heart.

The Things You Find in A Woman's Purse

Coak's daughter bought the family transit pass Sunday, and used it several times before turning it over to her mother.

Mrs. Coakley also used the pass several times, and then gave it to Coak. He traveled back and forth to work with it for several days until he was stopped by an alert operator yesterday.

Only then did our hero discover that he'd been doing all this riding on 1948's pass No. 50, good during the week of December 5 to 11.

The current pass this year is dated December 4 to 10, and bears the number 49, plus a picture of Franklin Pierce. The pass Mr. and Mrs. Coakley got by with for most of the week bore a picture of the State Flag of Georgia.

The explanation? When Miss Coakley turned the pass over to her mother, she accidentally handed over a year-old pass she'd been carrying around in her purse for 51 weeks—for no reason at all.

BUCKET OF STEAM DEPT.

David E. Scull of 101 Elm ave., Takoma Park, Md., reports that in the "Ramblings" column in the Takoma Journal there was an item recently about the hazing given new bank employes.

Standard operating procedure is to send them off for a "currency stretcher," or the "key to the clearing house."

Dave recalls the old days when he was with the Fokker Aircraft Co., in Glendale, W. Va. There the usual assignment was to send the newcomer after a bucket of "propeller pitch." And he wonders whether any other business circles have their own little jokes of this kind.

From my own experience, I'd say that practically every shop and store has its comedian, who thinks this sort of thing is very funny.

Sometimes, when it's a nonsensical errand like a quest for a left-handed screwdriver, I suppose it is.

But there are other times when I'm afraid the joke isn't very funny for the victim.

Here's an example. My father runs a dental supply depot, out in Ohio. He employes errand boys, to make deliveries to his customers.

The moment a new boy goes to work, a laboratory technician in a nearby building asks for a boy for a "pickup," and when the boy arrives, he's told to take a good-sized anvil back for a new "contact point."

This has been going on for 30 years, during which time the anvil has never been used for any purpose except hazing new errand boys.

And at last reports the joke was still just as funny as ever—to everybody except the boys.

MAIL BAG

Dear Bill:

What does one have to do to get The Washington Post delivered to his home?

I moved about two weeks ago, and since then have made six phone calls to your circulation department asking that the paper be delivered to my new address, daily and Sunday. But to date I haven't received a single edition.

After being a subscriber for the past seven years, I hate to miss even a single edition of my favorite paper. Can you help me?

Yvonne O'Donnell,
224 36th st. ne.

Dear Yvonne:

You came to the right place, pal. And I'll tell you why.

Delivering The Washington Post to its readers involves more than a million separate transactions every week. No human organization can handle a job like that without an occasional error.

But we're very anxious to hear about those errors, because we can't correct them until we're told about them. So thanks for writing to me about your difficulties. Your letter has been forwarded to our Circulation Director, and you can bet your boots he'll get after the mixup at once.

Anybody else with a similar problem is also invited to drop me a line. And occasional readers who don't already get home delivery are reminded that it's much more convenient to find a paper outside your front door in the morning than to have to go out and buy one.

What'll you have—daily, Sunday or both?

Bill

PERSONAL NOTES

Mrs. Ruth W. Harvey, Glenn Dale, Md.: There is a serious flaw in your suggestion that if I don't like the coffee served at our house I brew my own. If I did that, to whom could I complain about it?

SO THAT'S IT?

CAPITOL PUNISHMENT

WTOP's new after-midnight disk jockey, Gene Klavan, is rapidly becoming the talk of the town. Complimented on the occasion of the announcement that he will headline the Capitol Theater stage show next week, Klavan mournfully replied:

"I never get to hear the Klavan show. I'm always at work when he's on."

The Lyons Den

By Leonard Lyons

NEW YORK.—Robert D. Smallwood, president of the Lipton Tea Co., was at the Stork Club with some friends who discussed their collegiate studies. Smallwood, an Ohio State alumnus, revealed that he had switched from engineering to the academic course after his freshman year—because of a girl. His rival for her hand was an engineering classmate of his. The course required so much study that Smallwood had no time for paying court. And so, in his second year, he transferred to the easier academic course . . . His rival stuck to engineering and lost the girl. Small had time to woo the beauty, and so they were married.

Federal men, more than the number who worked on the old Pendergast prosecution, now are digging into the case of Charles Binaggio, who is fighting Jim Pendergast for control of the Jackson County, Mo., Democratic organization . . . Edward Johnson, general manager of the Metropolitan Opera, will be decorated with Italy's Star of Solidarity . . . Walter Reuther and his brothers will be in one room, at the Astor on December 16, when he will receive the Clendenin Award from Mrs. Roosevelt.

At the A. D. A. luncheon for Eugenie Anderson, the new Ambassador to Denmark, Danish Ambassador Kauffmann told her: "I want to warn you about diplomat's disease: I know you won't wear spats or striped trousers—but please don't be a stuffed shirt" . . . Perle Mesta, incidentally, ridicules the rumor of a feud with Mrs. Anderson. She says that when she accepted the Luxembourg post she knew that Mrs. Anderson would be named the first woman ambassador. The two lady diplomats will meet in Europe shortly.

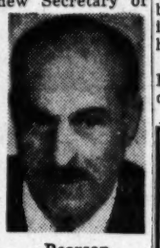
Washington Merry-Go-Round

Chapman Reveals Social Secret

By Drew Pearson

Colorado is a dry State, at least atmospherically speaking, but not half so dry as its own son, Oscar Chapman, the new Secretary of Interior.



Pearson

W a shington, on the other hand, is wet. From the 12-noon martini to the 12-o'clock nightcap, there is a constant round of wetness: "The Ambassador of Argentina requests the pleasure of your company" . . . "The American Aeronautical Association invites you to be present" . . . "The Secretary of the Treasury and Mrs. Snyder, etc." So it goes.

The white-engraved cards come in the mail and by hand, to the office and to the home, and no man in public life can "regret" them all.

A hostess covets a Cabinet member as a bobby-soxer covets a crooner's autograph. If he accepted half the bids, he could reduce himself to a happy state of alcoholic incompetence in a fortnight.

But Oscar Chapman has discovered how to be dry, yet sociable. In short, he has lived through 16 years of Washington wining and dining without taking a drink.

Or rather, he takes a drink every time, but never drinks it.

Caught red-handed in his deception, Chapman confessed: "Well, I do it this way. At a cocktail party, for instance, I never refuse a drink. I take the glass and just hold it in my hand. Then, when the waiter comes around with more, I pretend I've had a refill.

"If it's a state dinner, with toasts for the guest of honor, I put the glass to my lips . . .but the champagne stays in the glass."

Czarist Uranium King

One by-product of the congressional investigation of alleged secrets sent to Russia in 1943-44 is a demand for the deportation of one of the leading uranium magnates of the world, who was given permission to ship uranium to Russia in May, 1943.

He is Boris Pregel, a Czarist Russian, who has lived in exile in France and the United States for the past 32 years. As a result of recent publicity, the Immigration Bureau of the Justice Department has been considering a clamor that Pregel be deported.

However, close examination of files at the Justice Department would indicate that Pregel may be a victim of public hysteria and also, perhaps, of competition from American commercial forces.

The uranium shipment which he sent to Russia, according to the testimony of Lieut. Gen. Leslie Groves, had the official ok. of the Manhattan Project. The license number was 1643180, given by the United States Government to Chematar, 40 Exchange pl., New York City, the official purchasing agent of the Soveit government, for 500 pounds of black uranium oxide and 500 pounds of uranium nitrate.

The fact that a Czarist Russian was at that time the only private individual able to sell uranium is in itself an interesting story.

Pregel, whose wife was from a wealthy Russian family, fled from Moscow in 1917, just ahead of the Bolshevik purge. Living in France, he invested money in the Belgian Uranium Trust and was one of the first experts to predict that unlocking the secret of the atom would not only decide the outcome of the war, but the future control of the world.

In an interview with the Miami News, January 12, 1941, Pregel made exactly this prediction.

Supplied U. S.

Long before the war, Pregel, a multimillionaire, had become the sole sales agent of the Belgian Uranium Trust, and came to this country permanently in 1940 after the Nazis overran France. He then organized the Canadian Radium & Uranium Corp. and acquired an interest in the Fort Hope Uranium mines in Canada. Late in 1941, he became the sole sales agent for Canadian uranium; and when the United States first began to experiment with the idea of splitting the atom, it was Pregel who delivered the first shipment of uranium to Columbia University—5 tons—on June 7, 1941, even before Pearl Harbor.

Pregel got in wrong with the British because he opposed shipments of uranium to England, and Winston Churchill at one time was on the warpath against him. More recently he has been in competition with the Vanadium Corp. in Colorado and New Mexico. He now has his own Caribou Mine in Colorado, where he produces pitchblende and uranium. American interests have been trying to block him.

Pregel is a member of the French Legion of Honor and is one of only three Americans to receive an honorary membership in the French Doctors of Engineers, the other two being Dwight Eisenhower and Herbert Hoover.

The Justice Department's deportation maneuver is based upon the contention that Pregel's passport was not in order when he arrived here as a refugee from France in 1940.
